Story of 1926 Deal Is Told in London.

BY JOHN STEELE.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—On the eve of Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov's sailing for America to discuss settlement of all outstanding questions between the United States and soviet Russia, THE TRIBUNE is able to reveal for the first time how in 1926 a settlement, which would have carried with it payment of almost the whole commercial debt by Russia, was agreed on between the two countries.

The story was told to THE TRIBUNE by the man who acted as go-between in the negotiations. He is James Davenport Whelpley, 70, veteran American newspaper man, author and secret agent for the United States government during the world war. He visited Russia several times and established confidential relations with Russian leaders during the conflict.

Whelpley, now seriously ill in a London hospital, told the story today. It is a romance of secret diplomacy.

Saw Hoover and Borah.

"In 1925," Whelpley said, "I was about to visit America on private business when Christian G. Rakovsky, who was then Russian ambassador to London and whom I knew well, asked me to make inquiries about the possibility of recognition of the soviets by the American government. I saw many persons in Washington, including Herbert Hoover and Senator Borah. On my return to London I told Rakovsky my opinion was that if Russia would pay the commercial debts due American nationals recognition was possible.

"Rakovsky said Leonid Krassin, then soviet ambassador to Paris, was the best man to discuss financial and economic matters and it was arranged for Rakovsky and Krassin to change posts [January, 1926]. When the change was made Dimitri Bogomolov, then counselor to the embassy at London and now Russian ambassador to China, asked me if I could bring about a secret and unofficial meeting between Krassin and Alanson B. Houghton, who then was American ambassador to London.

Houghton Is Startled.

"I called on Mr. Houghton. He was startled by my intervention. He said he would act on his own responsibility and if they did not like it at Washington he could not help it, but that he would have to think it over before acting.

"I knew he intended to cable Washington. When three days later I asked to see the counselor to the embassy, Frederick A. Sterling, now minister to the Irish Free State, and was told that Houghton had decided to see Krassin, I asked, 'Washington has given him permission to see Krassin?'

"'Yes,' Sterling replied. 'He would have to ask permission.'

"I carried the invitation to Krassin to come to breakfast with Houghton at the embassy three days later and it was accepted. Krassin was suffering from pernicious anemia and the day before the date fixed for the meeting he telephoned he was too ill to keep the appointment. A few days later he died [Nov. 24, 1926]. His successor was unfriendly to the United States and the matter was dropped, but later Rakovsky told me in Paris all was arranged to make an offer which the United States could not have refused. This was that Russia would pay 70 per cent of the American commercial debts if some concessions were made which the government could tell the people represented a set-off.

Debts Totaled 2 Billions.

"This, Rakovsky declared, would be good business for American creditors, as they had all written off the soviet debts as bad and saved large sums from taxation. As a result they would have made a profit on their debts.

"The whole thing amounted to only two billion dollars and the trouble about complete recognition was that it would establish a precedent and France, Great Britain and other countries would claim equal treatment, which it would have been impossible for Russia to give.

"This was the explanation for the demand for concessions as a set-off. During my visit to Washington Senator Borah informed me Mr. Hoover, who was then secretary of commerce, told him he had originally persuaded Secretary of State Charles E. Hughes to take the stand he did against Russian recognition and then when Mr. Hoover was inclined to change his mind in favor of recognition of Russia he could not get Hughes to change his position."

FAIR SETS NEW RECORD FOR U. S. IN ATTENDANCE

Exceeds 1893 Total of 21,480,141.

BY EARL MULLIN.

A Century of Progress Exposition yesterday established a new record for paid attendance at fairs in the western hemisphere. At 1 p. m. the 21,480,142d visitor entered the gates, breaking the record of the Columbian Exposition of 1893, the previous high mark, by one paid admission. Only three expositions in history, all of them in Paris, France, have exceeded the present total at the 1933 Fair.

In addition to breaking the record yesterday, the Fair was visited by a crowd far in excess of any of the last week. While not record breaking in itself, the crowd, in comparison with those of the last week, was highly gratifying to officials. At 11:30 p. m. the official total was 162,681.

Missourian Breaks Record.

The visitor who broke the record was Adelbert E. Stocking of De Soto, Mo. He was accompanied by C. P. De Lore, a business associate, and Mr. De Lore's niece, Miss Marion Lapphardt, both of St. Louis. All were unsuspecting of their history making importance until they were inside the gates.

As the 1893 Fair record was neared all gates other than the Roosevelt road entrance were temporarily closed. A telephone connection was made from the recording office in the Administration building to the gate, and visitors were permitted to pass through one at a time.

Mr. Stocking held the three tickets for his party, and Miss Lipphardt went through, to be one under the old record, Mr. De Lore entered to equal the record and Mr. Stocking followed to be met by a battery of newspaper photographers and a welcoming committee of officials.

Greeted by Last 1893 Visitor.

E. Ross Bartley, promotion head of the Fair, and Mrs. Robert T. Graham, Compton, Cal., the last visitor to the old Fair, headed the welcoming group. Among the presents given the honor guest were a camera, a fountain pen set, an electric clock, the new Fair album, a silk flag, a World's Fair medal, and tickets to concessions.

After the welcome the party, including Mrs. Graham, was taken on a tour of the grounds and was given a dinner at the Blue Ribbon Casino.

The record was established at 1 p. m. on the 156th day of the Exposition, exceeding the total attained by the old Fair in 183 days. The 1933 Fair has fourteen days more until its gates are closed, and in that time will probably run up another two million paid admissions, setting a mark for future generations to try to beat.

Good Weather Swells Crowd.

Indian summer weather yesterday drew crowds through the turnstiles in a steady stream. At noon almost fifty thousand persons had entered. More than 100,000 entered in the afternoon, but there were fewer than 10,000 admissions in the evening.

October has been the only month in which the total at the old Fair exceeded that of the 1933 Exposition. During this month almost every day has been exceeded by the corresponding day of the old Fair. Despite that fact the attendance total of the 1933 Fair was never in danger of falling behind the corresponding total at the old Fair.

At the conclusion of the 156th day at the old Fair the total figure was 14,982,641, the day falling on Oct. 3. The total at the old Fair on Oct. 29 was 21,269,039, with the next day closing the Exposition with an attendance of 211,102 admissions.

SHOT TO DEATH BY HIS FRIEND IN FIGHT AT TAVERN

Lincoln Reeder, 46 years old, associated with Reeder's Sheet Metal works at 4534 West 63d street, which is also his home address, was shot and fatally wounded early this morning during a fight with another man in front of a beer tavern at 4516 West 63d street.

Reeder's wife, Bessie, was present at the time and saw him shot down. She accompanied him to the Holy Cross hospital, where he died a few minutes later. He had been shot in the chest.

Chicago Lawn police, after a brief investigation, said that they learned Reeder was shot by William Sullivan, about 40 years old, of 6219 South Kolmar avenue. According to police the Reeders, Sullivan and others, all friends had been in the tavern. A brawl started, and Sullivan, police said, went home and armed himself. He returned and just outside the tavern fired three shots, wounding Reeder, his friend. Sullivan was arrested at his home by Sergt. Charles McMullen and admitted the shooting.

DOLLFUSS MAKES PEACE GESTURE TOWARD HITLER

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

VIENNA, Oct. 29.—Drawing himself up to his full height [5 feet] Chancellor Engelbert Dollfuss today proudly announced that Austria is out of danger of economic collapse. He seemed to call on Germany to recognize this fact and make peace.

"The world is so fraught with tension," he said before an assemblage of peasants at Grossmugl, Lower Austria, "that we should like and are ready to do our part toward diminishing it where we can."

Holding out his hand to Germany, he reiterated, however, his condition for an understanding between the two countries.

"Our honor, liberty, and independence must be maintained," he said.

Singer in Visiting Choir Dies Suddenly in Church

Alexander Borchovik, 39 years old, 5801 Pensacola avenue, died suddenly last night while singing with a choir in St. Julian's Roman Catholic church, 7421 Osceola avenue. He was a member of the guest choir of Our Lady of Victory church of Jefferson Park, which took part in mission week services at St. Julian's. The Rev. Thomas J. Hogan, who was conducting the service, administered extreme unction to Borchovik.

Mrs. Roosevelt Here Today for Charity Drive

BY KATHLEEN M'LAUGHLIN.

Two days of feminine activity in Chicago, pivoting about the tall figure of Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt and precisely balanced between business and pleasure, will be launched with Mrs. Roosevelt's arrival at 8:15 o'clock this morning at the Roosevelt Road station. She will go almost directly from the train into the conference room in the Stevens hotel, where the first national rally of the 1933 mobilization of human needs is scheduled.

In her rôle of chairman of the women's division of the mobilization Mrs. Roosevelt will share the rostrum with Newton D. Baker, former secretary of war and general chairman of the drive, who is also expected this morning. A morning and an afternoon session, a luncheon and a dinner at the Stevens hotel will occupy the day and will stimulate the impending community campaigns to raise funds for private charitable agencies which receive no money from tax sources.

Chicago to Ask $4,000,000.

Chicago's effort to acquire $4,000,000 for the 101 institutions represented in the newly formed community fund of the Allied Chicago Charities has not yet been formally opened, but many contributions have already been received. The campaign will start officially early in November.

Mrs. Roosevelt, Chairman Baker, and Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, will be the speakers at a campaign dinner rally in the Stevens at 7 o'clock tonight. Edward L. Ryerson Jr., president of the Council of Social Agencies of Chicago, will preside.

Mrs. Roosevelt will also speak at the luncheon at noon, together with Miss Jane Addams and John Stewart Bryan of Richmond, Va., national president of Community Chests and Councils.

Mrs. Banning to Speak.

Mrs. Margaret Culkin Banning of Duluth, widely known fiction writer, and Miss Margot Atkin, president of the Chicago Junior league, will be on the program this afternoon.

It has been estimated that approximately $55,000,000 will be raised throughout the nation for private charitable and welfare agencies during the drives that will get under way in November. The funds raised will be used to supplement relief work of the federal government and the states, which supply principally food, shelter, and clothing.

Communities that will soon have campaigns going include New York, Philadelphia, Detroit, Cleveland, Kansas City, San Francisco, Pittsburgh, Minneapolis, Newark, Los Angeles, and Washington, D. C.

The second half of Mrs. Roosevelt's 37 hour stay in Chicago will be spent as the honor guest of Women's day at A Century of Progress tomorrow. This event is expected to draw a record attendance of women for the major features planned.

A massmeeting in the Court of States at 2:30 o'clock will headline the program and is expected to attract the largest turnout, as Mrs. Roosevelt's one public address of the day will be made at that time.

Next in the order of attendance at the festivities will be the formal dinner for Mrs. Roosevelt in the grand ballroom of the Palmer house at 6 o'clock. The function is sponsored by the Illinois State Federation of Business and Professional Women's Clubs, but is open to any Chicago woman regardless of club affiliations.

Gov. Horner and Mayor Kelly have accepted invitations for the dinner, which is scheduled for 6 o'clock sharp in deference to the necessity for Mrs. Roosevelt's departure at 9 o'clock.

E. H. Sothern, Famed Actor, Dies in East

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Edward Hugh Sothern, who made the rôles of the forlorn Romeo and other Shakespearean figures live on the stages of two continents, died last night in his hotel suite. He was 73 years old and succumbed to lobar pneumonia.

His wife, Julia Marlowe—the Juliet of his greatest stage triumph—was at his bedside. His death was announced today.

Only a few close friends and his family knew that the great actor died at 6:15 p. m. yesterday in the heart of New York.

Body to Be Cremated.

Sothern had asked that his body be cremated. The funeral service will be private. The ashes will be left with Mrs. Sothern, who has not announced where they will rest.

Sothern was taken ill Oct. 14 with a cold that developed into pneumonia. He and Mrs. Sothern had returned to the United States on Oct. 6 for a short visit to Broadway before going to their winter home in Luxor, Egypt.

The two, who helped make the street what it is, had planned to "see the shows from the "other side of the footlights."

Sister Resides in London.

They came here from London, where Sothern's sister, Mrs. Eva Sothern Smith, lives. The couple spent much of their time in London when they were not in Egypt or at their summer home in Switzerland.

The life of Sothern reads like a drama.

Born in New Orleans, the son of the great English stage couple—Fanny Stewart and Edwin Askew Sothern—the boy showed an early yearning to troupe as his parents had. He was educated largely in English schools of the theater, but his father discouraged him and sent him to Spain to study painting.

Sothern's love for the stage was not to be denied, however, and he came home to act.

Starts on His Career.

"Anybody can make a living on the stage," the youth had said recklessly.

So his father gave him the rôle of a cabman in "Brother Sam," a show opening at a New York theater. The boy had only one line to speak, but when he faced his father on the stage his tongue clove to the roof of his mouth and he did not mumble a word.

Instead, he fled from the stage, frightened and broken hearted.

With John McCullough.

That first appearance was at the old Park theater in this city. He then went with the Boston Museum company for three months. In 1881 came a great event of his theatrical career. A position with John E. McCullough's company, of which Viola Allen was a leading member, was given to him. McCullough was then at the height of his fame. With him young Sothern sailed to play his first engagement at the Royalty theater in London as Dr. Sharpe in "False Colours," and as Marshley Bittern in "Out of the Hunt." In 1882 Sothern succeeded his brother Lytton as Arthur Spoonbill in "Fourteen Days," under the management of Charles Wyndham. Lytton died in 1887.

On his return to America in 1883, Sothern again appeared with McCullough, subsequently touring the country in "Called Back," "Lost," and "Three Wives for One Husband." A year or so later he became a member of Daniel Frohman's Lyceum theater stock company.

Sothern wrote a play, "Whose Are They?" and in 1884 played its leading rôle. He later wrote four other plays, including "Never Trouble Trouble Till Trouble Troubles You."

He remained with the Lyceum com-

First Buying Plan Fails as Spur.

BY ARTHUR SEARS HENNING.
(Picture on Back Page.)

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—In a further effort to make his dollar depreciation policy raise commodity prices, President Roosevelt prepared tonight to begin the buying of gold in the world market.

This step was decided upon at a conference of the President and his financial advisers which Mr. Roosevelt called late this afternoon. The depreciation of the dollar through the buying of newly mined American gold on the domestic market this week having failed to boost prices materially, it was decided to begin at once the purchase of gold in the foreign market.

Price Abroad Rises.

While the bidding for gold on the domestic market theoretically depressed the value of the dollar slightly, the exchange value of the dollar abroad actually rose and to a greater degree than the decline at home. The President was advised by the brain trust authors of the new inflation policy that the scheme to raise prices by cheapening the dollar cannot be guaranteed to work unless the value of the dollar is depressed abroad as well as at home.

One of the results of the extension of the gold purchasing operations to the world market is not unlikely to be a currency depreciation race between the United States and Great Britain, which stands to lose enormously on foreign trade if the pound sterling is forced up by operations to cheapen the dollar.

Into such a contest, France might easily be drawn with the result of being forced off the gold standard. If France were to abandon the gold standard Holland and Switzerland could not remain on gold. The result would be a virtual suspension of gold payments throughout the world.

Follows White House Conference.

The new step was announced in a White House statement which said that at "an informal meeting" of the President and his advisers "the subject under discussion was the immediate setting up of machinery under which the government, through the Reconstruction Finance corporation, will be enabled to buy gold in foreign markets."

Those who participated in the conference were Acting Secretary of the Treasury Dean Acheson, Gov. Eugene Black of the federal reserve board, George L. Harrison, governor, and J. E. Crane and Fred I. Kent of the Federal Reserve bank of New York; Henry Morgenthau Jr., governor of the farm credit administration; Jesse H. Jones, chairman of the Reconstruction Finance corporation; Henry Bruere, the President's financial coordinator, and Profs. George F. Warren of Cornell and James Harvey Rogers of Yale, co-authors of the dollar depreciation policy.

Just how soon the RFC might be expected to get busy buying gold on the world market none of the participants in the conference would undertake to say. The President indicated a few days ago that such operations if embarked upon would be shrouded in the utmost secrecy, that nothing would be known of the operations until their effect began to be felt in the depreciation of the dollar in foreign exchange.

Will Require Billions.

The manipulation of the value of the dollar by the purchase of gold abroad is a far greater undertaking than the purchase of newly mined gold at home, which began the middle of last week. As the average gold production of this country is only 2,500,000 ounces annually, the outlay of the recently established prices for gold would not exceed 75 million dollars in a year.

In gold operations on the world market, however, hundreds of millions are required. Great Britain has sought to control the exchange value of the pound by use of an equalization fund of approximately 1¼ billion dollars.

The first week of experimenting with the new inflation policy ended with disappointment pervading the White House. The Warren-Rogers prescription for the recovery of economic health did not appear to be producing the desired rise of commodity prices which were to increase the purchasing power of producers. Gold prices were raised 6.7 per cent, but commodity prices rose on the average only 1.8 per cent.

The confusion of the public mind regarding the President's latest experiment in the boosting of commodity prices only deepened during the four days' trial of the plan last week. The quotations of stocks went up an average of about 10 points, but the prices of grain and other farm products, which it is aimed particularly to influence, moved erratically up and down and wound up little, if any, higher on the average.

Bonds Show Weakness.

Of great significance also was a moderate decline in high grade corporation bonds and in government paper. The new 500 million dollar loan, the quadruple oversubscription of which the President pridefully announced ten days ago as evidence of the government's gilt-edged credit, was selling yesterday at a slight discount from the subscription price.

These developments are interpreted as evidence that investors are beginning to entertain doubts that government credit can be maintained at its present level much longer.

In the business world there was a perceptible hesitancy to make commitments pending a more definite revelation of the effect of the inflationary measures represented by the President's dollar depreciation move and of possibly other measures more pronouncedly inflationary which Mr. Roosevelt in his radio address a week ago suggested might be resorted to eventually.

Doubts of business men that the scheme to inflate prices by bidding up the price of gold will work were deepened when it gradually became known that the President had embraced the professors' panacea, contrary to the advice of treasury and federal reserve officials with a more practical knowledge of money and banking.

Professors on Defensive.

The professors were on the defensive by the end of the week as the manipulation of the domestic price for gold failed to advance commodity prices as much as had been expected. Then it was they told the President that it would be necessary to force down the value of the dollar in the foreign exchange market also. They promised that that step would turn the trick.

Apart from its failure to affect the world price of gold, the RFC's policy of purchasing newly mined gold failed also to control the value of the dollar in foreign exchange, except for a sentimental influence, which was evident immediately after the announcement of the new policy.

Although the rising quotations for newly mined gold by the RFC reduced daily the theoretical gold value of the dollar, the currency rose in gold value during the period when measured against the French franc.

The gold value of the dollar, as indicated by the RFC's gold price and by the closing value of the dollar in foreign exchange, was, in cents:

PARIS' FEARS CONFIRMED.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

PARIS, Oct. 29.—President Roosevelt's announcement that he will enter in the world market to buy gold confirms the expectations and fears of Paris.

French financial circles are sorry to see it happen because it is virtually certain that it means a drain on the Bank of France's gold.

It is taken for granted that the RFC's first purchases will be on the free market in London, but much of the gold now flowing to London comes from Paris and if the price rises that flow will increase. It is also feared that America might find it necessary to turn directly to Paris for gold.

Paul Reynaud, former minister of finance, warned that President Roosevelt would soon be obliged to buy gold abroad in order to keep the dollar down and that then the Bank of France would probably be called upon to disgorge its gold.

He concluded with the warning that France might be obliged to make "a decisive counter move, in accord with members of the gold bloc, in order to protect the gold reserves of the issuing banks."

MAY LEAVE GOLD STANDARD.

LONDON, Oct. 30.—[Monday.]—(AP)—That the United States' decision to buy gold abroad may result in driving all the gold standard countries off gold was among the views briefly expressed in London morning newspapers.

Comments on President Roosevelt's announcement were hurried as the news reached London after the financial columns were mostly filled.

While the announcement did not cause surprise in financial quarters, the actual procedure America will adopt was awaited with some anxiety in view of its probable far-reaching effects.

The financial editor of the London Daily Mail said it was "probable that the dollar will depreciate both against sterling and gold currencies." He saw likelihood that the pound "will depreciate against the franc and the sterling price of gold will rise."

The Herald charged that other countries have been deliberately operating to prevent President Roosevelt's gold plan from succeeding.

"There are good grounds," it said, "for believing that the Bank of England in coöperation with the Bank of France, actually bought dollars on each occasion when President Roosevelt raised the internal gold price, and thus prevented gold purchases from having any effect."

SILVER MEN GO AFTER ACTION IN NEXT CONGRESS

Western Senators to Urge Aid from Roosevelt.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Quietly gathering congressional forces to aid silver, but looking hopefully to President Roosevelt for action in the meantime, western senators are considering tentative plans for a united effort at the next session to rehabilitate the white metal.

Senator King [Dem., Utah], one of the leaders, with Senators Wheeler [Dem., Mont.] and Pittman [Dem., Nev.] told newspaper men that by mid-November champions of silver would meet to formulate a program for action.

John Hays Hammond, mining engineer, is expected to be called in for the conference, along with Senators Thomas [Dem., Utah], Thomas [Dem., Okla.], McCarren [Dem., Nev.], and Adams [Dem., Colo.].

Admit Slight Differences.

Explaining that there were some "slight differences of opinion" among silver's spokesmen as to the best procedure, King expressed optimism over the possibility of uniting forces so that a vigorous campaign could be waged in congress around one common focal point: the remonetization of silver.

Senators Pittman and King and others are agreed that the chief executive's recently announced policy of buying gold should be accompanied by some measure to help silver.

Pittman favors a similar course toward silver—taking only that produced by American mines—and in effect, a free coinage on a set ratio to gold in whatever proportion Mr. Roosevelt considers adequate.

Believe Roosevelt May Act.

The majority of the advocates of helping silver believe that Mr. Roosevelt may take some action soon in this direction, and are urging it, contending that to restore silver would advance immediately commodity price levels and boom trade with the orient and the Latin American republics.

Aside from aiding silver, these advocates hold that mining of lead, zinc, copper and other minerals with which silver is found, and in the production of which most silver comes, would be strengthened and employment increased.

Under the monetary powers vested in Mr. Roosevelt by congress, he has authority to authorize free coinage of silver and fix its ratio to gold, but he has given no indication that he intends to avail himself of this power.

Assessor Gives Estimates for Future Tax Valuations

Assessor J. L. Jacobs yesterday made public, for the information of various local governments in drawing up their 1934 budgets, estimates of the total of assessed valuations of all taxable property in Chicago and Cook county for 1932 and comparison with the 1931 assessment upon which taxes are now being collected.

He also ventured a prediction, on the basis of studies now under way by his staff, that the 1932 assessments, now being made, will be close to the minimum for the quadrennial assessment period ending with the year 1934.

"Our studies of real estate values for the 1933 assessment have shown that it probably will be unnecessary to make any blanket reduction in assessments for that year, below the 25 per cent reduction made for 1932," said Assessor Jacobs. "Real estate values slumped somewhat after April 1, 1932, the date on which the 1932 assessments are fixed, but data which we have assembled indicates that taken as a whole they were back to the 1932 assessment level by April 1 of this year."

Sees Inflation Influence.

The assessor was unwilling to predict what will happen to real estate values by April 1, 1934, the date taken for fixing values for 1934 assessments, but he said that with inflation in prospect, it is unlikely that there will be any further slump.

The 25 per cent cut in 1932 real estate assessments, to which the assessor referred, is the bugaboo for various local governments in their present budget drafting activities. The 1932 levy will be put in collection early next year. Due to the two year delay in making assessments, and to the fact that virtually all of the larger local governments have levied taxes at the maximum rates allowed by the legislature for operating purposes, these governments all find themselves facing deficits for 1932 and 1933, due to having anticipated more taxes than they can now possibly collect with the lower assessment levels.

Preliminary estimates of revenue for budget making purposes have disclosed an inclination on the part of officials of some of the governments to dodge the issue created by the 25 per cent cut by estimating their assessment totals higher than those which Assessor Jacobs has made. This will allow them to increase their appropriations for next year, which will pile up new deficits to met out of the revenue of following years.

Used as Tax Bill Basis.

The 1931 assessment totals given out by the assessor are the actual ones on which the county treasurer has prepared tax bills, with deductions made for the subsequent revision of real estate valuations by the board of tax appeals.

Assessor Jacobs' figures do not, however, include any deduction for the 15 per cent cut in building valuations on homes and small flat buildings ordered by the board of appeals for 1931. While the Supreme court knocked out this blanket reduction, the board granted it on individual complaints by 54,000 taxpayers. Assessor Jacobs has refused to recognize the appeal board's reductions, on advice of his attorneys.

Mr. Jacobs said, however, that budget makers might well remember that the matter is still subject to litigation and leave enough "slack" in their appropriations to take care of the possible loss of revenue if the 15 per cent cut should be allowed.

Deducted from Valuation.

The effect of the 15 per cent cut has therefore been shown as a deduction from his 1931 assessed valuation totals and the estimates for 1932, made by H. S. Drew of his staff. For Cook county these valuations were:

	1931.	1932.
Personal prop.	984,015,400	1,000,000,000
Railroads	194,969,120	172,168,231
Total	$3,176,349,244	$3,074,168,231
Less deductions for 15% cut	120,000,000	99,000,000
	$3,596,349,244	$2,975,168,231

Similar 1931 assessment totals and 1932 estimates for the city of Chicago were:

	1931.	1932.
Personal prop.	904,967,901	917,990,000
Railroads	144,643,160	129,455,485
Total	$3,112,114,842	$2,594,445,485
	$3,014,914,842	$2,514,255,485

Following are estimates for the sanitary district and three large park boards:

	1931.	1932.
15% deduction	116,729,524	87,547,143
Lincoln park	498,431,734	416,503,541
15% deduction	43,189,682	32,392,261

A member of the board of tax appeals, when he learned that Assessor Jacobs had estimated 1932 personal property assessments at $1,000,000,000, predicted that the appeals board might cut the personalty total well below that figure.

NEW YORK NAZIS MAY FIGHT BAN ON CELEBRATION

Hitler Society to Decide on Course Tonight.

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The United German societies will meet tomorrow evening to decide what answer to make to Mayor John P. O'Brien and what action to take in view of his prohibition of their annual celebration of German day which was to take place today.

On complaint of German Jewish societies which withdrew last month from the united societies on the Hitler racial issue, and on complaint of the Jewish war veterans that German day this year would be turned into an occasion for Hitler propaganda and disorder, the mayor forbade it.

Leader Resigns.

Meanwhile, in the face of the mounting opposition to Nazi ascendency in the United German societies, the Rev. Dr. William Popcke has resigned as acting president, and his place has been taken meanwhile by Carl Nicolai.

Mr. Nicolai, however, received a subpoena today from United States Attorney George Z. Medalie to appear before the federal grand jury tomorrow to inform them as to Heinz Spanknoebel's operations.

Spanknoebel, for whom a federal order of arrest has been in existence since Friday on the ground that he represented the German government without registering with the state department, remained among the missing. His friends who admitted his departure for Germany on the Deutschland of the Hamburg-American line now, however, doubt if he will ever return.

Faces Investigation.

They felt he would have no time to work for the new Germany because he would have to spend so much time defending himself from the federal charges.

A meeting of the friends of New Germany, organized a few months ago by Spanknoebel for the express purpose of "putting Germans in America behind the Hitler government, with the exception of the Jews," will meet Tuesday evening for the purpose of deciding upon a new leader to carry on.

GERMANY HAS NO WAR PLANES, AIR MINISTER INSISTS

ESSEN, Germany, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Gen. Hermann Wilhelm Goering, minister for aviation, said today that Germany under the compulsion of a superior force had destroyed her military aircraft. He was speaking as the presiding officer of commemorative exercises for Oswald Boelcke, popularly idolized war ace who was shot down Oct. 28, 1916.

"As a responsible aviation chief," said Goering, "I declare emphatically it is untrue that we have hidden war planes; neither have we constructed new ones secretly. If others point to our commercial planes, I say you act contrary to your better knowledge and your experts cannot honestly pretend our heavy commercial machines can ever be used for war purposes.

"Germany at Geneva renounced all machines for attacking purposes, but insisted on a minimum number of planes for defensive use, meaning planes whose radius of operation precludes taking the offensive. The refusal to permit Germany to have such planes cannot but mean that others have evil in mind. Do they expect us to take an offensive with sailplanes."

SUBSIDIZED NAZI GOODS STIRS U. S. TO REPRISAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—What may be the first in a series of American reprisals against Nazi subsidizing of German foreign trade will be acted on at the treasury department tomorrow.

Various classes of German exports to America, it is charged, are being indirectly subsidized by the Nazi government, enabling them to undersell in this country American producers of the same goods.

A case of alleged dumping of German steel in the United States has gone before Undersecretary of the Treasury Dean G. Acheson for action tomorrow or soon thereafter. His decision in this case may point the way for treatment of complaints against other classes of German goods.

BERLIN TO PICK ITS OWN RECTORS IN UNIVERSITIES

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Bernard Rust, commissioner of culture and education, introduced the leadership principle in German universities today with an ordinance by which rectors in the future will be appointed by himself, instead of being elected by the university senates.

The rector, who will bear the entire responsibility for the university, merely will be proposed by the senate and after his appointment will nominate the deans of faculties.

The senates also include students' representatives.

CHICAGO GROUP IS FORMED TO BOYCOTT NAZIS

A committee to foster the boycott of German goods, as proposed recently in a resolution adopted by the American Federation of Labor, was appointed at a meeting held in the Douglas park auditorium yesterday in protest against the methods of Hitler. Jewish organizations throughout the city were represented at the meeting. The principal speakers were Norman Thomas, Socialist leader; Attorney Salmon Levinson, and Rabbi Solomon Goldman.

Attorney Levinson, co-author of the Kellogg peace pact, said it was difficult for the rest of the world to talk peace while Hitler's Nazis are preparing for "inevitable war." He declared that Germany's withdrawal from the Geneva disarmament conference indicated the Nazis are seeking a war.

Attorney Samuel H. Holland was appointed chairman of the boycott committee.

TWO LOSE LIVES WHEN FAMILY AUTOS COLLIDE

6 Deaths Increase 1933 Toll in County to 884.

Two men were killed yesterday and eight other persons injured when the cars of two family motoring parties collided at Millwaukee and Town Line roads, south of Libertyville in Lake county.

The men killed, both of whose skulls were fractured, were Clifford Gustafson, 40 years old, 1750 North Sawyer avenue, and Herbert Piotrascki, 28 years old, 1445 North Paulina street.

Another Incurs Skull Fracture.

Gustafson was riding in the car of Philip Buriati, 1218 Sedgwick street. Buriati and five other occupants of the car were hurt, but the only one whose injuries were deemed serious at Condell hospital in Libertyville, where the victims of the accident were taken, was his brother, Nicholas Buriati, 38 years old, 3126 Marmora avenue, whose skull was fractured. The other occupants of the car, who were cut and bruised, were Gustafson's wife, Grace, Mrs. Marie Buriati, wife of Nicholas, and the two children of that couple, Fillmore, 14 years old, and Dolores, 5.

In Piotrascki's car were his mother, Mrs. Minnie Piotrascki, with whom he lived, and Miss Eunice Frier, 2236 North Kenneth avenue. They were cut and bruised.

County Toll Now 884.

Deaths of six victims of motor accidents in Cook county yesterday raised the county automobile death toll of 1933 to 884. The victims:

Charles Duba, 23 years old of Oak Lawn. Fatally crushed as he was pushing his stalled automobile to a filling station in the suburb early yesterday when his car was struck by that of Peter Adelsbach, also of Oak Lawn.

Peter Janus, 45 years old, 213 154th place, Calumet City. Found dead at Torrence avenue and 173d street, Lansing, apparently the victim of a hit and run driver.

Ivar Neilson, 35 years old, 4959 North Hoyne avenue. Killed when he and a companion were struck in Sheridan road near Cornelia avenue by an automobile driven by Miss L. Rothberg, 6026 Winthrop avenue.

Thomas Hill, 50 years old, 1637 Dayton street. Died in Columbus Memorial hospital of injuries incurred Oct. 27.

Mrs. Bertha Horton, 39 years old, 4920 Vincennes avenue, a Negro, died in the county hospital of injuries incurred Friday when she was struck by an automobile driven by Lawrence Thompson, 19 years old, 8241 Dorchester avenue.

Ross Clay, 50 years old, 5039 South Michigan avenue, a Negro, died in Provident hospital of injuries incurred Oct. 22 when he stepped in the path of a truck at 51st street and Cottage Grove avenue.

George Galian, 35 years old, who is believed to have lived in the Hegewisch district, was killed by an automobile driven by Mrs. Nettie Boza of Michigan City, Ind., as he was walking yesterday in the road at Indianapolis avenue and 106th street, Hammond.

Samuel Ambrogio, 44 years old, 308 South Utica street, Waukegan, died yesterday in Victory Memorial hospital in that city of injuries incurred on Thursday.

Leave Victims Near Hospital.

Four men, whose automobile struck another car at California avenue and Lexington street and injured a mother and a son in the latter car, proved themselves a bit shy on Good Samaritan rôles last night. They put the victims, Mrs. Anna Kutchik, 35 years old, 1111 South Mozart street, and Alex, 11, into their machine and a few minutes later abandoned them at Harrison and Wood streets in front of the county hospital. Then they sped away.

Mrs. Kutchik and her son were soon found by passersby and taken into the hospital, where it was found they were suffering from skull fractures. Mrs. Kutchik was the driver of one of the cars in the accident.

Two Children Injured by Cab.

Ruth Server, 14 years old, 940 Windsor avenue, and her brother, David, 11, were critically injured last night when they were struck by a Checker taxicab at Clarendon avenue and Broadway. They were carried more than 20 feet on the front bumper of the car before the driver stopped it. Just before the cab came to a dead stop David fell off the bumper and under two wheels.

The driver, said by police to have been William Bodkin, took Ruth and David to the American hospital and then fled. He notified his company office, but did not report to police. The office got in touch with police and reported that Bodkin said the children were hit by another car and thrown in front of his. Police asserted this version is false, and that the cab was the only car to hit the youngsters. Bodkin is being sought.

CHICAGO CROWDS TAKE A FLING IN INDIAN SUMMER

Mercury at 70° Sends Crowds Outdoors.

BY HAL FOUST.

Temperatures near the summer level yesterday gave Chicagoans a holiday in an outdoors colored for late autumn. From 1 to 4 o'clock in the afternoon the official weather bureau thermometer registered 67 degrees. The government forecast indicated a continuance of moderate weather with fair skies for today.

The skies were clear yesterday, there was barely a breath of breeze, and the warm sunshine called people from their apartments and houses. The highways carried a pleasure traffic comparable in volume to midsummer Sundays. Boulevards also were crowded.

In the city's 7,327 acres of parks, thousands sat on benches or in the grass in the sunshine. The automobile park at the Lincoln park zoo was filled. Children without coats played games on Jackson park lawns. Mothers wheeled infants in Garfield park.

Heavy Attendance at Fair.

The World's Fair had a heavy attendance. Outdoor eating and beer drinking tables received patronage after being deserted for several days because of unfavorable weather.

At the Oak street beach, there were a dozen or so bathers. None was in the water when this reporter passed but they were there in bathing suits getting more tan on their backs.

In the 31,577 acres of forest preserves that fringe Chicago, young couples strolled arm in arm through the woods. Apartment house children kicked through carpets of dry leaves to enjoy the rustle. In Palos park, in the southern end of the country, two gray haired women were seen hunting mushrooms.

The Thatcher woods, just west of Oak Park, gave forth bird songs almost as gay as those in early spring. Chickadees, finches, and song sparrows hopped among leafless shrubs. The coo of a pair of doves came from somewhere down the Des Plaines river, and there was a distant "caw" of a crow. Crickets and cicadas added their chirps. A few butterflies were seen.

Woods in Brown Now.

The woods have lost their brighter colors of the earlier fall and are now a harmony of browns with many trees stretching naked limbs and twigs filigreed against the sky. In forest preserves along the Des Plaines river near Wheeling, men were sitting on the banks with fish lines dangling idly in the water. They were watched by flocks of black birds assembled for the southern migration.

On the River road north of Des Plaines, three cars were parked beside the pavement while men and women with their children tore branches from young oak trees, presumably to decorate homes for Halloween parties.

Golf Courses Crowded.

Golf courses, green from recent rains, were crowded. Foursomes, delayed by slow players ahead, waited on the fairways without impatience.

Farmers' front gates were piled with yellow pumpkins, more for jack o'lanterns than for pies. This year, several outlying gasoline stations display fancifully carved pumpkins for Halloween.

Chicago made the most of this weather treat.

MRS. RALPH H. POOLE AND VOLNEY FOSTER GAIN AFTER INJURIES

Mrs. Ralph H. Poole and Volney Foster of Lake Forest, injured Saturday evening when the automobile in which they were riding was wrecked against a tree beside Buena road in the suburb, both showed marked improvement yesterday, it was reported by their physician, Dr. Theodore Proxmire.

Fear which was expressed immediately after the accident that their skulls had been fractured was dispelled later when X-ray photographs were taken, Dr. Proxmire said. Both, however, suffered from loss of blood and shock. Mrs. Poole's face was cut, and Mr. Foster lost his front teeth.

A passerby found them unconscious in Mrs. Poole's car on a rutted gravel road, just beyond the concrete of the new Skokie highway. Both had attended a wedding at the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago during the afternoon and were on their way home. The road jogs slightly where the pavement ends.

2 ROBBERS SLAP $211 AWAY FROM THEATER CASHIER

Slapping her in the face to make her release a bag of money, two young men last night robbed Mrs. May Begin, 40 years old, 3513 West 68th street, cashier of the Haymarket theater at 722 Madison street. They got $211. The robbers timed their visit to the theater so that they met Mrs. Begin as she stepped from an office into the lobby on her way to a nearby bank where the money could be dropped in a deposit chute. They escaped in an automobile.

27 IN FORESTRY CORPS MUTINY; ALL ARE FIRED

Returned to Their Homes in Chicago.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Twenty-seven civilian conservation corps workers, encamped at Whitnall park in Milwaukee county near Hales Corners, were given dishonorable discharges yesterday and sent back to their homes in Chicago.

Officers in charge of the civilian conservation camp said the men refused to work on Saturday to round out a 40 hour week, in accordance with recent orders, and they were trying to induce the other workers to join with them.

Officers Are Threatened.

Sheriff's deputies were called to the camp after the 27 men had been returned to their barracks, on orders of Maj. Cyrus J. Wilder, in charge of the camp. It was reported to the sheriff that the men threatened the officers and some of the men in camp, and also threatened to break up the furniture and damage the barracks.

Deputies John Burmeister and Frank Koslowski were the first to arrive. They warned the men to leave camp without further trouble and to cease their demonstration, they said. The discharged men were placed aboard two trucks, and with the two deputies as escorts, were taken to the North Shore road station and placed aboard a train bound for Chicago.

All of the men sent back to Chicago had been in the conservation corps for months. The trouble started when the officers at the camp called the men out to work Saturday. Previously the corps workers put in five days a week, and on Saturday cleaned up their own quarters, their clothes and did personal work. Sunday was a free day. If rain stopped the work, they were not required to make up the lost time.

Must Make Up Rainy Day Time.

But a new order received recently specified that the men put in 40 hours a week. If it rained during the week, and the men were kept indoors, they are required by the new order to make up this time on other days.

The men were kept from work one day this week by rain, which was responsible for the work order for yesterday. The 27 men refused to work. Maj. Wilder warned them that a continuance of their refusal would necessitate discharging them. The men adhered to their original decision, and the trouble started.

It was not the first instance of the kind with the civilian conservation corps here. A short time ago, because drainage work connected with a bathroom and lavatory did not function properly, the men were ordered to dig up the tile, relay it, and also change the location of the septic tank. They refused to do the work, until informed by the officers that it would mean the bathhouse would be locked up and they would be compelled to find sanitary facilities as best they might. All of them then took up their implements again.

Here Are Names of Men.

Officers tonight said that the dissenters were in a minority, and that most of the men were willing to work.

HELD FOR $32,000 BANK ROBBERY.

Ukiah, Cal., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Millard Vinson, 31, alias Bernard Meyers, who, officers said, was wanted in connection with a $32,000 Thompsonville, Ill., bank robbery in 1929, was arrested here today.

WORLD'S BIGGEST ART LOVER CROWD JAMS FAIR SHOW

Queue Block Long Forms Outside Institute.

Saturday, Oct. 28, 1933.....	94,755
Saturday, Oct. 28, 1893.....	251,652
Total, including Oct. 28, 1933 [155 days].....	21,415,806
Total, including Oct. 28, 1893 [181 days].....	21,115,801

The Columbian Exposition opened May 1; A Century of Progress opened May 27.

Throngs intent on viewing the collection of masterpieces of the special Century of Progress art exhibit before it closes next Wednesday night stormed the doors of the Art Institute of Chicago so eagerly yesterday that special measures had to be taken to handle the crowds. All records for a single day's attendance at an art exhibit anywhere in the world were shattered.

By 2 o'clock the main floor lobby was so choked with visitors that guards were called to rope off a space near the door to restrain those still pouring in until semblance of order could be effected. By 10 o'clock, the closing hour, 38,419 had been clocked at the entrance.

Breaks Own Record.

This number was almost double the previous high established by the exhibit a week ago on Sunday, when a total of 21,650 persons visited the institute. Prior to that time the record was held by Philadelphia, where 18,231 individuals viewed the Sesquicentennial exhibit in one day.

There was also an all-time record breaking attendance at the four lectures in Fullerton hall in the institute, with audiences totaling more than 1,200 for the day. At the 2 o'clock lecture hundreds had to be turned away.

Yesterday's record crowd began to arrive immediately after the doors were opened at 9 o'clock, according to Walter Sherwood, in charge of publicity and publications at the institute. The upstairs rooms containing all the assembled paintings and statues of the official exhibit, filled rapidly, and groups soon were milling about on the main stairway and clogging the spacious lobby.

Only 14 More Days Remain in Which to See the Fair.

Form Queue Outside Building.

Early in the afternoon the press became so dense that the visitors awaiting admission were formed into two double lines extending down the main stairways and in a long queue around to the southern wall of the building—a distance approximately a city block.

The Exposition's contracts with the museums and individuals who have loaned masterpieces for the exhibit provides that the paintings will be taken down and shipped to the owners after Wednesday night at 10 o'clock, when the art show closes.

Officials of the institute anticipate a large daily attendance for all of the three remaining days, including today.

Miss Windsor Seeks Retrial Today of $75,000 Read Suit

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Motion for a new trial of the suit in which Claire Windsor was ordered to pay $75,000 on charges of alienating the affections of Mrs. Marian Y. Read's husband, Alfred C. Read Jr., will be argued tomorrow before Judge Sproul in the Superior court. Her attorneys will base their argument partly, they said, on affidavits filed subsequent to that trial. Read in these affidavits is portrayed as a man of many loves before he was under the spell of Miss Windsor.

CENTURY OF PROGRESS NOTES

Blanche Chapman Cornelius, composer-pianist, will be guest artist on another of the Illinois composers' series of programs in the Illinois Host house this afternoon at 4 o'clock. Susannah Armstrong, Ada Tilley Allen, and Belle Forbes Cutter are also to appear on the program.

Mrs. L. M. Alexander of Baldwin City, Kas., will be presented with a check for $10,000, the Pictorial Review-Dodd-Mead prize, for her first novel, "Candy," at a luncheon in the Federal building lounge at 12:30 p. m. today.

More than 13,000 passengers were brought to Chicago on 23 extra sections of regularly scheduled trains and specials yesterday by the New York Central lines. One train, arriving in nine sections over the Big Four from the southeast, brought 4,672 persons, the largest train ever run over the New York Central lines. Nine of the other sections were from New York and Boston. Practically all the passengers were bound for the Fair, officials of the road reported.

Carlos Davila, former president of Chile, made a informal visit to the Fair yesterday and spent several hours visiting exhibits. He will be officially received and given full military honors with a 21 gun salute on his arrival at noon today in the Court of Honor.

A Halloween party, including a barn dance, will be given tomorrow night in the Court of States. Free coffee and doughnuts will be served. The party will start at 7 p. m.

Observance of "I Was There" day at the Fair today will consist of free admissions at five concessions for wearers of buttons signifying attendance on Chicago day, Oct. 9. The concessions are the Sky Ride, the Enchanted island, "The World a Million Years Ago," Lama temple, and Fort Dearborn.

CLAIM VICTORY IN 'UNCLE TOM'S CABIN' ATTACK

Houston, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—United Daughters of the Confederacy claimed victory today in their attempt to force Uncle Tom and his cabin off the fall calendar of the Rice institute dramatic club.

Institute Thespians had already broken the ice for Little Eva's flight when Mrs. W. W. Turner of Webster, state president of the U. D. C., announced the 10,000 members of the state organization would oppose presentation of "Uncle Tom's Cabin."

"They won't give it," said Mrs. Turner. "I sent an emissary to school authorities today and got back the assurance the play will not be presented as scheduled."

Dean H. B. Wheeler of the Rice institute said, however, he had not been advised of any deviation from the program.

"I do not know what will be done," said the dean, "but I have an idea final disposition will be left entirely to the players, most of whom are southern born."

CELEBRATE 40TH ANNIVERSARY OF RUSSIAN CHURCH

The 40th anniversary of the consecration of the Russian Orthodox cathedral, 1121 North Leavitt street, was observed yesterday with colorful processions and services. Priests of the 35 parishes of the Russian church were led in the procession by Bishop Arenius of Canada, Bishop Benjamin of Pittsburgh and Archpriest Sergius Snegireff, pastor of the cathedral. The procession moved from the cathedral into a hall at Division and Noble streets, where the celebration was continued.

PLANE CRASHES HURL SEVEN TO THEIR DEATH

Three Stunt Flyers Are Killed in Texas.

Westboro, Mass., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Three men and a woman were crushed to death here today as their cabin air plane crashed on a farm near the Westboro airport. It was the second major airplane accident of the day. Three members of a flying circus were killed and another injured at Amarillo, Tex.

The dead at Westboro were:
OLIVER H. WALTON, 34, Needham, believed to have been the pilot.
CLARENCE E. BEATH, 25, Dedham.
GEORGE F. CHAPMAN, 35, instructor and pilot of the Westwood airport at Walpole.
MRS. RUTH M. WALTON, 34.

The plane was on its way from the Westwood airport to Worcester. William Snyder of Walpole, owner of the airport, said. Snyder identified the bodies shortly after the crash.

Watches the Plane Fall.

Albert Desjardin, manager of the Westboro airport and believed to have been one of the few eyewitnesses to the accident, said the plane passed over at an altitude of about 500 feet. Suddenly it seemed to waver, he said, then started to settle and crashed nose first.

The four trapped within the cabin met immediate death. The plane did not ignite.

Later the bodies of all four were removed to a local undertaker's establishment.

Planes Collide in Texas.

Amarillo, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Three members of an air circus troupe were killed and a fourth was hurt today. Two planes collided and fell into the business district. Those killed were:
EZRA WIGGINS of Hooker, Okla.
BILL TULLES of Woodward, Okla.
FRANK CLAY of Morrill, Neb.

Art Stude of Woodward, Okla., was injured when his ship plunged through the roof of a laundry. The three killed were in the second ship. That fell in a nearby street. The laundry is two blocks from a twelve story hotel.

The planes, two of four ships maneuvering above the city to advertise an air circus, collided in diving at paper streamers dropped by the pilot of another craft. Stude suffered fractures of one leg and an arm.

Eye Witness' Story.

Thousands saw the planes collide and fall. The scene was described by W. R. Rutherford, who watched them from a distance of three blocks. He said the collision was "so beautiful it seemed unreal."

"I saw the silver colored ship [that contained the three killed] cut the serpentine streamers and pass on out of view," Rutherford added. "The brown plane [Stude's] headed for the streamers. When it was only a short distance away the silver plane, cutting a small arc, appeared again, headed for the tape at the same altitude.

"They banked in opposite directions and the silver ship seemed to sidewipe the other just back of the right wing."

Other planes in the air at the time were piloted by Bobby Gunn and Delts McHue, both of Liberal, Kas.

Flyer Clear of Wreckage.

J. N. Vernon, owner, and Russell Fowler, manager of the laundry, were in the business office when the plane crashed through the roof. The plane was smashed into hundreds of pieces. Stude was thrown clear of the wreckage and was sitting against a wall of the building when Vernon and Fowler reached him. Physicians he would recover.

"I didn't see the other plane," Stude said. "I was hit from the right side. I tried to cut off my motor, but it was too late to do anything. I don't remember anything else until I was being picked up inside the laundry."

Wiggins and Stude each held transport licenses, their associates said. Stude was not a member of the barnstorming group, but was here to compete in the air stunts.

HOLD HEARING TODAY IN SUIT OF L. A. BUSBY'S WIDOW AGAINST BANK

Hearings on the petition of Mrs. Esther Busby for the removal of the First National bank as executor of the estate of her late husband, Leonard A. Busby, surface lines executive, and an accounting of the bank's administration of his fortune, will be resumed today before Probate Judge John F. O'Connell.

She filed the petition last spring charging that the bank had neglected to sell speculative securities in her husband's estate and that as a result his securities holdings of $1,598,000 had dwindled. She alleges that the bank's failure to act caused the net value of the estate, $500,000, to be wiped out.

After a long series of hearings during the spring and summer, Acting Probate Judge Harold J. Taylor ruled that the bank must produce evidence in court to prove that its management of the affairs of the estate were sound and based upon the bank officials' best judgment.

This ruling was considered a victory for Mrs. Busby, inasmuch as the attorneys for the bank filed a demurrer to the petition and asked that it be denied.

The evidence of today's hearing is expected to consist largely of market charts, and records of the securities committee of the bank. All the witnesses are expected to be produced by the bank.

BRITISH POLICE BATTLE ARABS AT HOLY CITY GATES

Disorders Grow; Rioters Fired Upon.

JERUSALEM, Oct. 29.—(AP)—British police battled twice against crowds of excited Arabs attempting to demonstrate against Jewish immigration at the gates of this cosmopolitan holy city.

At least two Moslems were reported killed in the second clash, making a total of 27 dead and more than 200 injured in the rioting in Palestine in the last two days. Besides two native policemen killed Friday, 18 British police have been injured, three seriously.

Indications today were that the Arab movement was spreading beyond the Holy Land with unconfirmed reports of demonstrations at Damascus, Syria, and Amman, the capital of Transjordan.

Police Fire on Rioters.

The first clash today was at the Damascus gate in the morning, and the second at the Jaffa gate this afternoon.

At the Jaffa gate the police fired on the rioters, a number of casualties resulting in the mob. The police said they did not use their guns at the Damascus gate, although they were fired upon by the Arabs.

After midday prayers in the restricted Moslem haram enclosure, Arab agitation increased in the old city. Crowds from the haram moved on the Jaffa gate and attempted to break through a police cordon.

Two Moslems Slain.

They threw stones at the police who fired shots and wielded batons to break up the demonstration. It was in this clash that two Moslems were killed.

Another disturbance occurred on a principal street this morning when Arabs compelled Jewish shops to close. An Englishman also was forced to close his store. The crowd dispersed, however, after one Jewish shop was smashed up.

All Arab shops and motorbusses are continuing the strike started two days ago.

A meeting of the Arab executive body passed a resolution protesting the firing by police at Jaffa Friday and demanding release of Arab prisoners. Appeals were directed to the league of nations and to Arab rulers. Meanwhile the British magistrate of the jail at Acre remanded all prisoners for 15 days.

GREEK JUDGES WEIGH EVIDENCE IN INSULL CASE

ATHENS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The judges of Samuel Insull's fight against extradition for trial in the United States on charges arising from the collapse of his Middle West Utilities, deliberated today what verdict they shall render next Tuesday afternoon.

They have been holding frequent private sessions since the hearing was finished Friday and are expected to announce their decision at 5 p. m. Tuesday.

Their sittings are to continue until the time of the verdict.

LINDBERGH TAKES WALK ON ROYAL HUNTING PATHS

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh strolled for two hours over the hunting paths of the old kings of France in Fontainebleau forest this afternoon. His walk followed a luncheon given by friends at Fontainebleau to him and Mrs. Lindbergh. Lindbergh's companions, Michael de Troyat and Dieudonne Coste, spent the morning at Les Mureaux, where the American flyer inspected his plane. Theodore Marriner, counsellor of the United States embassy, entertained them at dinner.

KEMAL PLEDGES TO SPREAD TURK CULTURE ABROAD

Satisfied with Present Land Boundaries.

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Mustafa Kemal, president of Turkey, told 100,000 auditors today that Turkey is dedicated to peace and satisfied with her present physical boundaries, but that, as the cradle of ancient civilizations, she is determined to spread her cultural boundaries far into Europe.

His speech was delivered at the smart Ankara race course, one of the prides of the new sports loving Turkey, on the first day of a three-day celebration of the tenth anniversary of the Turkish republic.

Soviet Generals Present.

Beside the Turkish president stood Klementi E. Voroshilov, commissar of war and marine of soviet Russia, who, with Gen. Budenny of the soviet army, came to Turkey especially for the celebration. They witnessed a review of 100,000 soldiers and civilians and the flight of 400 Turkish airplanes.

"Turkish people," declared President Kemal, "this is the great celebration of the tenth anniversary of our republic. I, as a Turkish citizen, am filled with joy at having attained this happy day.

"Our greatest accomplishment is the Turkish republic which the heroism and high culture of the Turkish people created, thanks to the nation's will and valorius army, but our task is unfinished. What we have done is insufficient.

Raise Turks to Great People.

"We will raise our fatherland to the ranks of the most prosperous and most civilized nations of the world with the speed of this age in which we live. We shall succeed because the Turkish people is lofty, industrious, and intelligent, and is led by the torch of positive science and by the love of fine arts.

"For 15 years you have heard my promises of success and I am happy that I never have failed to keep my promises. With the same faith, I here proclaim the world will recognize again that the Turkish people marching toward their ideal as a compact unit merits the title of a great nation."

U. S. PROFESSOR MAY GET NOBEL PRIZE IN PHYSICS

STOCKHOLM, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Percy Williams Bridgman of the Jefferson physical laboratory, Cambridge, Mass., and Prof. Auguste Piccard of Belgium, conqueror of the stratosphere, were reported today as likely candidates for the Nobel prize in physics.

The possibility has been mentioned of a double award, including the 1932 prize, which was reserved. The formal decision of the Swedish Academy of Science on nominees for the honor is expected early in November. Prof. Bridgman would be recognized for his experiments with the effect of high pressure on matter.

Dr. Bridgman, 51 years old, is Hollis professor of mathematics and natural philosophy at Harvard. He is a fellow of the American Academy of Art and Sciences and several other American scientific bodies.

PROF. TUGWELL DEFENDS NEW DEAL IN MONEY

Equality Dollar Is the Soundest, He Says.

Rexford G. Tugwell, who has been called "a top man in the brain trust," yesterday spoke on "sound money" at the opening of the ninth season of the Chicago Forum at 32 West Randolph street. Mr. Tugwell, a professor of economics at Columbia university and assistant secretary of agriculture, said that moderated retail prices, coupled with higher wages and farm incomes, would be necessary to rectify maladjustments in the economic system.

He declared that "sound money" is a phrase which means different things to different people. He held the soundest dollar to be that defined by President Roosevelt as one having substantial equality of purchasing and debt paying power from one generation to another.

"This is not what is meant by those who are coming forward as critics of the present program," said Prof. Tugwell. "They mean the old gold standard. And with it they mean a Shylock's collection from debtors, a collection in a form of money which can be stored away and made safe from the vicissitudes which beset less cautious or less lucky people.

Hits Islands of Safety.

"It seems to me a mistake to provide islands of safety in a changing world, to which some of us may retreat clutching certain sterile goods, and especially a mistake that this retreat should be particularly designed for the protection of the gains which are got from the sabotage of recovery."

The present crisis, said Prof. Tugwell, throws new light on some old theories. He said that possibly the most popular of all the theories of government now prevalent among business men is the one that in order to set things going again we must insure business a profit. Only with this assurance, he said, will they begin to borrow to expand their operations.

What is holding the country back, according to such men, Prof. Tugwell said, is uncertainty—uncertainty that goods made can be sold at a gain, uncertainty that these gains can be invested in further enterprises which will make further profits, ultimately to be salted down in bonds redeemable in gold.

Calls It Inflation Theory.

"The theory, it will be seen," he said, "demands the familiar program of deflation, reduced governmental budgets, low taxes, abandonment of the program of higher wages and farm income. It demands a declaration of intention to maintain at all costs past conception of a 'sound dollar.'

"All these demands, of course, are the familiar ingredients of orthodox governmental pronouncements before last March. The election was a mandate of repudiation. If it repudiated anything, it was the administration which lived by these attitudes. It seems to me that this was a thoroughly sensible mass revolution.

"And those people who would have us crawl back to the old ideas, like a wounded animal to an abandoned den, misread the temper of the people as well as the intelligence of the present government. We are trying to show that heaped up corporate surpluses and the overconcentration of wealth are not the life of trade, but the death of trade.

Larger Wages, Higher Prices.

"Incomes must be transformed into larger wages and higher prices to farmers, not simply stacked up in sterile hoards of capital if wealth in any large and gratifying sense is to breed again. If, I should like to ask, we guarantee profits, in the terms of their interpretation, to all business men, who is to buy the goods on which profits are made?

"It is elementary that purchasing power must equal retail prices if activity is to be maintained. This is not consistent with the kind of profits contemplated under the theory I have mentioned, and the kind to which many businesses are attempting to help themselves under the sheltering wings of our Blue Eagle.

"For when prospective buyers are lacking, this fact also is obvious to those who distribute credit.

Wages and Prices First.

"Nothing but higher wages and farm incomes, together with moderated retail prices, can redress the maladjustments which continue to exist in the structures of our prices. Profits will have to follow from new efficiencies.

"To put them first is to put the cart before the horse. In fact, the best guarantee of profits is capacity operation at low costs and prices. This involves the preservation of purchasing power, the conservation of markets."

Such a program, said Prof. Tugwell, may mean smaller earnings at first, but should insure their steady continuance. A change in monetary ideas, he added, may have its place in the new economy, but it cannot take the place of honest readjustment through the management of prices.

SCRAP LOCARNO PACT! BRITAIN IS URGED AT TWO MASSMEETINGS

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Demands that Great Britain repudiate the Locarno treaty and free herself from possible entanglement in a European war was registered tonight at two crowded public meetings.

A thousand persons gathered at the British Empire union and overwhelmingly voted in favor of a resolution calling on the government to declare "Great Britain's armed forces are no longer at the disposal of the league council to be used against a declared aggressor nation." The resolution favored the move because of altered circumstances in Europe. Only six persons voted against it.

Lord Beaverbrook at another gathering assailed the Locarno pact as "a treaty with the French against the Germans and Italians." He said it obliges Great Britain "at this moment to go to war and drive German troops out of German territory on the left bank of the Rhine." By a large majority the meeting voted against the pact of Locarno.

ROOSEVELT AID DETAILS WAY TO PROTEST PRICES

Explains How Complaints Will Be Handled.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Louis McHenry Howe, secretary to the President, in an address tonight told in detail the course to be followed by a consumer who feels that he is being "chiseled" by retailers operating under the NRA code.

The law, he said, made it very specific as to how much the prices could be raised under the code, and any one who went beyond such prices was subject to investigation and fine.

"In order that those feeling that they have been charged too much may know whether they have just cause for complaint," Mr. Howe said, "I am going to read that paragraph exactly as it is written.

Quotes Paragraph of Law.

"'No retailer shall increase the price of any merchandise sold after the effective date of this code over the prices existing June 1, 1933, by more than is made necessary by the amount of increases in production, operating, replacement, or invoice costs of merchandise, or by taxes or other costs resulting from action taken pursuant to the national industrial recovery act or the agricultural adjustment act since June 1, 1933, and in setting such price increases retailers shall give full weight to probable increases in sales volume. It is provided, however, that if any price on June 1, 1933, was a distress price, an equitable adjustment may be made.'"

Process Is Explained.

Explaining the process of making a complaint of an alleged overcharge, Mr. Howe said:

"This is what you do. You feel that you are charged 10 cents too much for a tooth brush as compared to what you paid before. You march down to the postoffice and say: 'Give me a blank.' They give you a blank, and you merely write on it something like this: 'I went into the such-and-such store yesterday. They charged me 60 cents for a tooth brush which last week cost only 50 cents. Please have this investigated.' You then march yourself back to the postoffice, hand in the complaint, and the machinery starts to move automotically and will never stop until it has run down the reason for this price increase, if it has to go clear up to the manufacturer himself before they find the answer.

Explanation Is Sought.

"Your complaint is forwarded directly to the man who sold the article with a request for an explanation. He should be able to explain within a limited time. If he says he has to raise the price because the wholesaler has been soaking him, the complaint goes to the wholesaler, who is asked to explain how he can justify the increase to the retailer. If the wholesaler claims that the manufacturer has boosted his prices, the complaint goes to the manufacturer and he must explain. But if any one of these, instead of passing the buck, gives some definite excuse—such as increase in wages, shorter hours, increase in number of employés, or something of that sort—then the complaint and answer go either to the local board directly investigating the storekeeper, the regional board investigating the wholesaler or to the general board dealing with the manufacturer, as the case may be. The proper board determines whether the explanation is valid or not. If it is a good one, the customer is notified why it happened. If it is not good, appropriate action is taken."

2 PUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS HINGE ON CONTRACTORS

Tax Warrants Offered in Part Payment.

Work on the outer drive bridge and the public school building program will be resumed this winter through grants of federal easy money if contractors can be persuaded to accept tax anticipation warrants in payment of a part of their bills, Public Works Administrator Harold L. Ickes indicated his approval of the link bridge project to Mayor Kelly in Washington on Friday, and the school board has taken the preliminary steps requested by the state advisory board of the PWA.

The Lincoln park and South park boards must reach an agreement with their contractors, however, before action can be taken on the application for a $6,000,000 government loan to complete the bridge at the mouth of the Chicago river, according to Joshua D'Esposito, chief engineer for the PWA advisory board in Illinois.

$750,000 Due Contractors.

More than $750,000 is due the contractors on old bills, and the plan is to offer them park tax warrants in lieu of cash to clean up the obligations. Another requirement laid down by the government is that it be relieved of any responsibility for old claims or additional ones that may result from an increase in costs of labor and materials since the bridge contracts were let.

More than 1,000 men could be put to work immediately on the bridge if the money is obtained, according to Hugh Young, chief engineer for the Chicago plan commission. The project was halted in January of 1932, because funds were exhausted.

School Board Plan Adopted.

The school board at a meeting last Wednesday adopted a resolution proposing completion of five schools on which work was stopped two years ago. This would be accomplished by getting an outright federal grant of $1,350,000, which is 30 per cent of the cost of labor and materials, and by distributing $4,500,000 in 1931, 1932, and 1933 tax warrants to contractors.

If this plan is successful it is regarded as certain that the new Lane Technical High school, the Senn High school addition, and the Steinmetz High school, upon which the most work has been done, will be completed. The school board will be guided by the recommendation of Supt. William J. Bogan in deciding what two other schools are most sorely needed to relieve congestion.

Fine Salt Lake Bootblack $10 for Sunday NRA Work

Salt Lake City, Utah, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Because he shined shoes on Sunday, Ed Terry, Salt Lake City bootblack, will have to pay a fine of $10—the equivalent of his receipts from 100 shines. Other bootblacks say Terry is guilty of unfair competition under their NRA code which prohibits shoe shining on Sunday.

Besides these winter hazards

there's also the risk of low resistance!

Many people are trying something new this year to help protect themselves against common winter ills.

They not only watch out for exposure. They not only try to avoid bad air and stuffiness indoors. They protect themselves against an inner hazard. The risk of low resistance!

This is a new idea in keeping with the times. Nothing, it seems, makes people more susceptible to illness than allowing their own physical forces to be depleted. Nothing unfits them quite as much for the unavoidable rigors of winter.

The reason for their condition may often be a lack of the important resistance-building factor—Vitamin A!

"Too little Vitamin A interferes with the ability of the body to resist disease," according to a learned physiologist. Perhaps it is an explanation for what is wrong with many people.

If so, they may repair the loss now! With an easy to take concentrate—Squibb Adex Tablets!

FEDERAL RELIEF CHIEF TO MEET ILLINOIS BOARD

Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, is to confer this morning with the Illinois Emergency Relief commission on the prospects for public charity work in this state next winter.

Upon the result of the conference, it is believed, will depend the position that Mr. Hopkins takes before the Illinois house of representatives at Springfield tomorrow. The house last week refused to pass the Graham bills covering the $30,000,000 relief bond issue program. It has been predicted that Mr. Hopkins will tell the legislators that unless Illinois keeps its promise to him to adopt this plan there will be no more federal aid for the state.

Mr. Hopkins was in Chicago Saturday and then went on to spend yesterday in Kansas City. After attending the campaign rally dinner of the 1933 mobilization for human needs at the Stevens hotel tonight he intends to take a midnight train for Springfield.

CHILD DIES FROM SCALDS.

Lawrence Fischer, 3 years old, 3637 Princeton avenue, died in the County hospital yesterday of burns received last Thursday when he fell into a tub of hot water being prepared for his bath.

STATES MUST DO THEIR PART, SAYS U. S. RELIEF CHIEF

Sees Million More Added to Charity Roll.

Kansas City, Mo., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Foreseeing that "we are going to start the winter with a million more families than were on relief a year ago at this time," Harry L. Hopkins, federal relief administrator, today said, very emphatically, "The needy idle are going to be taken care of this winter."

He told relief delegations of Iowa, Nebraska, Arkansas, Oklahoma, Missouri, and Kansas: "If we are to provide adequately the essentials of life, which is the chief motive of the federal emergency relief administration, all forms of government, local, state, and federal, must work together in contributing funds."

Task More Difficult.

"Although there wasn't anything said about it," Hopkins said, "last February and March there were 4,560,000 families, or something over 20,000,000 persons, on relief. It was an unprecedented circumstance. It need not be wondered at that few persons really have any idea of the extent of this destitution problem.

"As I see it, we are going to start the winter with a million more families than were on relief a year ago."

Hopkins estimated about 3,250,000 families were on relief rolls at the present time. During the five months the federal emergency relief administration has been in operation $218,000,000 has been allotted by the federal government to care for the needy, he said.

He noted that when new jobs open up most of them are filled at first by "self-sustaining idle who have never been on relief rolls."

Relief Cost Billion a Year.

"The idle relief bill of the nation, which is about one billion dollars a year, must be paid," he said. "This means that the need for private contributions is greater."

Appealing for each state to shoulder its responsibility, Hopkins termed it "absurd to herd people, most of whom are in no sense tramps or hobos, and shoo them across the state line at the point of a gun."

Explaining that the federal emergency relief administration is caring for 15,000,000 persons by two methods, direct relief and "work relief," Hopkins expressed a preference for the latter.

He said that when consideration is given the fact that the 15,000,000 are on a standard of living "based on as little as $15 a month to a family, no thoughtful person can say this money is being thrown away."

FOUND DEAD FROM GAS.

John Sidlow, 73 years old, was found dead of gas poisoning yesterday in his room at 311 West 19th street, apparently a suicide.

Proposal to Move Farmers, Laid to Ickes, Is Opposed

Beaver, Okla., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A suggestion attributed by members of the Oklahoma congressional delegation to Secretary Ickes that citizens of the drought stricken area of the Oklahoma panhandle be removed "to more arable lands" brought a storm of protest throughout this plains country today.

One leading citizen took the purported suggestion "either as a joke or the fantastical idea of one who is entirely ignorant of the possibilities of this great wheat growing area."

"Can't Be Pried Off."

"I have lived here thirty-two years and can't be pried off," said J. R. Beeman, Buffalo motor car dealer. "What we need is fair farm prices and a system of flood control."

The section includes Cimarron, Texas, Beaver, Woodward, and Harper counties.

Groups gathered on the streets of Beaver, Buffalo, Boise City, Guymon, and other towns today to discuss the comment of Gov. W. H. [Alfalfa Bill] Murray:

"As long as 5,000 National Guards can maintain quarters in Oklahoma they won't move one damn man out of this state."

Ickes Explains Matters.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Secretary Ickes smilingly assured residents of the northwest Oklahoma drought area today that he had no intention of trying to force them to move.

Representative Marland [Dem., Okla.] yesterday quoted the secretary as telling him the section should be turned back to the public domain, and a storm immediately arose.

Senator Thomas [Dem., Okla.] announced the state's congressional delegation would call on President Roosevelt for an explanation and from Oklahoma City came word that Gov. Murray had threatened to call out the National Guard if Ickes made any effort to move the 40,000 or more residents of the area.

The secretary explained that Marland came to see him yesterday asking that dam projects for the drought area be approved by the public works administration.

Suggests "Better Land."

"I told him," Ickes said, "that we could not approve them in the face of statements from the army engineers that they would not be feasible. However much we'd like to help, we simply can't take this money, which we are bound to spend for sound feasible work and spend it on work which the engineers flatly say would not be sound economically. He asked me then what could be done for those people and I told him the only thing I could see that really would help them permanently would be to provide better land for them.

"That submarginal land on which they are living promises no assurance of making continuous crops."

The secretary emphasized that his reference to turning poor land back to the public domain by offering farmers a chance at better acreage was merely an expression of opinion as to a policy he regarded as sound and did not imply that any such plan was in near prospect.

ADVERTISE IN THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE

SOUTH DOUBTS IF RUSSIA SHOULD BE RECOGNIZED

Admits NRA Aids Cotton, Lumber Industry.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Memphis, Tenn., Oct 29.—[Special.]—Doubt seems to pervade the south on the question of recognition of the soviet government of Russia. There prevails a widely expressed sentiment that, although recognition might bring some business to the United States, the long run effects would be to build up a competitor against American producers. In Atlanta, Birmingham, Jackson, Miss., and Memphis industrialists, bankers, and merchants talked with in the last week have taken an attitude of skepticism on the matter.

Leaders in the southern lumber industry have expressed the view that on the long run it might work injury to their business. They say they are not in competition with Russian markets now and they ask whether establishment of full trade relationships would mean that Russia would be enabled to get milling and logging machinery from the United States on credit and then proceed to dump low wage products from the sovietized forests. They express doubt as to whether the tariff could be hoisted high enough to give full protection to the American lumber industry.

Revolves Around Agriculture.

Another southern viewpoint revolves around agriculture. Bankers and agricultural economists have argued that one of the first items Russia would seek would be agricultural machinery and implements, probably on a credit basis. It might mean a temporary growth in the machinery industry, but they argued the effect would be to build Russia with American machinery as a competitor against the American farmer and his products. They point to the dumping of wheat by the soviets a few years ago on the world market at low price.

In Memphis business is reported as greatly improved. Cotton prices have been the great stimulant throughout the cotton states, and Memphis is the world's largest inland cotton market.

Evidence at points on this tour has shown the textile industry going full tilt and the cotton growers in better position than in years. Agriculture held men declare that the plantation owners are in better shape than in the last ten or twelve years, while the Negro tenant cotton worker is perhaps in better position than at any time in the last two decades, possibly since the civil war. These views may appear somewhat extreme, but one hears them everywhere expressed.

Cotton Pegged at 10 Cents Pound.

The 1933 crop is pegged at 10 cents to all effects by the loan program of the government. Nature was bountiful and, despite the plowup, gave a total cotton crop almost as large as in 1932. Average yield per acre ran high. Planters say that the cost of producing in many regions has not run over 3 to 4 cents a pound and at 10 cents the grower is on top of the world compared with where he has been in recent years, usually in the red.

Among planters there is difference of opinion as to what prices should be. Some organizations are yelling for 15 cent cotton. Some large planters, on the other hand, insist that 10 cents is a good price and that 15 cent cotton would cut down consumption of the staple.

In the lumber and woodworking industry a notable increase in employment is reported under NRA. But something still is lacking, and the mill men say that, although demand has been good, NRA has provided everything but the big mass consumer.

The advent of beer brought employment in the shape of barrel making. The cotton plowup checks and 10 cent cotton increased sales of wagons until in the recent weeks they have been the largest in several years.

The hardwood lumber mills in the southern and Appalachian sections, from West Virginia to Texas, some 3,500 mills in all, have organization headquarters here.

Wages were increased under the NRA codes to a minimum of 24 cents an hour for common labor in the southern hardwood mills and 28.5 cents an hour in the Appalachians. Other wages were stepped up.

Double Common Labor Wages.

The codes practically meant a double of common labor wages in the hardwood mills, for the 1932 average in the southern mills was 12½ cents an hour. This was the average last year. In some mills, under the depression and the competition for employment were as low as 5 cents an hour and even less.

The differentials in southern wages as against other regions are termed satisfactory by the industry. It costs less to live down here.

Zeppelin Nearing Azores on Trip Home

Headed for Seville

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Graf Zeppelin, returning to Germany after a visit to the Chicago World's Fair, reported to Radiomarine corporation at 11 a. m. today that she was approximately 1,300 miles east of Cape Hatteras, or more than half way to the Azores. The big dirigible left American shores at a point near Washington yesterday and headed toward Seville, Spain.

Police Arrest Cab Drivers in Face of Judge's Threat

In the face of threatened contempt of court action by Municipal Judge Eugene Holland, police continued their arrests yesterday of drivers for the Eagle Taxi company, 805 West Jackson boulevard, on charges of operating their cabs without city permits. Judge Holland, continuing the cases of several drivers last Friday, told police that he would hold them guilty of contempt of court if any more of the Eagle drivers were arrested before he disposed of the cases before him. Police Commissioner Allman ordered the arrests continued, however, and a dozen drivers had been arrested last evening.

JAP WAR CHIEF PLANS PARLEY OF NATIONS AT TOKIO

TOKIO, Oct. 30—[Monday.]—(AP)—Japanese newspapers gave prominence today to an interview in which Minister of War Sadao Araki said he will propose to the cabinet a plan for an international conference in Tokio of all the powers interested in far eastern questions.

The purpose of the conference would be "furthering world peace, especially through the solution of far eastern problems."

The conferees would include Japan, China, Manchukuo, Russia, the United States, Great Britain, France and Holland. The whole range of problems discussed at the Washington conference in 1921 would be included.

EXPERT FEES CUT $118,000 SINCE KELLY TOOK OATH

Mayor Keeps Up Pruning Started by Cermak.

The city has paid out for expert services in the five months under Mayor Kelly from May to September, inclusive, $118,810 less than was paid out during the corresponding period of 1932, according to the lists of payments by voucher submitted to the city council by City Clerk Brady. The payments during the two periods, respectively, were $123,785 and $242,595.

Under a former Republican mayor fees for the services of experts in some years aggregated in the neighborhood of $1,000,000. The late Mayor Cermak, after his induction into office in April, 1931, immediately started to prune the expert rolls. This work, according to the figures, has been carried forward by Mayor Kelly.

Saves $3,400,000 on Budget.

The reduction is in line with the mayor's orders for economical operation of the city's multiplicity of services and functions. The effect of his efforts to cut expenditures is shown in the recent estimate of City Controller Upham that the salvage in the 1933 city corporate budget of $47,883,051 will total approximately $3,400,000 by the end of the current year.

The period May to September, inclusive, was used for comparative purposes because the mayor took office on April 13 of this year and payments for October have not yet been totaled. The payments during the five corresponding months were as follows:

Month—	1933.	1932.
May	$ 12,328	$ 19,724
June	20,169	31,800
July	19,078	95,284
August	25,115	46,384
September	47,095	49,393
Totals	$123,785	$242,695

Nearly $40,000 to W. L. Fisher.

The high figure for September was caused by the payment of nearly $40,000, mostly in back pay, to Walter L. Fisher, special attorney for the council committee on local transportation. Other large fees were paid in the 1933 period to Dr. Miller McClintock, who has been engaged in traffic surveys for the council traffic committee; Attorney Francis X. Busch for past legal services; the Bemis company for work on the city's gas case, and to George A. Mason for legal services. The Chicago plan commission, also, was paid $10,000 during the 1933 period.

Texas-Pacific Rail Official Kills Self at New Orleans

New Orleans, La., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Thomas Jones Freeman, 73, central solicitor of the Texas and Pacific railroad, shot and killed himself today in his suite at the Desoto hotel, in the presence of his secretary, Henry Arnoult, and his valet, they reported to officers.

U. S. BANKRUPTCY INQUIRY OPENS IN CHICAGO TODAY

Will Seek Basis for Remedial Laws.

The congressional inquiry into receivership and bankruptcy practices in Chicago, for which more than 50 witnesses have been called, is scheduled to begin at 10 a. m. today in the United States courthouse.

Congressman Thomas D. McKeon of Oklahoma, chairman of the house judiciary subcommittee in charge of the investigation, and four other members —John C. Lehr of Michigan, Warren J. Duffy of Ohio, U. S. Guyer of Kansas, and William W. Hess of Ohio—are here for the hearings, which are expected to last at least a week.

Due to Study Bar Report.

Although Chairman McKeon said his subcommittee was "not going after any individuals," it is understood that one of the subjects of the investigation would be the report of the Chicago Bar association concerning receivership cases in Federal Judge Charles E. Woodward's court.

This report emphasized the frequency with which the law firm of Loucks, Eckert & Peterson was appointed counsel for receivers. In ten receivership and four bankruptcy cases, according to the bar association's report, this law firm, with which Harold C. Woodward, the judge's son, is associated, received $256,400.

To Seek Remedial Laws.

"We are interested in the general conditions surrounding the appointment of receivers and their attorneys," said Congressman McKeon. "We have had several complaints, but it will be necessary to determine their validity before calling the complainants. Our purpose is to investigate abuses and recommend remedial legislation to congress."

The first day's hearing will be in executive session, and beginning tomorrow the hearings will be public. George F. Cummerow, chief investigator for the committee, and a staff of assistants have gather a large volume of evidence for the committee.

RAILWAY DISPUTE STRAINS RUSSIAN TIES WITH JAPAN

Line in Chaos as Nations Exchange Charges.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HARBIN, Manchukuo, Oct. 7.—[By Mail.]—Since the arrest and imprisonment by Manchukuo of six soviet Russian officials, a state of anarchy prevails within the management of the Chinese Eastern railway. Four of the arrested men were chiefs of departments and two were the station masters at Manchuli and Pogranitchnaya, towns at the opposite terminals of the line.

[The railway was constructed jointly by the now defunct czarist and Russian empires. After Japan's seizure of Manchuria in 1931 Manchukuo assumed China's interest in operation of the road. Since June 26, this year, negotiations have been going on in Tokio for sale of Russia's interest to Manchukuo.]

Other Russians Appointed.

Conflicts within the management of the railway began at once when President Roody appointed other Russians to take the places of those arrested. Roody charged that the arrests were a political move to deprive Russia of its proprietary rights in the road, to deliver rolling stock into Manchukuan hands and to influence the Tokio conference. He asserted that although the arrested officials may be kept in prison for years, he will not allow others than soviet nationals to take their places.

On the Manchukuan side, Vice President Char Min Chge declared that under the railway's rules assistants must perform the duties of their temporarily absent superiors. Since the assistants are all of Manchukuan nationality, this would pass actual control of the road into Manchukuan hands. The day after Roody's order these assistants presented themselves at their former chiefs' offices. The newly appointed Russians refused to quit the premises, causing hot words on both sides.

Railway Thrown Into Chaos.

Thereafter clashes were numerous. A railway board meeting was balked when both sets of claimants attended and the Manchukuans pulled out in a huff. Minor officials will accept only orders signed by both sides or by the side they favor. Soviet functionaries gave an order to stop all messages signed by the Manchukuan assistants. When Chan Min Chge sent a telegram to prevent the Roody appointees from taking up his duties at Manchuli, the message was stopped at one of the way stations.

Soviet employes of the financial department locked the office of their chief, who had been arrested, impounding documents and tying up the work of the department. Manchukuan workmen forced the door. These incidents go on without number and traffic moves at a snail's pace.

HISTORY OF LINE.

From the Russo-Japanese war (1904-'05) the Chinese Eastern railway has been a football in a triangular battle between Russia, China, and Japan. The road is a short cut from the Siberian border at Manchuli to the Russian Pacific seaport Vladivostok.

Originally the road was a joint enterprise of the czarist and Chinese empires before both disappeared. The czar spent $215,000,000 in building the line.

American claims for soviet debts even figure in the squabble over the road. Part of the credits to the unsuccessful Kerensky régime were for 124 locomotives delivered to the road in 1919.

Then in 1924 the Peiping-Mukden agreements were signed in which the C. E. R. was supposed to revert to China gratis in 1956 and at any time before that year the Chinese republic was given the right to buy the road from Moscow.

On Sept. 18, 1931, Japan began its Manchurian excursion, in which Manchukuo was set up in the guise of an independent state. Manchukuans replaced the Chinese guards riding the trains.

Russia Offers to Sell.

Brigands frequently tore up tracks and robbed trains. Soviet employes were frequently arrested and their conationals in retaliation committed numerous acts of sabotage. Russia began drawing locomotives—the same bought from America and not paid for—and freight cars to the Russian side. The Japanese protested. The connection at Manchuli was broken.

After that here is a chronological order of developments this year:

MAY 2—The soviet foreign commissar, Maxim Litvinov, proposed to the Japanese ambassador at Moscow, Tamekichi Ohta, that purchase and operation of the line by either Japan or Manchukuo would be the best method of settling the dispute.

China's Rights Voided.

MAY 5—Japan asked Russia to a conference at Tokio of Japanese, soviet and Manchukuan delegates.

MAY 11—Litvinov told the Chinese nationalist government its rights in the road are void, because of "non-accomplishment of its obligations for 18 months. Japan was in control of Manchuria during this period.

MAY 14—Nanking protested Russia's disregard of the Peiping-Mukden agreements.

MAY 29—Japan turned down Moscow's proposal that Japan buy the railroad, and countered that Manchukuo was ready to buy.

JUNE 26—Conference began in Tokio with much emphasis on Japanese-Russian relations and power in the Pacific. The Japanese-Manchukuan tactics were to let Moscow make an offer and counter with a lower one, with the ultimate price expected to be less than one-tenth of the construction cost.

Charges Fly Back and Forth.

SEPT. 22—Moscow charged that Japan intended to disregard Russia's rights in the railway, making the soviet manager of the road dependent on a Manchurian assistant. Moscow charged Japan was procrastinating in the negotiations while preparing for a forcible seizure of the property.

OCT. 9—Moscow made public three documents of Sept. 4 and 9 from Gen. Takashi Hishikari, Japanese commander in Manchukuo, to Tokio telling of conferences among high Japanese officials in Manchukuo for exerting pressure on Tokio negotiations. The alleged plans included the arrest of six responsible soviet officials of the railroad (by Oct. 9 already in confinement) in furtherance of what the soviets charge was a Japanese plot to gradually deprive the Russians of power in the management.

OCT. 10—Moscow papers said Japan was thus shown as the true ruler of Manchukuo. Tokio called the documents fabrications.

Russian Writer Grilled.

OCT. 11—Vladimir Nagi, Russian Tass agency correspondent in Tokio, questioned by the foreign office. He distributed copies of the documents to leading Japanese editors after Rengo, Japanese news agency, had refused to circulate them.

OCT. 12—Two more arrests of soviet railway officials made by Manchukuan police.

OCT. 15—Japan sent more troops to Harbin, Changchun, and Mukden, ostensibly to ward off a bandit drive. Previously some infantry companies had been moved to strengthen the garrison at Pogranitchnaya.

170 PRINCES SET UP NEW RULE IN INNER MONGOLIA

PEIPING, Oct. 29.—(AP)—One hundred seventy Mongolian princes, attired in resplendent saffron and maroon ceremonial dress, formed a new autonomous government of inner Mongolia at Pailing Miao today. Their officials will receive no monetary salaries but will be paid in sheep, the staff of life in Mongolia.

Their ceremonials were reminiscent of the Genghis Khan period of Mongolia when the great warrior extended his empire to the edges of the known world. The buildings of the new government, however, will consist of 100 yurts [tents] pitched around the "pool of heaven" at Tienchih.

CHINA'S DICTATOR KEEPS FINANCE POST IN FAMILY

One Brother-in-Law Succeeds Another.

BY JOHN POWELL.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SHANGHAI, Oct. 29.—Within the brief period of 30 minutes at extraordinary meetings of the National government central political committee and the Kuomintang [People's party] central executive committee this morning, Generalissimo Chiang Kai-shek accepted the resignation of his brother-in-law, T. V. Soong, from the concurrent posts of finance minister and vice chairman of the political council. Dr. H. H. Kung, another brother-in-law, was appointed finance minister.

[Mei-ling Soong is the wife of Marshal Chiang. Her elder sisters are Mrs. Sun Yat-sen and Mrs. H. H. Kung. Their brothers are T. V., T. L. and T. N. Soong.]

Immediately following the meetings Marshal Chiang and his wife boarded a tri-motored plane and returned to Kiangsi province, where Chiang's war against the communists is in progress.

Soong's Aid Sought.

Premier Wang Ching-wei expressed hope that Soong would retain membership in the National Economic council [an activity similar to the American NRA]. The council has charge of the administration of the American RFC $50,000,000 wheat and cotton loan as well as China's arrangement for technical assistance from the league of nations designed to speed up China's economic, financial and industrial reconstruction.

Soong, as well as Chinese newspapers are silent about today's stirring developments which placed Marshal Chiang, already considered a dictator, more firmly in control of the National government. Premier Wang Ching-wei admitted considerable anxiety regarding the financial outlook since the government is facing a monthly deficit of 10,000,000 silver [about $3,334,000]. He doubted whether an immediate solution is possible.

A Japanese statement published here tonight forecast fundamental changes in Chinese domestic and foreign policies following Soong's resignation, since Soong has been the chief stumbling block to Sino-Japanese reconciliation.

Cotton and Wheat Problem.

The Japanese also said that Chinese officials and businessmen are perplexed over the question of disposal of the American cotton and wheat which is stored in warehouses in Shanghai with more arriving by every steamer. This leads to the expectation that the Japanese are preparing to offer to purchase the stocks, thereby relieving Nanking of the present financial stringency.

A report from Peiping states that China has decided to reëstablish direct railway communication between Peiping, Tientsin and Manchukuo.

Labor Leaders Demand More Concessions.

[Copyright: 1933: By the New York Times.]

HAVANA, Oct. 30 (Monday).—Three bombs were exploded last night in the downtown district of Havana. One burst at 11:15 at the headquarters of the clerk association known as Centrodependientes on the Prado. It did little damage. Another exploded at 11:20 and struck a street car near the water front, causing great alarm but no casualties. At midnight a large bomb exploded at Rambla Bouza, an important Spanish printing firm. Massive mahogany doors were destroyed, grillwork blown out, and windows shattered in this as well as adjacent buildings. No injuries were reported.

BY GUSTAVO RENO.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

HAVANA, Cuba, Oct. 29.—President Grau San Martin's government moved to block the general strike called by the Cuban Federation of Labor, to become effective at midnight tonight, by decreeing the release of more than 1,000 persons arrested during the recent drive against syndicalism and communism.

It was believed in official circles that the government action, announced by Secretary of Interior Guiteras, would check the walkout. Labor leaders, however, indicated that they would hold out for fulfillment of other demands, including recognition by the government of the right of labor to organize and strike and indemnification for confiscated labor organization property.

See Strike Partially Checked.

It was felt in some quarters that the strike would go into effect only partially as a result of the release of the labor prisoners.

Railroad strikers have been drafting a new railroad code and it is expected the government will change existing laws to comply with the code.

Havana faces the prospect of traveling without pleasure cars and motor buses when the present supply of gasoline in filling stations is exhausted. Deliveries were halted today by a strike of employés of the leading companies.

First Woman Mayor.

Cuba is to have its first woman mayor in the person of Miss Elsa Azcuy, daughter of a political enemy of former President Gerardo Machado. Her father was assassinated in 1931. The decree making Miss Ascuy mayor awaits Grau's signature. She will be mayor of Consolacion del Norte in Pinar del Rio province, and is slated to take office within a few days.

Members of several feminist organizations consider the appointment a signal triumph for their cause. Several woman's suffrage groups have already decided to nominate women for political posts in the next general elections.

ROBBERS RAID RECTORY; HOLD SIX PRISONERS

Gang Threatens Priests and Takes $1,500.

Five swaggering bandits invaded the rectory of St. Columbanus Roman Catholic church at 831 East 71st street last night, held Msgr. D. P. O'Brien, two priests, a woman parishioner, and two housekeepers prisoners for an hour. After ransacking the house the robbers escaped with $1,000 in cash and a $500 diamond ring.

During their captivity the clergymen and their fellow victims were compelled to lie on the floor. The priests risked death by refusing to reveal the hiding place of the church's money. The gunmen finally found the money after a thorough search.

Gang Rounds Up Prisoners.

It was shortly after the dinner hour when the robbers appeared at the rectory. The Rev. Francis Mulligan opened the door. The bandits rushed in, two of them carrying sawed off shotguns and the three others brandishing revolvers. One of the men guarded Father Mulligan, and the others went through the house to take other prisoners.

In a few moments they returned with Msgr. O'Brien, pastor of the church; the Rev. David Riordon, Mrs. Clara Noonan, 7430 Michigan avenue, a parishioner, and Mary Dillon and Norah McGrath, housekeepers. All were forced to the floor.

"We want the collection money, where is it?" demanded one of the robbers. Msgr. O'Brien remained silent as did Fathers Riordon and Mulligan.

Start Search of Rectory.

The bandits then began a search of the first floor. Meanwhile, the priests reported later, the robbers spoke in a foreign language which the priests could not identify. Unable to find the money, the robbers again asked where it was hidden, this time threatening to shoot unless the information was forthcoming. The priests did not answer.

Two of the gunmen then went to the second floor. They searched all rooms thoroughly and finally found the money in a bag in Father Mulligan's room. Then they returned to the first floor and for good measure took a $500 ring from Mrs. Noonan. After they left, Grand Crossing police were notified, and Sergt. William Keith began working on the case.

WAR VETERAN KILLED BY TRAIN.

DAIRYMEN ARM TO ESCORT THEIR TRUCKS OF MILK

Prepare to Meet Strike Schedule Tomorrow.

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Dairymen who twice this year have seen their business thrown into confusion by strikes, today grimly determined to market their milk with the aid of shotguns if necessary at a meeting of the Fox River Valley Milk Producedş' association at Appleton. This was the significant feature of the various preparations being made throughout the state for the strike, which is scheduled to start Tuesday morning.

The only violence reported in the state was at Van Dyne, where kerosene was dumped into the vats of two Winnebago county cheese factories today by a group of about 25 farm holiday sympathizers said to be from outside the county. Doors of the John Pfeiffer factory and a cooperative plant were broken in and curd and cheese destroyed while the proprietors looked on.

No Manitowac Deliveries.

Manitowac was without milk deliveries today, but dairies had left double portions yesterday with a notice that future deliveries would be irregular. The White House condensary there continued closed. It is the largest in the world. About 500 picketers are strung along the roads in Manitowoc county and thirty deputy sheriffs, but there was no sign of a clash.

Six hundred pickets who used tree limbs in blocking highways had control of the roads at Osseo in Trempealeau county today.

At the Appleton meeting the Milk Producers' association addressed petitions to the government, the sheriff, and the district attorney demanding that the roads be kept open. There were strong expressions against the strike by many of the 300 members, all of whom are successful producers of milk who believe that no problems can be solved by the destruction of valuable food.

To Arm Themselves.

If authorities should fail to heed the petitions, the farmers pledged themselves to arm with shotguns and revolvers and escort every milk truck throgh any obstructions.

Observers said that this group, which grew out of the previous two strikes, represents the sentiments of most of the actual milk producers elsewhere in the state. Awed by threats, perhaps, this class of farmers has not as yet been organized to "strike back at the strikers."

Middle West Farmers Await Action of Governors Today

BY PAUL POTTER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Des Moines, Ia., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Middle west farmers who two weeks ago lost patience with federal and state administrations in their efforts to check declines in farm prices and resorted to highway picketing today were sitting back anxiously in their barnyards awaiting the outcome of a conference of governors of farm states called by Gov. Clyde Herring of Iowa here tomorrow.

During the week what had threatened to become a serious menace to the peaceful marketing of the nation's fall harvest of foodstuffs was halted by the promises of the governors and by emergency declarations of aid proffered by President Roosevelt and his farm administrators. Promised that their corn will not sell for 15 cents a bushel and their hogs for 3 cents a pound, the farmers now are trying to see how much more they can persuade the government into promising toward cash that will stall off the sheriff and pressing creditors.

Looking for More.

State executives who arrived here tonight for the Herring meeting appeared to have more in the way of hopes of added relief being waggled from Washington than actual aid from state agencies. At least half a dozen remedial measures are under consideration, and all of them depend largely upon federal action.

Corn belt farmers are heartened to some extent by the loans on their corn crop to come from Uncle Sam in the next two weeks. They are not satisfied that the loans will guarantee about 80 cents a bushel in Iowa for No. 3 and No. 4 grade corn, which last winter sold as low as 9 and 10 cents. They are not satisfied that Secretary Wallace emulated the tactics of Hugh Johnson of the NRA and "cracked down" on the meat packers this week to elicit a promise of "cooperation" in getting higher hog and cattle prices this winter.

These and the measures to be started here Tuesday for reducing the 1934 corn plantings by the AAA still seem to Iowa farmers, if comments heard here are a criterion, merely to offer encouragement to ask for more tangible relief.

Talk of Silver Money.

One proposal is that the government refinance farm indebtedness at 1½ per cent instead of 4½ and 5 per cent. Another is that the federal government and various states call a moratorium on all collections from farmers and to demand a halt on farm evictions no matter what conditions are involved.

Still a third, and perhaps the most drastic, is a plea that the governors ask for a remonetization of U. S. currency on a silver basis. The farm organizations advancing this plea take the position that until farm products can be exported the nation will continue in a furrow of depression, but that silver money would at once open foreign avenues for American farm products.

It was not held likely here that the governors would give much consideration to this form of inflation in view of the recently introduced experimentation with gold price fixing in Washington.

Those who tonight indicated they would attend the governor parley include Govs. Tom Berry, South Dakota; Floyd Olson, Minnesota; A. G. Schmedeman, Wisconsin; William Langer, North Dakota; Clyde Herring, Iowa; Lieut. Gov. M. Clifford Townsend, Indiana, and Thomas S. Allen, brother-inlaw of Gov. Charles Bryan of Nebraska.

No Word from Horner.

Representatives are being sent by Gov. Miriam Ferguson of Texas, Gov. William Murray of Oklahoma, and the governor of Missouri. No word has come yet from Gov. Horner of Illinois as to participation.

The first steps in organizing the AAA corn-hog limitation campaign in Iowa are to start here Tuesday. A committee of five, headed by Ralph Moyer, Fairfield, is to have charge of organizing farmers in each county of the state to sign up contracts to reduce corn acreage and pork output in 1934 and 1935. The AAA loan on existing corn supplies held on farms and in licensed warehouses at 4 per cent is to be the means of getting cash to the farmers who agree to reduce acreage at once, since the regular benefit payments would not be made until midwinter.

JUDGE WILL CALL CHIEF ALLMAN TO WAR ON GAMBLERS

Judge Thomas A. Green of the Felony court announced yesterday that he would call Police Commissioner Allman before him this morning in an effort to launch a vagrancy drive against syndicate gamblers.

"I have information that gambling is being carried on with the knowledge of police captains," said Judge Green. "I am going to tell the police commissioner that I will issue criminal reputation warrants for any syndicate gambler that his men may name and I find that any police captains or politicians are violating the law I'll issue vagrancy warrants for their arrest."

Judge Green said he wasn't interested in small card games and hand books, but the large gambling houses operated by the syndicate. He intimated that gangsters were running the syndicate gambling under the protection of the police.

STATE HUSKING CONTEST WILL BE HELD FRIDAY

World's Record Holder Will Compete.

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—V. M. Hudson of Anchor will be McLean county's representative in the state corn husking contest which will be held on the —Herman Moews' farm near Granville, Ill., in Putnam county, Friday. Hudson won the McLean county contest by husking 31.52 bushels in 80 minutes.

Other county winners who will compete for the state title held by Carl Seiler of Knox county are: John Copelin of Chatham, Sangamon county, 33.5 bushels; Ed Ghys of Toulon, Stark county, 28.32 bushels; Harold Winebright of Monmouth, Warren county, 33.8 bushels; Thomas Murphy of Bowling township, Rock Island county, 32.44 bushels; Simon Oltman of El Paso, Woodford county, 28.2 bushels, and Edward Sheeler of Dunlap, Peoria county, 26.1 bushels.

Holds World's Record.

Seiler, the defending state champion, also holds the world's record of 36.9 bushels husked in 80 minutes. He accomplished that feat last year in the national meet held in Henry county. His world record was at least partly due to the excellent stand of hybrid corn in the contest field. Even at this early date it is safe to predict that his world's record will be untouched when the coming season is ended. It is doubtful if corn of anywhere similar quality can be found this year, considering such adverse factors as drouth, chinch bugs and hail.

The state meet this year will be contested in a field of hybrid yellow corn planted and cultivated especially for the event. The field will average close to 70 bushels per acre. A heavy August wind flattened some of the corn, which may cause trouble for the huskers.

The state contest is being held farther north this year than any time previously in an effort to interest northern Illinois counties, which have not previously qualified many entrants. Granville is a few miles south of Spring valley.

Nears Husking Record.

Logansport, Ind., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—By shucking 36.5 bushels of corn to qualify as the White county entrant in the state corn shucking contest, Paul Cain 26, came within four-tenths of a bushel of the championship mark of the world.

BUSINESS MEN FIGHT CHANGE IN STREET NAME

Protests against changing the name of Crawford avenue to Pulaski road were voiced yesterday at a meeting of the Garfield Park Business Men's association in the Midwest Athletic club. George P. Madigan and Louis P. Guyon were selected to head an organization of west side citizens who will fight the proposed change.

It was charged at the meeting that the movement for a new name originated so quickly that taxpayers along Crawford avenue, who will be affected by the change, had no opportunity to protest. It was also argued that the change would cost business men along the 22 mile thoroughfare large sums by destroying past advertising.

The city council committee on streets and alleys has already reported favorably on the new name.

Paraguay Drives Bolivians Back in Gran Chaco Battles

ASUNCION, Paraguay, Oct. 29.—(AP)—An official communique announced today that Paraguayan forces were driving simultaneously against various sectors of the battle front in the Gran Chaco after destroying various Bolivian fortifications between Pirizal and Nanawa yesterday. In these actions, according to the communique, the Paraguayans obtained important war material.

Steady Smokers turn to Camels

"I know of no sport," says Erich Hagenlocher, "that places a greater strain on the nerves than tournament billiards. The slightest inaccuracy, the most fractional miscalculation can ruin an important run. If I were asked to give one simple rule for success, I should say, 'Watch your nerves!' BAPTISTS, ENDING CENTURY, VIEW PAST AND FUTURE

A. W. Beaven, E. J. Goodspeed Are Speakers.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

A century of Baptist progress in Illinois was officially brought to a close and a new century opened at centennial services yesterday afternoon at the University of Chicago chapel. The service also marked the closing of the 98th session of the Illinois State convention of that denomination. The centenary of the organization of the First Baptist church of Chicago was celebrated two weeks ago.

At yesterday's service the 1,500 delegates from the 17 Baptist associations of the state were given glimpses of Baptist figures of the past century by Prof. Edgar J. Goodspeed, of the University of Chicago. President Albert W. Beavan of the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America gave a vision of future religion as perceived through the present veil of "religious disillusionment."

Foresees Religious Renewal.

"We are not yet in a period of religious revival," Dr. Beavan said, "but forces are at work which show promise of a religious renewal which will be influential in shaping the coming century."

Dr. Goodspeed paid tribute to Charles Walker, one of the founders of Chicago who was active in church and educational enterprises. Mr. Walker, he said, not only was the first man to ship grain out of Chicago and the first president of the Chicago Board of Trade, but also was responsible for the founding of the old Chicago university which later became the foundation for the present University of Chicago.

"It was Charles Walker who at a dinner about 1856 heard Stephen A. Douglas say that he was prepared to give a site of 10 acres to any denomination that would undertake to establish a university in Chicago," Dr. Goodspeed recalled. He then said that Mr. Walker arose and told Douglas that he would accept the offer on behalf of the Baptists of Chicago.

Founders of Y. M. and Y. W. C. A.

The founding of both the Y. M. C. A. and Y. W. C. A. in Chicago was the result of Baptist leadership, Dr. Goodspeed pointed out. He said the former was the outgrowth of the Young Men's Religious Improvement society founded at the First Baptist church by Andrew MacLeish and James Goodman. The Y. W. C. A. was founded by Mrs. Leander Stone, of the First church in 1880, Dr. Goodspeed added.

Prof. Goodspeed spoke not only of the pride held by Baptists in founding of the University of Chicago, but also of the reward felt by the entire Northern Baptist convention in voluntarily relinquishing all privilege in its control after the university had been carried to its triumphant success.

"It must never be forgotten that we Baptists, in the very nature of our profession, are not building an institution, but serving a cause," Dr. Goodspeed added.

The Rev. Dr. Austin K. de Blois, of Philadelphia, a former Chicagoan, paid high tribute to present Baptist leadership at the service.

COUNTY HOSPITAL ENDING GREATEST YEAR OF SERVICE

More Patients than Ever and Reduced Costs.

The county hospital, known throughout the world as the largest institution of its kind, is concluding its greatest year of service to the community. When the fiscal year ends on Dec. 1, Warden Michael Zimmer estimated yesterday, 67,800 patients will have been treated in the hospital's wards during twelve months.

In the corresponding period of 1932 the patients numbered 63,018. The daily average of patients in 1933 has been 2,646. The hospital was built to accommodate a maximum of 2,300 patients a day. Additional accommodations were provided by rearranging beds and placing them in the halls.

Economy Reduces Costs.

In spite of the increase in service the practice of rigid economy has reduced the cost of the hospital to taxpayers, said Peter M. Kelly, chairman of the county board's hospital committee. In 1930, before the present board took office, the hospital budget was $2,799,215 for 50,064 patients, or a daily average of 2,239. The budget for 1933 has been $2,599,397, or $200,000 less.

The per capita cost of treating patients has also dropped. In 1920 when the total number of patients was 26,626—a daily average of 1,235—the per capita cost was $2.55. Today, with the number of patients two and one-half times greater, the per capita cost is $2.51.

In the fiscal year of 1933, Warden Zimmer estimated, 9,500 major operations will have been performed. In 1932 the number was 8,800. In 1933, according to further estimates, 4,850 babies will have been born in the hospital or one out of every ten babies born in the county during the year.

Lowest Cost in City.

The per capita cost of caring for patients in the county hospital is lower than that of any hospital in the city. This was illustrated early in the year when it was thought the institution would have to send some patients to other hospitals because of lack of accommodations. Bids were asked from other hospitals. The lowest bid received was $3.75 a day per patient.

The work of the hospital has been accomplished with 130 attending doctors, 130 associates, 93 internes and 31 resident physicians. None of these receive compensation and only the internes and resident physicians receive their meals.

"It is of the utmost importance to the community that the county hospital should not suffer from the non-payment of taxes or decreases in taxes," said County Commissioner Kelly. "There should be no reduction in its budget as an increase in service is anticipated for 1934.

Essential Public Service.

"I have frequently heard and seen statements that the police, fire and health departments should not be curtailed in any way. I believe that the county hospital is giving as great and as important a service to the county as any of these departments and, therefore, should be classed with them.

"Out of 14,500 persons who underwent major and minor operations performed in the county hospital during the year, 50 per cent got employment after their treatment. If these had not had the operations they would have been on relief rolls supported by the money of taxpayers."

Beg Your Pardon

An Associated Press dispatch from Washington, D. C., under date of Oct. 18, which appeared in THE TRIBUNE, credited Alfred M. Best & Co., insurance reporters, with the statement that "strikingly large salaries are now being paid to life insurance heads." A. Dexter Best, vice president of the company, asserts that his company said that "the salaries paid the heads of large life insurance companies are thoroughly earned, and that they represent an exceedingly small portion of the policy holders' premiums."

4 ARE CHARGED WITH SLAYING IN POLITICAL FEUD

Edinburg, Tex., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Four men were charged with murder today and two of them with conspiracy to murder in the killing of Claude E. Kelley, 31, who was beaten to death with a hatchet as he slept in the home of Ed Couch, political leader of Hidalgo county, the night of March 18, 1931.

The state asserts Kelley was a victim of mistaken identity and that the killers planned the death of Couch, a banker and Hidalgo county judge.

Murder charges were filed against Cam Hill, former Hidalgo county clerk, now a resident of El Paso; George C. Beck, a peddler; Julian Ybarra, 54, Edinburg street sweeper, and Matio Cuellar, 33.

The complaints before Justice of the Peace J. Loy Ramsour also charge Hill and Beck with conspiracy to kill Couch, for whom the town of Edcouch, in the lower Rio Grande valley, was named.

Kelley, Couch's son-in-law, was killed as he slept in a room usually occupied by Couch, which the father-in-law had given up while Kelley was his guest.

THE TRIBUNE'S PLATFORM FOR CHICAGO

1. Cut taxes in half.
2. Pay the defaulted bonds.
3. Overcome crime.
4. Speed up railroad passenger service.
5. Make Chicago the first city in the world.

"The newspaper is an institution developed by civilization to present the news of the day, to foster commerce and industry, to inform and mold public opinion, and to furnish that check upon government which no constitution has ever been able to provide."

ON THE WAY UP.

At the head of this column appears daily THE TRIBUNE'S Platform for Chicago, a declaration of objectives which THE TRIBUNE believes are worthy of special emphasis and effort. The list changes from time to time as conditions change and the need for emphasis changes. The idea of a platform of purposes initiated by THE TRIBUNE has been widely approved and adopted by many American newspapers. It has helped to make newspaper policy and public opinion more consistent and effective.

Of the present TRIBUNE platform for Chicago it is timely to consider results. The review, we think, is encouraging. There has been progress toward each objective.

Objective No. 1 is: Cut taxes in half. In spite of conditions more complex and obstructive than the city has ever had to deal with, substantial progress toward this objective has been made through a reduction of taxes by about 27 per cent. For all governments in the city of Chicago the tax extensions have been reduced as follows:

1931	227,000,000
1932 [estimated]	182,000,000

The 1932 reduction is estimated from the reduction of real estate assessments recently announced by Assessor J. L. Jacobs.

Objective No. 2 is: Pay the defaulted bonds. The situation is far from satisfactory, but there is progress. Some of the governments are paying interest defaulted some time this year or last, but Cook county, the west parks board, the forest preserves and the sanitary district are still in default. On the other hand, Chicago [the municipality], the board of education, the Lincoln park board and the south parks are not.

Objective No. 3 is: Overcome crime. This is a distant objective; if taken literally, Utopian. But organized crime in recent years, and notably during the unhappy experiment of prohibition, has reached an abnormal condition and this we must break by special effort. Chicago, perhaps because it has been advertised without justice or proportion as a crime ridden community, but even more because of the initiative and vigor of its civic character, has taken the lead in the fight on organized crime and is today further advanced than any other great city, we say confidently, in the understanding of the problem of organized criminality and in progress toward its solution.

The effort has waxed and waned, but in the last few years it has broken new ground and we believe has found a firmer footing. This latest phase began with the campaign in 1930, when the crime commission published its list of leading lights of the underworld as public enemies and the interrelations of corrupt politics with the criminal machine began to be exposed. At the same time the administration of the police and of the courts was subjected to effective criticism in the light of the new knowledge of criminal methods. Federal agencies entered the field effectually and local agencies were energized. Perhaps more important, the public began a course of enlightenment and began to know what it was all about. Last August a new drive began on a line deplorably neglected in the past—namely: to accelerate criminal trials and thus establish speedy justice, an essential of effective law enforcement. Public spirited judges volunteered for service in the criminal courts, the prosecuting agencies and police were substantially improved, the clearing up of the criminal calendar began, several murderers have received the extreme penalty and others have been given life sentences. Results have not always been satisfactory, conditions have not been fully corrected. There is much still to be done for the improvement of procedure, of substantive law and of the personnel of law enforcement agencies. But the campaign is on and progress is being accomplished.

Objective No. 4 is: Speed up railroad passenger service. The railways have made substantial progress in improving their passenger schedules. Prior to September, 1929, the New York Central and the Pennsylvania operated one twenty hour train each between New York and Chicago. All other trains were operated on schedules slower than twenty-one hours. An extra fare was collected on all trains making the trip in less than twenty-eight hours. In 1932 extra fares were abolished on all trains except the Century and Broadway, which were stepped up to a schedule of seventeen hours and forty-five minutes. In addition, service to New York is now available on five other Pennsylvania trains and four other New York Central trains at approximately twenty hours' running time.

To Washington a full hour has been cut from the schedules of the Capitol and Liberty Limiteds.

To the Pacific coast the best time available during and after the war was on the Overland Limited at sixty-nine hours. This has since been reduced to sixty-one hours. An even better record has been made by the Santa Fé to southern California, where schedules of eighty-four hours were formerly in force. The extra fare Chief now makes the trip in fifty-six hours.

But a few years ago a passenger was obliged to leave Montreal at 9 o'clock in the morning in order to arrive at Chicago the following morning, but now he can remain until 3 p. m., as the International Limited makes the trip in eighteen hours.

These are outstanding improvements, but there have been many more of lesser importance to Chicago citizens, and the railways seem to have been thoroughly awakened to the necessity of speed, as indicated by experimental trains ordered by the Burlington, Union Pacific, Cotton Belt, and other roads.

Objective No. 5 is: Make Chicago the first city in the world. An ambitious aim, arrogant and impossible in the view of other cities, but not to the loyal Chicagoan or to the mind that weighs without prejudice the conditions which make great cities. In the heart of a great continent, the richest in natural resources on earth, at the crossways of its vital channels of transport, in the midst of a vast population whose industry, intelligence and character are unsurpassed among peoples, Chicago has grown in one century from a handful of frontier huts to be in population the second city of the nation and the fourth in the world. Economically and socially, we of Chicago at least are confident, our march has only begun and will in due time place us at the front. In our foreground are many difficulties, but they are less than in its past the community has overcome, and there is today the same will to conquer as brought our forbears through their troubles in triumph. If we have suffered grievous wounds and are entangled in past errors, the city is bravely dealing with them and gradually clearing them out of its path. Other great cities are likewise enmeshed. New York, our chief rival, is in worse case than Chicago. Its finances are in a deplorable condition. In spite of the fact that its revenues were being reduced each year its expenditures were increased each year. The proposed budget for 1934 there is less than five millions under last year's peak budget of $514,000,000. The mayor in desperation had a tax scheme drawn and passed which would have driven its greatest industry into another state, and even if all had been collected which was assumed would be it would not have been enough. The city would long since have gone into the hands of receivers had it not been that the city owed the banks so much that the banks there could not stand the loss which would have followed the decline of the bonds of a bankrupt city.

Let us take heart in the midst of our doubts and tribulations. The fundamentals of success are in our hands and Chicago, heart of the nation's strength, is leading the way forward.

THE BOOTLEGGER WITHOUT PROHIBITION.

The problem of liquor law administration without prohibition is to get rid of the creature of prohibition, the bootlegger. He means lawlessness. He was explained by the fact that national prohibition as conceived and enforced was intemperate. Its restrictions were not enforceable, but evasion created lawlessness. The prohibition era was unequaled for that, and for many persons it probably was the deciding factor against continuance under the eighteenth amendment.

State control without national interference is supposed to contain opportunity to find the middle way. National prohibition presented moral questions. State control will add revenue questions to them. The states are unlikely to count public morals and interests out of the problem, but they are bound to bring the revenue issue in. The original bootlegger was an excise dodger. He was a smuggler and tax dodger. He'll come back as such if the liquor regulations deal with the questions of price and procurability in such a way as to encourage evasions.

The middle road seeks control without repression. By it there is an endeavor to minimize evils without putting the individual under restraints which he resents and against which he rebels.

Editorial of the Day

CHANGING DREAMS INTO LAWS MAY PRODUCE NIGHTMARES.

[Waterloo, Ia., Courier.]

There is an old saw to the effect that excessive kindness is not conducive to the good health of the recipient. A practical example of the way in which a superabundance of governmental benevolence may react to the disadvantage of the people governed is provided by the Tugwell bill, proposed as a substitute for the food and drug act of 1906.

Prof. Tugwell, one of President Roosevelt's few remaining "brain trusters," visions a Utopia in which there would be no need for medicine closets. In fact, if his suggestions incorporated in the Tugwell bill were to be approved by congress there would be no need for a drug store—at least that part of the drug store where pharmaceuticals are dispensed.

The complete Tugwell bill would fill approximately six or seven pages of the average standard magazine. One writer has observed that to give a fair and careful analysis of all its provisions "would require the combined efforts of six Philadelphia lawyers and an equal number of horse traders." The following quotation, however, provides a sample of one of its dangerous phases:

> Section 9.—[a] An advertisement of a food, drug, or cosmetic shall be deemed to be false if in any particular it is untrue, or by ambiguity or inference creates a misleading impression regarding such food, drug, or cosmetic.

Even the layman can discern that those words "ambiguity or inference" are packed with dynamite, particularly when the interpretation of their meaning is left to the discretion of one man or a governmental bureau.

The Tugwell bill provides that:

> . . . an advertisement of a drug shall be deemed to be false if it includes the name of any disease for which the drug is not a specific cure, but is a palliative, and fails to state with equal prominence and in immediate connection with such name that the drug is not a cure for such disease.

In view of the fact that physicians are generally agreed that there is no drug or no combination of drugs which can give a cure in 100 per cent of any number of cases considered, this provision tends to disclose the real intent of the law—to prohibit self-diagnosis and self-medication.

It is conservatively estimated that with strict enforcement of this law and a practical elimination of drug advertising, fully 30,000 drug stores would be closed within a short period of time. Ramifications of the law would affect wholesale drug houses, manufacturers of pharmaceuticals, foods, and cosmetics, to say nothing of manufacturers of glass, boxes, and tin cans.

Shakespeare observed that "The quality of mercy is not strain'd," but he reckoned without the quality of the mercy dispensed in the Tugwell bill. In this case it's not only strained, it's taut—taut enough to threaten a barrier to circulation of the life blood of an important American industry.

A BAD SIGN.

Dick—Doesn't it madden you when a girl is slow about getting ready to go out to dinner with you?

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line, let the quips fall where they may.

"HOW USE," as Mr. Shakespeare says, "doth breed a habit in a man!" There was a sham battle in honor of Navy Day at the World's Fair Friday. As the cannon, machine guns, and small arms began a terrific fusillade, over a thousand men within hearing distance on Michigan avenue and adjoining streets threw up their hands and shouted: "Don't shoot! It's in my right hand trousers pocket!"

HYPOCRISY should go out with the 18th amendment and so, in considering likker control, why not exercise a gentle restraining influence over the man who always started an era of ill feeling when he lifted up his big voice that could be heard distinctly three blocks on a clear day and proclaimed to one and all: "I can either take it or leave it alone." And then he would drink three whiskies neat one after the other.

And so a great many of us feel that the word raging is becoming quite a bit of a bore. Why not drop it for a while and, instead of our great and good men running around raging, substitute synonyms or equivalent expressions. Thus: "Gen. Johnson Feels Deeply Indignant at the Federal Farm Board"; Henry Ford Thinks NRA Is Rude and Uncalled For," and "McKee Declares La Guardia Is Simply Horrid."

LET US WHITE COLLAR WORKERS try to get something out of the AAA before the farmers get it all. The AAA buys the farmers' grain and little piggies, and pays him liberally for plowing under his wheat and cotton and everything except his whiskers, his automobile, and his radio. We white collar boys must get in on this. Let us offer to plow our white collars under if the AAA will fork over some of that easy money. They may not think white collars are as important as cotton or wheat or little piggies. But, gosh! AAA, have a heart. White collars are all we white collar lads have. Come on, kick in!

SIBYL.

She dealt in futures for a coin,
Purchased days to be,
Pretender of an unknown page
Of dark Futurity.

The wolf came to her door at times,
She read the stars for bread,
Stacked the cards, then shuffled them,
To know what Fortune said.

I passed that Sibyl's house today,
Her blinds were closely drawn,
A crêpe was waving in the breeze
As winds stirred in the dawn.

The power to vision things to come
She may have well possessed,
The time of Death upon her stair,
Remained to her unguessed.

How to Keep Well By Dr. W. A. Evans

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnoses or prescribe for individual disease.

ENCEPHALITIS—A LAST WORD.

THE indications are that nothing of great practical value will come out of the investigation of encephalitis now going on at St. Louis—that is, nothing that will help in that epidemic. It is hoped that the investigations will lay foundations on which something of practical value may be developed before another season.

There are a few minor practical points, however. The best diagnostic laboratory procedure is lumbar puncture with examination of the cerebrospinal fluid, chemically and microscopically. Another laboratory procedure that helps in diagnosis is a blood examination, particularly a count of the number of white corpuscles and the proportions of the different kinds. Examination of the cerebrospinal fluid and the blood does not always help in diagnosis, but it often does.

That we are very much in need of some better tests for the disease is plain. Many of the cases have been called intestinal influenza. Still more of them were called typhoid fever. Some were mistaken for malaria. Probably most of the cases are mild and entirely escaped diagnosis, the disorder being called almost anything. The chances are that the majority of the mild cases were never seen by physicians, being regarded as minor complaints. Since there is no muscle wasting and very little after effects, even in the bad cases, the mild cases that escape diagnosis have not been revealed by the after effects, as happens so frequently in poliomyelitis.

Good nursing and taking care of symptoms that demanded relief are about the only medical treatment that has accomplished anything in this epidemic. Some physicians report results from repeated spinal puncture, with consequent drainage of cerebrospinal fluid and decrease of pressure on the brain and spinal cord.

Some report good results from transfusion. However, not many of the cases have the appearance of being toxic, and unless this appearance is present there is little indication for transfusion.

Most of those stricken by the disease have been well along in years. Therefore, many of them have chronic Bright's disease, chronic heart disease, high blood pressure, diabetes, prostate and bladder troubles, or other organic diseases which prevail among elderly people. The addition of a severe, acute infection such as that of epidemic encephalitis to the load of disease or disorder which they have previously carried has been too much for many of them. Physicians in attendance on cases of encephalitis have had to devote attention to the organs which were crippled before the infection took place.

No one has perfected an antitoxin, serum, or specific of any value. And there is no vaccine that can be used as a preventive or as a cure.

As the epidemic progressed there was increasing evidence that the disease was mildly contagious. There were a few reports of more than one case in a family, a household, an institution, or a business group. There was evidence that the disease spread from one area to another. The conviction grows that carriers, missed cases, and convalescents are chiefly responsible for the spread of the disease. But there is no evidence that a rigid quarantine, complete isolation of the case, or interference with traffic, commerce, travel, or transportation accomplish anything worth while.

THEY ARE NOT CORRECT.

C. E. C. writes:

1. I have been informed that grape juice, even when diluted in great quantities of water, will kill the germs of typhoid fever in a few minutes.
2. Also that pineapple juice will digest the albumin of egg.
3. And that lemon and orange juice contain these same properties, only in a weaker degree.

Are these statements correct?

REPLY.

No.

ROLLER SKATING.

D. G. writes: I feel that I am in need of more exercise, and a friend tells me that roller skating is a healthful pastime. Do you think it is too strenuous?

REPLY.

Roller skating is wholesome exercise, especially if done in the open air. Some rinks are poorly ventilated. It is not too strenuous for you unless you have some organic disease that breaks down your endurance and wind.

COLOR BLIND.

J. E. L. writes: I can tell some colors, but others I cannot distinguish.

1. Would you say I was color blind?
2. Why is this?
3. What is the remedy?

REPLY.

1. Yes. You are color blind for certain colors.
2. Probably you were born that way.
3. There is none.

CUPOLA REMOVED.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—[Friend of the People.]—I have written the building commissioner regarding the dangerous condition of a cupola on top of a building on Jackson boulevard. This evening one of my roomers was coming home and a piece of slate fell, striking him on the back. Will you kindly see what can be done to remove this danger?

F. M. F.

The cupola referred to as being in dangerous condition has been removed by orders of this department. JOHN E. ERICSSON, Commissioner of Buildings.

MISDEMEANOR OR FELONY!

Chicago, Oct. 25.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Recently some one has been breaking into our garage, breaking the lock and causing damage to the cars. Although the garage is wired and we get an alarm when some one breaks in, the distance from the home to the garage is such that they escape before we can get them. They have made repeated visits. A says that if some one stayed in the garage (armed), which seems to be the only way to get them, it would be premeditated murder. B says that that is the only means of getting them and he would not have to stand trial. Who is right? C. G.

Sec. 62 of the article on "Arrest" in 5 Corpus Juris, provides: When Arresting for Misdemeanor. Except in self-defense an officer has no right to proceed to the extremity of shedding blood in arresting, or in preventing the escape of one whom he has arrested, for an offense less than felony, even though the offender cannot be taken otherwise."

FRIEND OF THE FARMER

[Inquiries on problems of farm management, financing or governmental regulations sent to this department must be accompanied by a stamped, addressed envelope for reply.]

A. W. K. asks: What affliction do grapevines have when the leaves turn yellow to brown during the early summer and the grapes do not develop?

Answer: Your description of the trouble with grapes is not very specific, but we suspect that the trouble was caused by a disease called black rot. This causes the grapes to become shriveled, the leaves to turn yellow and curl up.

You should cut out and destroy by burning all of the sections of the vines which were affected this past season. During the growing season the black rot can be controlled by spraying with bordeaux mixture of a strength known as 4-4-50. In dry seasons the spray should be applied just before the blossoms open, immediately after the blossoms fall and when the grapes are the size of a pea. In wet seasons two other sprays are advised, one early in the season when the shoots are 8 to 10 inches long, and a final spray just as the berries begin to touch in the clusters.

W. C. R. asks: I understand that in view of possible dairy production control programs the government has tested out feeding practices to determine how much effect less feed has on milk production. Have any results been announced?

Answer: The United States bureau of dairy industry tested milk production of cows in three lots which were fed [1] a full grain ration, including one pound of grain to every three pounds of milk produced; [2] limited grain ration of one pound of grain to every six pounds of milk; [3] a ration of roughage without grain. The results were that in the third type of feed lots the cows produced about 70 per cent as much milk as when on a full grain ration, and that in the limited grain ration there was about 93 per cent as much milk produced.

NRA Question Box

Following are typical questions occasioned by the national recovery act and their answers as given by the Chicago recovery council which is aiding President Roosevelt's economic rehabilitation movement here:

Q.—How many codes have been signed by the President to date?

A.—Seventy-one.

Q.—What are the minimum wages for workers in restaurants?

A.—The minimum hourly wage under the President's reëmployment agreement, which applies to restaurants flying the Blue Eagle, is 28 cents an hour for any type of restaurant worker.

Q.—What are the maximum hours for workers in restaurants?

A.—The maximum hours for women workers are 48 per week. For men, 54 per week.

Q.—May workers be employed on a part time basis in restaurants or must a full week's work with a full week's salary be guaranteed under the NRA?

A.—Workers may be employed on a part time basis at a rate of 28 cents an hour. Neither a full week's salary nor a full week's work must be guaranteed.

Q.—Is there a code for the restaurant industry?

A.—The code for the restaurant industry has not been approved to date. All restaurants who are flying the Blue Eagle are operating under a modified form of the President's reëmployment agreement.

PHANTASIA.

Elmhurst, Ill., Oct. 27.—John G. Citizen was killed last night just west of Elmhurst on route 64 as he was driving with his wife. He was shot by an AAA agent, who suspected that he was bootlegging milk. At an inquiry by the AAA department this morning the milk enforcement detail claimed that Citizen disregarded orders to stop and that the agent then fired, first in the air and then at the tires. Citizen was shot in the back.

When searched, the automobile was found to contain two quarts of milk which Mrs. Citizen claimed she was taking to her small children. She denied that the enforcement officers signaled them to stop; she claims they fired without warning. Citizens of Elmhurst are somewhat incensed at the killing, which is the fourth to take place in the vicinity.

At the downtown office of the AAA it was said that an especial effort is being made to stamp out illegal traffic in milk in the western suburbs. Officials said, however, that the shooting was not altogether justified, and that the enforcement detail had been disciplined.

Further information was refused, but unofficially it was said that the agent who fired the shots [whose name was not disclosed] had been laid off ten days without pay, and the officer in charge, William Sniffensnoop, a former prohibition agent, had been transferred to Milwaukee. INDIVIDUALIST.

STARTING SOMETHING!

Chicago, Oct. 27.—Inasmuch as our city fathers will be called upon in the next few days to decide on the renaming of some of our streets, may I make an additional suggestion? How about renaming Maxwell street? My suggestion is "Hitler lane." JOHN MARTIN.

THE INDEX DOLLAR.

St. Joseph, Mich., Oct. 26.—When Prof. Fisher proposed the index dollar to President Roosevelt he referred to the even level of commodity prices in Sweden. Sweden is a country of limited natural resources, whereas we can produce far beyond our needs. As commodity prices are maintained in the United States the index of production will increase and the dollar will have to be depressed proportionately, i. e.: more and cheaper dollars to absorb the production.

The holders of gold stocks may hesitate to exchange their product for a paper dollar of intangible value. This, too, may be another factor to hasten the devaluation of the dollar. E. S.

TOUGH DAYS BEFORE.

Lancaster, Wis., Oct. 26.—This country ran for 150 years by the efforts of the people. Even in the toughest days of the '90s [and they were "tough"] no one had any idea that the government had to keep them. If the country runs again, and we believe it will if it is not hopelessly in debt and bureaucratized, it will be by the efforts of the people themselves. A. L. SHERMAN.

THE SUCKER STATE.

Chicago, Oct. 21.—I note with interest the replies to Mrs. Smith's query; that of G. E. Dudenbostel most nearly presents the true reason. However, a small correction is in order. My grandfather emigrated from Pennsylvania to Illinois via covered wagon many years ago, settling near what is now the town of Streator.

The early settlers, on account of surface water, did not need to dig for water on the Illinois prairies, nor as Mr. Dudenbostel states, ram sticks or canes into the soft soil, for the holes were already there. The water was sucked from holes made by that lobster-like equivalent of the fresh water lakes, the crawfish, which to this day leaves similar holes in low or marshy land over the entire middle west, but is particularly prevalent in Illinois. Hence the application "sucker" was applied as a nickname to those settling on the Illinois prairies.

Mrs. Smith may obtain verification from authentic sources from any of the older settlers around Streator, Grand Ridge, or other Illinois prairie towns of early days.

The other stories are myths. I have been in many parts of the world and all over the old U. S. A. and desire to state that the sons and daughters of old Illinois, call them as you may, when it comes to mentality and average sense, are nobody's "suckers." OSCAR RENSHAW.

Quincy, Ill., Oct. 21.—Mrs. Walter M. Smith wanted to know the origin of the nickname "sucker" as applied to the people of Illinois, and three correspondents each gave a different explanation.

The New International Encyclopedia, published by Dodd, Mead & Co., says that the name was given to the pioneers of Illinois "because in early days the miners returned from 'up river' at the season when the sucker migrated. The term was first used in 1833."

I presume that, in view of the source of the information, it may be accepted as authoritative. Illinois is also called the Prairie state. SUCKER.

Chicago, Oct. 18.—Under date of Oct. 11 Mrs. Walter Smith asks, "Why is Illinois called the 'Sucker State'?" The answer to this one is easy. Because the people elect gentlemen to office that stay awake nights in Springfield devising new ways to tax the "suckers" of our great state. HUGH DURKIN.

SALES TAX RECEIPTS.

Chicago, Oct. 26.—As a storekeeper and monthly payer of the 2 per cent emergency relief tax on sales, I must request some information. In your paper of Oct. 26 you state that R. J. Dunham, chairman of the Illinois Emergency Relief commission, predicted that unless the emergency relief measures before the state congress were passed there would be a termination of all relief measures by Nov. 15. No mention is made of the enormous sums received monthly from all the stores. In heaven's name, what becomes of this large sum, and why is that not even mentioned when funds for relief are spoken of? PEARL F. KISS.

OUR SECRET AMBITION

SOVIETS ACCUSE ROOSEVELT OF PLOTTING A WAR

Charge He Is Seeking to Enslave the Workers.

BY DONALD DAY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 29.—President Roosevelt's administration is accused of plotting a new imperialistic war by the Moscow trade union international, whose latest instructions to American Reds on how to sabotage the Roosevelt program were published in THE TRIBUNE Friday.

A complete copy of this report is now in possession of THE TRIBUNE Baltic bureau. The report officially passed the soviet state censorship shortly before the letters between Presidents Roosevelt and Kalinin appeared in the Moscow press and was published two days after the appearance of the notes by the printing plant of the Krestianskaia Gazeta—Peasants' Gazette—in Moscow.

The report, which consists of more than 6,000 words analyzes present economic conditions in the United States. It bitterly attacks Mr. Roosevelt, denouncing him as a so-called benefactor of the American working class and as a Socialist.

Predicts Program's Collapse.

Prevailing conditions in America's basic industries are exhaustively treated. The report mentions that while iron and steel production has increased, steel consuming industries, such as building construction, fail to show analogous increases.

This subsidiary of the Moscow Communist Internationale predicts the collapse of the President's program and gives detailed orders to various revolutionary organizations in the United States as to how to increase their activites and promote class warfare and revoltuion in America.

Discussing the organization and recruiting of labor under the leadership of army officers and coupling this with the increased navy building program, the report alleges that the Roosevelt administration has organized labor into military camps and is taking gigantic steps toward preparation of a new war.

Just who America is going to fight was not mentioned by the trade union internationale, which claims that the United States is going to declare war against somebody in order to enable government control of the increasingly restless working class.

Charges Workers Are Enslaved.

"Mr. Roosevelt's so-called strike moratorium and formation of arbitration boards to prevent industrial conflicts are to prevent workers from arming themselves against such an enterprise," continues the report. "It is now absolutely clear that Mr. Roosevelt's program to combat the depression is really an attack against the working class in America. All his laws and decrees reveal that he is trying to transfer the burden of the crisis upon the backs of workers through the introduction of Fascist methods in the United States.

"Behind the administration's program is concealed an ambition to hasten the development of Fascism in America to enslave further the workers."

Alleging that at the end of August 400,000 workers were striking in America, equaling the record established during the depression of 1919-1922, the report continues:

"Most of these strikes were spontaneous. Some are being led by the American Federation of Labor but it is noteworthy that a number have been called under a leadership which is seeking to destroy the authority of the American Federation.

See "Revolutionary Front."

"Development of industrial conflicts under the efficient leadership of the Trade Union Unity League [another Moscow organization launched in America in 1929] is rapidly leading toward the formation of a united revolutionary front in America. The influence of our organizations are increasing."

Mentioning the various methods which the administration is using to prevent the development of conflicts in industry, the report quotes Gen. Hugo Johnson, "duce" of the NRA, as calling upon the striking miners of Pennsylvania to "return to work in the name of God and his American understudy, Roosevelt."

The report, which is one of the longest documents the Communist internationale has published concerning America, also says:

"There were some delays on the part of our revolutionary organizations in properly estimating Mr. Roosevelt's program but now they have formulated their counter program and are developing revolutionary activities intensively. Instigation of the masses to open fights and the developing of strikes against the administration's measures are the chief points of this program."

An Official Document.

By being passed by the official soviet government censorship, the report of the Red trade union internationale becomes an official soviet government document, which furnishes additional proof to observers that Moscow is meddling in America's internal affairs.

Stefan Brodowski, newly appointed soviet minister to Latvia, yesterday held a reception for the Lettish press. Answering a question as to American recognition of soviet Russia, he said that although Moscow hopes for recognition his government will not make sacrifices, such as settling old debts, in exchange for the opening of diplomatic relations. Brodowski arrived from Moscow Wednesday and is familiar with the latest developments at the Moscow foreign office.

LITVINOV ELUDES EFFORTS TO TRACE HIS ROUTE TO U. S.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 29.—The soviet embassy in Berlin today insisted that Foreign Commissar Maxim Litvinov, now on his way to Washington, D. C., from Moscow, had motored to Frankfurt-am-Main. This would enable him to reach Paris tomorrow. It would also permit him to go to Genoa to accept the invitation of the Italian government to travel on an Italian liner.

Fails to Appear in Paris.

PARIS, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Maxim Litvinov, commissar for foreign affairs of soviet Russia, failed to appear in Paris this morning. A large crowd, waiting at the north station for him to arrive from Berlin, which he left yesterday, was disappointed.

French passport officials said he had not crossed the frontier from Germany.

96 Polish Miners Stay in Pit; Begin Hunger Strike

WARSAW, Poland, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Ninety-six miners in the oil field district of Boryslaw remained below ground today as a protest against reduction of the number of workers. They descended the shaft yesterday and declared they would go on a hunger strike against the decision of their employers to cut the working staff.

CHARMING SETTING FOR CHIPPENDALE —AND A STRICTLY MODERN SURPRISE

A cheerful version of the traditional Chippendale spirit is afforded by this bedroom with its warm colors. The walls are painted a soft shade of yellow; the drapery fabric is a yellow crepe, white floral patterned, and the wooden cornice, painted white to match the transparent material of the glass curtains, repeats the Chippendale motif of the chest. The latter, like the bed, night table and side chair, has a light brown old English mahogany finish. The lowboy at the left of the bed, also of mahogany, is a very tricky piece—it is a cedar chest disguised as dressing table. The bedspread is of a pale turquoise blue taffeta, trimmed with piping of plum color, and is very plainly tailored. The lamp has a base made of crystal balls and its yellow shade has plum color trimming. The seat of the side chair is upholstered in a turquoise blue and plum color striped fabric. Plain yellow carpeting complements the walls and gives cheerful spaciousness.

URGES CAPITAL PUNISHMENT TO REDUCE KILLINGS

Death Penalty Deterrent to Murder: Chamberlin.

Capital punishment rigorously enforced is the one deterrent to murder, writes Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, in the November issue of the Rotarian. In an accompanying article Clarence Darrow asserts that no sentences of death should ever be inflicted for any crime.

"Abolition of the death penalty for murder in the United States usually has been for short periods, followed by restoration when the rate rose," writes Col. Chamberlin. "Murder in France increased 68 per cent after abolition of the death penalty, and the guillotine was restored in 1909.

"Illinois has a statute providing capital punishment for murder. The same statute also provides that the sentence may be from 14 years to life imprisonment.

In 1921 there were 190 murders in the county and during the same period 225 defendants were arraigned on murder charges. There were 55 convictions and 46 were sentenced to the penitentiary, one to the reformatory, and only six were sentenced to hang. In other words, in a county which includes about half the voting population of the state, less than 3 per cent of all murders convicted that year suffered capital punishment.

"In 1919 the murder record of Cook county was 330. In 1920 the Chicago crime commission was instrumental in organizing a campaign against murder. That year there were 20 convictions carrying the death penalty. Eighteen of these men were executed. The murder rate dropped 51 per cent.

"The importance of the death penalty for murder lies in the fact that it has proved to be a deterrent. It is a service to society, a protection of the group against the individual not influenced by the laws of God or man."

Capital BrokerFound Dead; Bullet Wound Proves Fatal

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—William T. Mann, 33, Washington broker, was found dead today at his home here. He died of a bullet wound. Police said, after an investigation, that he had suffered financial reverses. Mann, who was socially prominent in Washington, was a son of the late Isaac T. Mann, a leading West Virginia coal operator.

Bomb Carriers Go on Trial Today After 25 Continuances

Following a long series of delays, including 25 court continuances, William Palermo and James Catuara, alleged henchmen of James [King of the Bombers] Belcastro, are scheduled to go to trial today before Judge Charles P. Molthrop in the Criminal court. They are charged with transporting a bomb. In granting the 25th continuance Judge Molthrop set the case for trial as soon as other matters on his call were concluded. These matters were disposed of last week.

Palermo and Catuara were seized by a police squad at Sangamon and Lake streets on April 18. In their car was a seven stick dynamite bomb. It was the first time in years, police said, that any bombers had been caught with explosives in their possession.

The case was presented to the grand jury immediately to forestall a writ of habeas corpus. The men were indicated on April 21 on charges of compounding explosives and transporting explosives on a public highway.

Engage Attorney Short.

After the indictment was returned the defendants hired Attorney Benedict J. Short, veteran criminal lawyer, and began to run up their record of 25 continuances. They were released on $50,000 bonds each, two weeks after the indictment. The record of the case is as follows:

APRIL 21—Indicted.
MAY 3—Case continued by order of court to May 4 by Judge Prystalski.
MAY 4—Motion of defendants case continued to May 9 by Judge Prystalski.
MAY 9—Case assigned to Judge Lynch and a motion to quash filed and continued to May 22.
MAY 22—Motion to quash continued to May 26.
MAY 29—Motion to quash continued to June 2.
JUNE 2—On motion to quash continued to June 8.
JUNE 8—Motion to quash continued to June 13.
JUNE 13—On motion by state, case held on call.
JUNE 23—On motion by state, continued to June 29.
JULY 7—Continued to July 14.
JULY 14—Continued to July 28
AUG. 11—Continued by agreement to Aug. 25.
JULY 28—Case transferred from Judge Lynch to Judge Molthrop and continued on motion of defense to Aug. 11.
AUG. 25—Motion to suppress evidence filed and continued to Aug. 31.
AUG 31—Motion continued to Sept. 8.
SEPT. 8—Continued by agreement to Sept. 15.

The state at this time decided to get a new indictment to correct so-called technical errors and it was returned by the grand jury on Sept. 11. The new indictment was placed on Judge Molthrop's call. The court record then shows the following entries:

SEPT. 15—Continued to Sept. 22.
SEPT. 22—Motion to quash new indictment denied and case continued to Sept. 29.
SEPT. 29—Case continued to Oct. 16.
OCT. 16—Held on call for trial by order of court.
OCT. 26—Held on call for trial by order of court.

When the case came before Judge Molthrop on Oct. 16, Assistant State's Attorney Richard Regan asked for a continuance in behalf of the state. He said that Assistant State's Attorney Mal Coghlan, who was to try the case, was then engaged in the Scheck murder trial. Judge Molthrop reluctantly granted an extension, but said he would order the case to trial when he disposed of some pressing matters. He said that if Coghlan was not ready some one would have to act as prosecutor.

Heads Court Call.

The case is set for the head of the court call for today. Prosecutor Coghlan finished the Scheck trial Saturday.

Chief Justice Philip L. Sullivan announced yesterday that he would look up the court records and insist that all pending cases of a serious nature be tried at once. Judge Sullivan said the crime war is progressing satisfactorily and that statistics show the judges are gradually cutting down the number of pending indictments. If they continue at the present pace, he said, speedy trials should be assured in all criminal cases by Jan. 1.

Several of the judges have expressed a desire to return to civil practice, but the chief justice said he would demand other judges to take their places.

"We are just beginning to get some place and the extra judges should stay on the job until we have cleaned up the calendars," said the chief justice.

Newsboy Insurance Group Celebrates Its 40th Year

Forty years of sickness and death benefits for the 600 newsboys of its membership was celebrated last night by the St. Vito Fraternal Aid association with a dinner in the main dining room of the Knickerbocker hotel. The organization was formed in 1893 by a group of seventeen newsboys. It was later incorporated as an insurance organization under state laws and has provided for hundreds of its members in time of need.

WEST PARK BOARD FACES CONTEMPT CITATION TODAY

Whether the West park commissioners unwarrantedly discharged Bernard F. Burgeson, a concrete construction foreman, or let him go as a step in an economy program, will be decided today by Judge Charles A. Williams in the Superior court. President Harry Joseph and the other members of the park board have been cited in contempt proceedings for discharging Burgeson last March.

The contempt citations were issued Oct. 20. At that time Judge Williams told the commissioners "to explain why Burgeson was fired or be prepared to go to jail." The citations were issued on the petition of Burgeson's attorney, Michael Ryan, who charged that the commissioners violated a writ of mandamus issued a year ago ordering the old board of commissioners to restore Burgeson's job to him.

Burgeson was reinstated when Judge Williams issued a writ of mandamus against the old board, but he was discharged again last March 22.

Twelve Checks

of unusual value

Of all the services that we are privileged to render, we can most heartily commend our One-Year Monthly Income plan.

After the death of the insured we deliver twelve checks, one every month for a year. A favorite amount is $100 monthly.

These ready dollars in that trying first year are beyond valuation. They furnish comfort and assurance; a chance to collect thoughts, revive courage and lay new plans.

The premium, paid once, twice or four times a year, runs about a nickel a day at age twenty, a dime in the early forties or a few cents more if you start later in life.

Larger amounts or longer periods can be arranged. A choice of policy forms is available. Premium referred to above is for "Endowment at Age 85."

Set up this safeguard for your home circle and they will never be caught unprepared. It will make an ideal supplement to your lump-sum insurance.

SUSPECT SEIZED IN KILLING NEAR THE GOLD COAST

Manager of Cleaning Shop Stabbed to Death.

Samuel Studner, 25 years old, 1317 North Maplewood avenue, manager of a cleaning and dyeing shop at 1453 North Clark street, who died early yesterday of knife wounds and other injuries, was evidently a robbery victim, police declared last night. Studner was attacked Saturday night in a passageway at 1449 North Clark street.

Detectives first investigated the possibility that he was slain by racketeers in the cleaning industry, but were unable to find evidence supporting such a theory. They then accepted the robbery motive, pointing out that Studner was known to have carried $18 when last seen and that $15 was missing when he was found. The police held Howard Robinson, 27 years old, a Negro janitor in the vicinity, for questioning.

Attacked in Passageway.

The killing of Studner, who was known to a number of patrons living on the gold coast, was unusually vicious. He was waylaid by one or more men as he stepped into the passageway and attacked with knives and probably other weapons. The time was probably 9 or 10 o'clock Saturday night.

Studner was stabbed six times in the face, arms and legs. Two knives were used. The broken blade of one was found imbedded in Studner's right wrist and the broken blade of the other was found in the back of his coat. The thrust of this knife did not, however, touch the body. The fatal wound was in the leg, an artery having been severed. In addition Studner's head bore a deep gash, received in falling on a piece of jagged concrete, according to the police.

Found by a Passerby.

William Ray, 54 Burton place, a passerby, found Studner unconscious early yesterday and notified the police. Studner died a few hours later in the Alexian Brothers' hospital without regaining consciousness. The Negro janitor, Robinson, was seized on the scene when he identified Studner. Later he told Lieut. Timothy Rohan that he had gone through the passageway at frequent intervals, but had not seen Studner there.

Twenty feet from Studner the police found a $1 bill and in his billfold they found $2 more. He had $18 in his pockets before the fatal attack, according to his brother, Max Studner, operator of the cleaning shop. Two rings he wore, one set with diamonds, had not been taken.

Max Studner told the police that he and his brother had received no threats from racketeers and that there had been no trouble with any cleaners' organization or labor union. The shop employs two helpers who will be questioned today.

Coroner's Jury Will Resume Winkler Murder Quiz Today

Numerous witnesses are under subpoena to appear today at the resumption of the inquest into the murder of Gus Winkler, the notorious gangster shot down by gang assassins on Oct. 9, at a time when government agents were engaged in a roundup of men involved in the disposal of bonds stolen in a mail robbery. The coroner's jury is expected to conclude the inquiry, which so far has dealt with Winkler's interest in gambling and his supposed interest in the beer business.

A number of north side café men are included in the list of witnesses. Several are to be asked about the report that Winkler was a partner of County Commissioner Charles H. Weber in the beer business, a report which Weber, one of his partners, and many of his employés have denied. Because of prominence given the report the jurors decided to question a few more people concerning it.

Will Call Weber's Partner.

Charles Conrad, partner of Weber in the beer distributing agency on the north side and in the beer concession at the Streets of Paris in the World's Fair grounds, is to be a witness. He has been one of the owners of the Vanity Fair café for several years. Otto Singer, Conrad's partner in this café, is also to be called.

"Sonny" Goldstone, manager of the Club Sonny, at Waveland avenue and Broadway, is to be asked about reports that Weber and Winkler were seen there together. Weber has testified under oath that he never saw Winkler in his life and never had any deals of any kind with the gangster. He said he was at a loss to explain why Winkler was slain in front of the Weber beer agency offices at 1414 Roscoe street.

William Quinn of the Croydon hotel was listed as one to be asked about the possible association of Weber and Winkler. So is Charles Cole, 4512 North Ashland avenue.

Café Mentioned at Inquest.

Arthur Fisher, connected with a café near Clark street and Dewey place, was named in a subpœna. This café was mentioned at the last session of the inquest and inquiry was made as to whether there had been gambling in the place. Several of Weber's employés, who said they never saw or knew Winkler, testified that Weber's agency sold beer to this place.

John Hartnett, receiver for the Eastwood apartment hotel, 4646 Sheridan road, was mentioned as one to be asked about certain residents of the hotel. There were reports that a "payoff headquarters" was maintained somewhere in that vicinity. Winkler lived at 3300 Lake Shore drive.

Frank Nitti, business manager of the old Capone gambling, booze, and vice syndicate, was named as a witness, but police have been unable to serve a sobpœna on him. A relative said Nitti was out of town, but that he might be back in time to testify at the inquest.

Arthur Schroeder, an associate of Weber, who was with Weber and Conrad in Miami, Fla., the day Winkler was slain, is expected to be a witness. Schroeder formerly held public office in Chicago Heights, and now is connected with Weber's beer business at the World's Fair.

Police Quizzed in Gambling.

Several police captains were asked about gambling at the last session of the inquest, held a week ago today. The inquest was turned into a sort of gambling inquiry, but the jury learned little or nothing about the many gambling places supposed to have been operating in Chicago until Winkler was killed.

Winkler was one of the owners of the 225 club, 225 East Superior street, reputed to have been a luxurious gambling establishment until the death of its ostensible proprietor, Edgar Lebensberger, who was found shot to death, supposedly a suicide, after he had been named in a federal indictment as one of those who had disposed of mail robbery loot.

Lebensberger's death and the arrest of a dozen or more persons, who were alleged to have handled stolen bonds which were being delivered to the First National bank by a mail carrier when they were taken by bandits, complicated the Winkler murder inquiry. So far it has been mainly a gambling inquiry, and one of the jurors, Henry Barrett Chamberlin, operating director of the Chicago crime commission, said it had demonstrated the futility of inquests in murder cases.

Up to Police and Prosecutor.

A medical examiner's certificate that death was caused by bullets fired from a shotgun would be sufficient, in his opinion. This jury probably will conclude that Winkler came to his death through murder by persons unknown, Chamberlin explained, and the police and state's attorney can continue the investigation, as they would be bound in duty to do regardless of the formal inquest.

Mrs. Georgette Winkler, widow of the gang leader, had been called to the previous hearing, but she tried to commit suicide by gas and was unable to appear because of the resultant illness. Mrs. Winkler has been notified to attend today's hearing.

TAVERN OWNER IS ARRESTED IN COWEN MURDER

Another Suspect Released After Questioning.

One man was held and another questioned and released by Cicero police last night in connection with the murder of Louis Cowen, Cicero publisher and friend of Al Capone. Cowen was shot by assassins at Roosevelt road and Austin boulevard Friday evening.

The man held is Sam Morelli, 35 years old, owner of a beer tavern at 11321 Forest avenue. He and John Finaldi, 27 years old, 1406 South 51st court, Cicero, were arrested on suspicion at 14th street and 51st avenue, Cicero. Finaldi was released after a brief examination. Morelli denied any knowledge of the killing. Explaining his presence in Cicero, he said he was on his way to a wedding.

Motive Still a Mystery.

Meanwhile, no definite motive has been found for the Cowen killing. Several witnesses have been questioned, among them Joseph Corngold, Cowen's chauffeur. Corngold was slightly wounded by the shotgun fire directed at his chief. Corngold has said he could not identify the assassins.

The general opinion of those who knew Cowen and his gang affiliations was that his interest in a gambling syndicate was responsible for his death. Cowen was called "Diamond Louis" and his wealth was said to be far out of proportion to the earnings of the Cicero newspaper he owned. Police and government officials knew him as a man who had provided cash bail in quantity whenever any of the Capone gang were arrested.

Gambling Fight Suspected.

His friendship with Capone had given him a position of importance in gang affairs and the imprisonment of Capone resulted in a loss of prestige by Cowen, police said. It was suspected that he and his associates had fought over their greatly diminished field for gambling profits. The approaching return from federal prison of Ralph Capone, brother of Al, may have figured in the murder, police said.

Attorney Joseph Lustfield said Cowen had left a sizable estate, which, it is expected, will go to the widow, Mildred Decker Cowen, a former loop manicurist. Cowen married her three years ago after being divorced from his first wife.

Cowen left a will, which will be filed for probate after the funeral today. Attorney Lustfield said. The funeral services will be held at 2 o'clock in the chapel at 3654 Roosevelt road. Burial will be in Jewish Waldheim cemetery.

FEAR KIDNAPED CANDIDATE FOR JUDGE IS DEAD

Pikeville, Ky., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Belief that Willis Staton, about 55, independent candidate for Circuit judge who was reported kidnaped last Friday near here, may have been put to death by burning was expressed tonight by Staton's wife.

The Staton family, it was learned, has sent ashes from the ruins of a small shack near the scene of the purported kidnaping to a chemist for analysis. The shack, formerly used as an oiling place for railroad mine cars, was burned down the same day Staton disappeared, Staton's son said.

W. F. Wood, who said he was a federal agent from Cincinnati, was here today and interviewed Mrs. Staton.

Staton, formerly a Circuit judge, was kidnaped last Friday by four armed and masked men, according to a nephew, Joe Staton.

Powder Cleans and Whitens Teeth—as nothing else can

THERE is nothing known that will clean and polish teeth so quickly and leave them so gleaming white—as POWDER.

That is why your dentist, when cleaning your teeth, as you know—always uses powder.

As it is only the powder part of any dentifrice that cleans, a dentifrice that is ALL POWDER just naturally cleans best.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is ALL POWDER—100% cleansing properties. This is more than twice the cleansing properties of tooth pastes.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder cleans off all stains and tartar, and polishes the teeth in a harmless and practical way that leaves them sparkling—many shades whiter. Free from all grit or pumice, it cannot possibly scratch, or injure the softest enamel.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder keeps your teeth REALLY CLEAN and clean teeth mean—firm, healthy gums, freedom from pyorrhea and the least possible tooth decay.

Once you use powder you will never go back to a less scientific way of tooth cleansing. It leaves your teeth feeling so much cleaner, your mouth so refreshed, and your breath so sweet and pure.

Dr. Lyon's Tooth Powder is not only doubly efficient, but it costs only half as much to use. Even a small package lasts twice as long as a tube of tooth paste.

Beth Coleman Will Bow at Holiday Party

Plans Changed as Family Decides to Move.

BY JUDITH CASS.

PRETTY young Beth Coleman, daughter of the John Colemans, is going to make her debut this year instead of next because her father is going to Yale. Yes, that sounds odd, but it is the truth nevertheless. Mr. and Mrs. Coleman had decided that Beth was young enough to wait another year before being presented to society, but when Mr. Coleman was called to New Haven recently to be assistant treasurer of Yale university, they realized that they wouldn't be here next fall to introduce their daughter to Chicago society.

So they determined to let her make her debut when they are here for the Christmas holidays this winter, and she is to share honors with Louise Forgan and Peggy Hixon at the dinner dance that Mr. and Mrs. James B. Forgan and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Hixon have planned for Saturday, Dec. 23.

The three young girls have been friends for years, so it all works out nicely and every one is delighted, especially Miss Coleman, who would have been attending the subdeb parties instead of the debutante ones during the holidays if she weren't a full-fledged young lady. She is at the Sacred Heart convent at Noroton, Conn., and her brother, John Jr., is at the Hill school, so Mr. and Mrs. Coleman will be able to see more of their children when they are in New Haven than they do when they are in Lake Forest. The Colemans are leaving tomorrow for New Haven, but they'll be back in their Lake Forest home for the Christmas holiday season.

Miss Hixon, who went to school in Paris last year, is at home this year, but Miss Forgan is at Miss Garland's in Boston, so she won't be here for any of the parties except the Christmas ones.

Marjorie Street Bows Next Saturday.

Next Sunday has been chosen as the date for Miss Marjorie Robidoux Street's debut. She and her mother, Mrs. Harry Lackman Street, will be at home at 1245 Astor street from 4 to 7 o'clock, together with Miss Jeanné and Miss Katharine Street, who were introduced to society in former seasons. The Street home is in Winnetka, but they are in town for the winter.

Betty Brooks probably is wishing that something had happened to make her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Phelps, change their minds about her debut, for then she wouldn's have had to miss all the debutante parties this fall. There was some talk of presenting her this winter, but her mother decided she was too young, so she is sailing on Nov. 11 with Miss Stout's school for six months of travel and "finishing."

Consequently she hasn't been allowed to attend any of the parties this fall and she will have to wait until next year to be included in the debutante festivities.

Tibbett to Sing at Girl Scout Benefit.

One of the most distinguished musical offerings of the season . . . a concert by Lawrence Tibbett . . . will draw one of the largest and most fashionable audiences of the year to the Auditorium theater this evening. The Girl Scouts consider themselves very fortunate to be the sponsors of the concert, but they feel even more fortunate that they are to have Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt in the audience.

Mrs. Roosevelt's interest in the Girl Scout movement is well known, so she especially requested that this evening's program be included in her schedule when she found that she was coming to Chicago for Oct. 30 and 31. The evening takes on even more significance in a "Scout" way since it is the twenty-first birthday of the Girl Scout movement in America.

This is the first of five brilliant musical events to be given during the winter under the sponsorship of the Scouts and they predict that each one

Good Morning!

The late Edgar Wallace finished "Before Dawn" and laid down his pen forever. This was the last story he wrote.

It's a good one, too. Short, plotty, suspenseful. And it should bring hope to the hearts of discouraged police officials. That is, it should, providing there's a clairvoyant in their neighborhood who can really clairvoy.

In this yarn, you see, there IS such a being and she helps straighten out a tangled mystery that had been giving the department no end of trouble.

She is discovered by young Detective Wilson, assigned to discover and bring in fakers. Believing Patricia Merrick and her old father to be a pair of conscienceless bamboozlers, he arrests them. He had asked Patricia to locate his Aunt Minnie. She hadn't been able to do so, but had assured the seeker that her papa would give him back his three dollars. Which Pop refuses to do.

At the police station it develops there wasn't any Aunt Minnie—which was why the little seeress couldn't see 'er. But Patricia DOES tell Dwight plenty about his Aunt Harriet and his little dead sister

All of this leads to the fair prisoner's employment on the case of the strange death of a queer old lady who lived in an eerie house where a stolen fortune is supposed to be secreted.

You're never much in doubt as to the identity of the real villain, but this person moves in a mysterious way that certainly keeps you guessing.

Academy of Sciences Opens Autumn Series of Lectures for Public

The autumn series of Sunday afternoon lectures at the Chicago Academy of Sciences in Lincoln park opened yesterday with a lecture by Alfred M. Bailey, director of the museum, on "Birds of the Labrador Coast."

There are five more lectures in the series, on the following subjects: Nov. 5, "Western Wonderland," by Dr. Louis J. Tint; No. 12, "Birds and Trees of the Smokies," by O. M. Schantz; Nov. 19, "What Mushroom Is That?" by Dr. V. O. Graham; No. 26, "Tahiti," by Dr. Edmund Andrews; Dec. 3, "Geological Snapshots of the West," by Dr. John R. Ball.

The lectures, which are free, are open to the general public. They start at 3 o'clock.

Crepe Blouses in Simple Lines Win Approval

BY RHEA SEEGER.

There are dozens of bright ideas waiting for you among the various blouse collections in town . . . you can, at last, find some stunning white silk crêpe blouses that are marvels of simplicity and line, the best looking white affairs that have been presented in years.

One draped model of heavy white silk hasn't a bit of trimming, just a superlatively designed and exquisitely fashioned creation that long suffering and long disappointed blouse collectors will grab for their own.

Another long tunic affair also of white silk is merely decorated with buttons . . . the sleeves are perfect and the neckline simple and becoming . . . the same model also comes in cheerful bright colors for those that demand contrast.

Chilly sisters will cheer and buy soft jersies . . . clever blouses of natural, butter yellow or emerald green wool jersey that is as soft and drapable as chiffon velvet. These jersey models are knockouts . . . some of them are made with jersey lacings tying up the sleeves around the wrist and down the neckline . . . others are brilliant with metal rings that serve as buttons, while still others fairly bristle with chromium buttons the size of a quarter. Appliqued tucks or folds widen the shoulder seams as well as trim the models.

Heifetz Gives Program of the Unusual

BY EDWARD MOORE.

He now calls himself merely Heifetz. He appeared in a recital at Orchestra hall yesterday afternoon. In the interval since his last appearance he has laid aside his first name and taken thought to assembling a program that most of the other violinists do not play.

There was a sonatina by Schubert, an early sonata by Richard Strauss, the infrequently heard concerto in one movement by Conus, and at least two transcriptions of his own to make up an unusual program. Because he was Heifetz the experiment was reasonably successful. He is still the violinist extraordinary, with a tone that glows and sparkles, with a technic that makes light of any startling combination of notes, and, be it added, with an entirely sound and sane musical background whereby these acquirements come to mean something.

This was what caused entirely pleasant reactions during the performance of the Strauss sonata, a work written at a period when it was evident that the composer had heard and liked a lot of other men's music, all the way from Bizet to Chopin, before he started out on an independent idiom of his own. Heifetz's own transcription of three dance pieces by Bach, usually heard on the piano, showed that he is well up on the Bach diction and, more important, on the Bach spirit.

In fact, from the boy wonder, as he was when he first came here fifteen years ago or so, he has grown into a wise, resourceful, and matured artist.

Predictions that the Punch and Judy theater would become a popular place on Sundays seemed to be justified yesterday afternoon. Grace Cornell and Kurt Graff, dancers, shared a program with George Seaberg, pianist, and late comers to the theater found that there were no seats to be had.

Miss Cornell and Mr. Graff danced both singly and as a team, in either manifestation showing a well wrought sense of design, excellent bodily technic in the modern manner, and marked warmth of interpretation. Mr. Seaberg chose a pair of works by Liszt and groups by Debussy, Niemann, and Poulenc, and played them uncommonly well.

Front Views and Profiles

While Trebilcock was painting in the President's office a suit of clothes was presented to the chief executive, made to his measure by his own tailor from wool growr experimentally in Texas. When the two Texans made the presentation the President told them he had just one grudge against the Lone Star state.

"A mother recently wrote me that she had christened her new baby Franklin Delano Blue Eagle Comiskey," he said.

YOU are familiar, perhaps, with the irritability frequently expressed by a well known magazine commentator because of the cute or simpering names applied by manufacturers to commercial products. He will be upset, no doubt, when he hears that a Chicago Junior leaguer bought a brassiere the other day, the attached tag of which read:

"The Vagabond Bandit. It Holds You Up."

THERE was a pretty tense situation in a loop elevator the other day, as reported to this department by a scout. Too many passengers crowded into the cage, and the blonde operator called out:

"Five will have to step out, please."

No one moved, and she repeated the request, after which one person stepped out.

"Four will have to step out, please," she warned.

It seemed to be an impasse, but finally a second person left the elevator.

"Three more will have to leave," chimed the operator.

Frowns appeared and nobody moved. Finally a professor spoke: "Logic would seem to dictate that the latest in should be the first out." A lady answered haughtily: "Gentlemen apparently don't move for logic, nor for politeness either, it would seem."

At that moment a second man spoke up:

"Madame, true courtesy is always informed by reason," he said. The woman stepped out, and as she left the operator intoned that two would have to step out, please. There was much shifting and shuffling, and a little, clerklike man got out.

"One more will have to step out, please," said the operator.

"I suppose I'm the one," said a lady of uncertain age, and she and her husband got out. The elevator doors slid shut and the car ascended.

THEN there was the 10 year old girl brought by her mother to a doctor [Dr. Nathan Flaxman] to be vaccinated. Dr. Flaxman asked whether she wanted the vaccination on her arm or her thigh, and pointed out that when she grew up and wore evening dress she might not like a scar on her arm.

"Can't I have it internally?" the child asked.

Astonished, the medico wanted to know why.

"Well, suppose I grow up to be a fan dancer. It wouldn't do to have it on my thigh," the child explained.

Field Museum Gets Gift of Valuable Rugs from Homer Sargent

The Field museum yesterday announced receipt of a valuable collection of rugs, blankets, and garments from Algeria and Tripoli, and of old Noyo serapes from Mexico, the gifts of Homer E. Sargent, former Chicagoan, who now lives in Pasadena, Cal.

Mr. and Mrs. William Haskell Simpson of Chicago have presented the museum with valuable silk embroidery and paintings from China and American Indian pottery from New Mexico. Mr. and Mrs. B. E. Ax of Seattle have a good sized gold nugget of unusual shape, resembling a leaf, found near Dawson, in the Yukon territory of Canada.

James H. Quinn of Ainsworth, Neb., contributed fossil remains of prehistoric horses, dogs, and a turtle, collected near his home, and Claude M. Longenecker of Warsaw, Ind., some prehistoric stone axes and projectile points found in Kosciusko county, Indiana.

SYNOPSIS.

Sheila, known as "Bun" O'Reilly, an American, makes a comfortable living abroad by helping fellow countrymen out of difficulties. Fred Crawford, a Paris newspaper man, is her friend and counselor. Bun agrees to help James H. Finlay, an elderly, wealthy American, find his young wife, Helene. He wants no publicity. He had met Helene after the war at Bucharest. He had installed her family, the Bobianoffs, in a villa on the Riviera at Grasse. Her brother, Ferenz, he had brought to America. No trace can be found of Helene and her parents since the last time she returned to visit them. Bun's suspicions are aroused by Finlay's niece, Mrs. Craymer. A recent newspaper picture showing Helene standing with a tall woman in a group at Biarritz is the only clew Bun has to go on. That same night Finlay is murdered. Bun's apartment is broken into, her maid, Liberté, bound, and the money Finlay had given her as advance payment stolen. Finlay's son, Robert, arrives from America. His unlikeness to his father and his desire for secrecy puzzles Bun. In Biarritz the photographer who took the group picture identifies the tall woman as the Countess Vernadon, who has a villa at Grasse. Bun motors to Cannes. There she meets the real Robert Finlay. The other was an impostor. Bun is attracted to him, but believes he's in love with Helene. He urges her to continue the quest with him. Mrs. Craymer appears at the hotel. That night Bun and Robert call on Countess Vernadon at her dreary villa. She denies knowing Helene. As they are leaving they see a woman fall from a window. Back at the hotel Bun sees Mrs. Craymer drop a note surreptitiously to Robert. Bun has breakfast with Robert next morning.

INSTALLMENT XXV.

FURTIVE SPYING.

Robert drew out his watch. "I'm going to wait here until 10 o'clock. I want to give that woman a chance to live up to her promise. When she does not come—and I don't expect her to—I'm going back to Grasse and find out what I can about the Bobianoff family."

So that was all he was going to tell her about the night's events! Bun made no comment.

"That may suggest some other course for us to follow. After that"—his eyes were back to hers now—"I suppose it's Paris again."

He talked on for a little while—more volubly than he had ever done before with her and, for that reason, giving her the impression that he was ill at ease—about what he thought of their visit to the Villa des Roses, the Countess, the incident of the woman falling from the window and their talk with the doctor. He put many questions to Bun, apparently wishing her opinion on each detail. She answered shortly, leaving all theories to him. When he finally stopped, she rose from the table.

"If you are going to wait here for the Countess I think it will be better for you to see her alone. She might say something to you that she might not if I were present."

"But we'll meet for luncheon?" He was again seeking her eyes with the strange appeal for sympathy in his.

For a moment Bun remained adamant, then she succumbed with a slight smile. "I suppose so. Unless she carries you off with her in her car."

She went to her room and wrote a long letter to Fred, telling him of the incidents that had occurred since she had seen him. In a way, this was a relief. Fred, at least, was one person who had never caused her conflicting doubts. He was as clear as a pool of mountain water. She had thought Robert Finlay was, too—until that morning. Her pen came to a standstill. Jarring notes once more had hold of her. She began to put two and two together—but the result was not four. It was more like five or seven. What did Mrs. Craymer know that had built up this barrier between them? Were they actually working together and using her as some sort of a blind? Could it be possible that Mrs. Craymer had known all the time where the stepmother was, had told him, and was insisting that she, Bun, be kept in ignorance? What she flattered herself was an intuitive understanding of people made her refute these suggestions, and yet, the last few days had shaken her self-confidence.

She would have liked to write all these doubts down, but that was impossible.

Bun wanted to believe that Finlay was honest with her—O, yes, she couldn't hide from herself that this was the motivating desire of all her thoughts—but a man in love—— She brushed her hand across her eyes and stared at the letter to Fred. She would have liked to write all these doubts down. But that was impossible. She ended the letter hurriedly with a phrase: "I wish, Fred, you were here. There are so many things I'd like to talk over with you. Is there any possible excuse to bring you here?"

The letter finished, she rose with decision, went down to the garage, had her car rolled out and drove to a place a little way down the Croisette from the hotel and stopped. She had chosen a spot where several other cars were stationed, hoping that the tell-tale color of her own car would be less conspicuous there. Here she settled down with a clear view of the entrance to the hotel. If anything of which she was to be kept in ignorance was to take place there she would at least have the satisfaction of seeing for herself.

A little before ten a car swung out from the hotel driveway and stopped before the entrance. Almost immediately Mrs. Craymer and Finlay appeared. They went to the car, he waited while she got in, closed the door after her and waved to her as she drove off. Then he went back into the hotel.

Bun's first impulse was to follow the car and see where it went. Second thoughts counseled waiting, and luckily so, for hardly had the car disappeared in the direction of Nice than another stopped before the hotel. The Countess Vernadon was a striking enough figure to be recognized at once. She got out of the car and went into the hotel. In less than fifteen minutes she came out again, this time accompanied by Finlay, and was helped into the car by him. This also drove off in the direction of Nice and Finlay returned to the hotel.

Bun no longer hesitated. She at once followed the countess' car—at a pace that was faster than usual on this road not famous for slow going. They passed Antibes and struck into the long stretch that leads into Nice. Near Cagnes the countess' car slowed down. At a cross road it turned off and went toward the interior. Bun was familiar enough with these roads to know that the one taken was one way of going to Grasse. She stopped and considered this. It might be a decoy, though she thought not. At any rate, evidence pointed to the fact that the Countess was not going to Nice to take the boat for Corsica, as she had stated the night before. A final decision carried Bun along the road straight into Nice. Half an hour later she was at the shipping agency. She went in, asking about sailings, was told that a boat was leaving at noon, and found out that the Countess Vernadon was not on the sailing list. She returned to her car, drove back to Cannes and arrived there at half past twelve.

Finlay was sitting on the terrace, smoking, his face turned from her, and apparently sunk in deep reflection. It was Bun's intention to pass him and go up to her room, but he saw her before she had entered the door and sprang up with an unmistakable look of relief on his face.

"I'm glad you're back. She came after all."

"O! Did you show her the photograph?"

He nodded. "She admitted at once it was she."

"Well?"

"And she named the others in the picture—even Helene, but not as Helene—as a friend from Paris." He drew a piece of paper from his pocket. "Mme. Vell—she said it was. Here's her address. She said I could write to her if I wanted to."

Bun listened calmly. "Then all this proves that your father and Mrs. Craymer were mistaken in recognizing your stepmother."

He looked at her querulously—almost angrily. "It proves nothing of the sort. It only proves that this Countess is determined to face the situation out and bluff us." He drew the photograph from among the other papers in his pocket and looked at it. Bun's lips tightened as she saw the glow that sprang to life in his eyes. "As if any one could be mistaken that that was Helene!"

Bun sank down in the chair near him, but she said nothing.

"All I can do now is to put this information in the hands of the police in Paris. They can act officially. I can't."

"But can they? If she proves that what she says is true, you will be letting yourself in for all sorts of difficulties. The Countess Vernadon is not the sort of person to accept an accusation without reprisals."

"The inquiries might be made while she is in Corsica."

"She has not gone to Corsica."

"She left here this morning to take the boat at Nice. It sails at noon."

"Diamond Lil" Says Vitality Puts Her Over

Claims Men Don't Like "Pepless Lilies."

BY ANTOINETTE DONNELLY.

HOLLYWOOD.—[Special.]—Mae West, perhaps the most vital personality before the public today, has a few things to say about this same vitality that piles up shekels at the box office and winds sables about her throat.

"You can't have vitality on a diet," says Mae. "When I was playing in 'Diamond Lil' on the stage, I had to put over plenty of vitality. To put across the footlights what I had to put over I needed vitality and lots of it, so I used to eat four times a day—big steaks and plenty that went with it. How ya' going to have magnetism if you have no strength yourself? That's the biggest mistake the girls of today have made. They've sapped their vitality with fad diets."

Mae is curved all right, from the waist up. From the waist down she is slender. Her small hips and long line in a long skirted, long sleeved black afternoon frock give the slender illusion anyway. She's only 5 feet 4 inches and weighs 120 lbs. There's a roll around the midriff I hear she's struggling with. Like most women with short necks and any weight around the upper part of the body, she looks a bit heavier than she really is. Her hair is of the raging platinum shade. A rare and racy personality whether you like her and her shows or not. She knows she's good, and what of it? Her assets, besides her curves, are a beautiful mouth and flawless skin of camelia-like texture.

Accused of encouraging women to dig into second and third helpings, while she herself would never be called a heavy woman, she responded:

"I don't mean a woman should go round with rolls of fat on her. That's not fascination. There are other ways of getting rid of fat. But a starvation diet? That's the sure way to lose your lure for men."

Mae doesn't think it necessary for a woman to use much makeup if her health is all right. A good complexion comes from the inside, she says. Eat properly. Keep yourself clean and healthy inside. "I don't drink and I don't smoke. This might be a surprise to some people. I go to the dentist four times a year and have my teeth properly cleaned and scraped. As a kid I ate very little candy. The dentists tell me I'll keep my teeth all my life." Her teeth are beautiful—even, strong and dazzling white. She cleans them twice daily, taking plenty of time in the process.

Her makeup is only powder, except for evening when her eyes are made up with blue shadow. Her daily routine for the care of her compexion is simple. She uses cleansing cream, an astringent liquid, and skin food. For skin treatment, she repeats, "it's general health and wise eating that count." Added to this, she does not keep late hours and gets plenty of sleep.

MINUTE MYSTERY

By H. A. RIPLEY

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

THE INTERNATIONAL CONFERENCE ON NARCOTICS.

"Dead," remarked Prof. Fordney, gazing down at the pajama clad body lying on the bed. "An overdose of heroin, I would say. See where that fresh puncture on his left wrist was made?" he inquired of Magnon, chief of the Geneva police.

"Mais ouis, mon professor," replied Chief Magnon. "Suicide, yes, but is it not the irony of fate that such a personage as M. Furnot should die from an overdose of drug while an important member of the international conference on the distribution of narcotics here in our beautiful city?"

Fordney supervised the thorough search of the room and the surrounding grounds. Not a single clew was found that gave any light on Furnot's death.

Magnon raised a quizzical eye as Fordney rolled up the man's left sleeve revealing a tatoo mark in Chinese lettering. He beckoned to the chief and pointed to it. "Rather odd, is it not?" he questioned. "And see here," his voice was just a bit excited, "notice the unusual size of his hands. Sorry, for your sake, my friend, but this is not suicide. It's murder!"

Gossip Disturbs Marital Harmony of Movie Colony

BY DORIS BLAKE.

HOLLYWOOD—[Special.]—Why can't Hollywood marriages endure? Or, is its chaotic state grossly exaggerated? Is it publicity that makes Hollywood seem more divorce ridden than other communities? Are there special circumstances governing this community that make marriage more difficult here than elsewhere?

These and other questions beset an inquiring reporter bent on tracking down the true status of marriage affairs in this community of startling elopements and even more startling partnership shifts. There are those who hold that it is the wide publicity given any Hollywood affair, elopement, marriage or scandal, that makes this colorful spot seem more scandal, divorce and elopement ridden.

There are those willing to grant that the publicity is often of the screen individual's own seeking. Anything to get the name in the papers! There are those who say that gossip is the root of all marriage evils here. Not only the usual grapevine run of gossip, but that subscribed by the screen population themselves in the lapses between "shots" with time on their hands and no place to go.

Probably no place in the world does the tongue of gossip wag so industriously, and so insidiously, as here. If a man is seen out with a girl once or twice, his name is coupled with hers until it almost becomes a duty to marry the woman to restore her good name. If one of a pair dining or lunching while discussing production plans or a part or a contract, happens to be married, heaven help that married one if he or she attempts an honest alibi. And the underground gossip that damns reputations without a chance at defense is truly appalling. You have to work out an almost Puritanical course for yourself and deviate not a hair's breadth from it to escape.

Marriage in Hollywood is made intensely difficult of duration for these and other reasons.

The nature of the work is in itself difficult of domestic adjustment. Long hours are the rule during the making of a picture. As early as 7 o'clock is commonplace, with escape from the studio not possible until a belated evening hour.

After the long day, nerves are not placid enough for a companionable evening. If one of the pair is nonprofessional, or not at the moment working in a picture, you can see the problem arising between one ready to step out for an evening's fun, the other wanting rest, quiet, and nothing else.

But more on the subject tomorrow.

Home Auxiliary.

The South Side Junior Auxiliary of the Infant Home and Day nursery of the Daughters of Zion will meet at 2 o'clock today at the Infant Home.

Billie Burke Proves a 'Find' in New Movie

BY GEORGE SHAFFER.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—While other studios have been making "discoveries" of Marie Dressler, Mae West, May Robson, Henrietta Crosman, and Alison Skipworth, the Universal studio has turned Billie Burke into a "find." Miss Burke, playing in one or two previous vehicles, turned in a performance that was considered outstanding at the industry's special preview of "Only Yesterday."

Miss Burke played the aunt, past her thirties and mistress of a New York business, whose hand was sought by a somewhat younger but highly entertaining suitor [Reginald Denny].

The delightful bits of business that Miss Burke introduced took so much of the onlookers' attention that the melodramatic story had to be far better acted than usual by a fine cast to prevent the brown haired star of a former generation from taking the whole picture and putting it in her pocket.

The truth is that Margaret Sullavan and John Boles in the romantic leads gave noteworthy performances also, perhaps with some credit to the inspiration afforded by Miss Burke.

There were so many "big names" in the cast of this story, spanning ten years of American life after the war, that the whole level of performance was something to be compared with "Grand Hotel," "Dinner at Eight," and "Cavalcade."

Hal Roach will celebrate his twentieth anniversary as a movie comedy producer next Jan. 8. Roach will celebrate in his usual fashion, a polo game, an airplane spin, and a new Laurel and Hardy comedy.

John Barrymore plans using Helen Chandler as Ophelia when he presents "Hamlet" in the outdoor Hollywood bowl [seating 25,000] when the spring season rolls 'round. Miss Chandler has played Ophelia opposite Basil Sidney. She's Barrymore's present lead in "Long Lost Father" at Radio.

Barbara Adams, new film girl who signed a Paramount contract and was assigned to a lead in "Border Legion" two weeks ago, is wondering what her new Hollywood apartment looks like. She moved into it and hasn't seen the place since, having been immediately ordered on location.

Fifty workmen are preparing the new Joel McCrea ranch so that Joel and his bride [Frances Dee] can have their housewarming by Christmas.

of them is going to draw a record audience.

Mrs. William S. Monroe will, of course, have one of the largest box parties this evening, since she is the chairman of the concert committee. As the commander of Chicago's Girl Scouts Mrs. Arthur L. Farwell will be hostess to Mrs. Roosevelt.

An interesting trio in the box circle will include Mrs. Daniel Taylor, Mrs. Welch Dickinson, and Mrs. William E. Vogelbach. Among those who are coming in from Lake Geneva for the concert are Mrs. Henry P. Stanton and Miss Robin Dienst. Mrs. Charles R. Lindsay Jr. is planning to entertain several guests at dinner and the concert and so is Mrs. James H. Douglas Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard Linn are expected to return this week from a visit in the east. Mrs. Linn went east several weeks ago and was joined by Mr. Linn in New York about a week ago.

Germany and League Subject of 2 Lectures.

The Chicago Council on Foreign Relations has cards out for two luncheons, one on Thursday noon and the other Nov. 6.

The first meeting will present as the speaker Arnold J. Toynbee, director of studies at the Royal Institute of National Affairs in London. Mr. Toynbee will discuss, under the title, "Europe's Latest Crisis," the situation which has resulted from Germany's withdrawal from the disarmament conference and the league of nations.

At the subsequent meeting on Nov. 6 Clark M. Eichelberger, executive secretary of the league of nations, will discuss incidents leading to Germany's withdrawal from the league and the opinion held as to the prospects for the future. Mr. Eichelberger has just returned to this country from Geneva.

There is probably nothing among Mrs. Joseph G. Coleman's prized possessions that she will cherish as much during the years to come as the handsome gold cigaret case presented to her the other afternoon by the members of the woman's board of Passavant hospital.

The gift was made in recognition of Mrs. Coleman's notable service as the president of the board for a quarter of a century. Now as she takes her place as the board's honorary head, Mrs. Frances Johnson is assuming the active work of the presidency. It was at Mrs. Johnson's recent tea for both the men's and women's boards that the presentation was made.

Wolcott Blairs Home from Europe.

Wolcott Blair arrived in town Saturday, and his charming wife followed him a day later after having been in Scotland, England and France since June.

Mrs. John Wentworth, who visited the Blairs at their shooting lodge in Scotland and has been in Paris since with her aunt, Mrs. Honoré Palmer, has been forced to delay her sailing for home because of illness, but the latest report her husband and his mother, Mrs. Moses J. Wentworth, have had is that she will be able to sail in about ten days. Mrs. Palmer will accompany her niece home.

Mrs. Julian A. Soames, who has been visiting Mrs. Horace H. Martin in Lake Forest and Mrs. James L. Houghteling in Winnetka, has left for Tucson, Ariz., to spend the winter with her mother, Mrs. Frank H. Scott. Mrs. Soames, who lives in England, brought her 8 year old daughter, Edith, to America with her. Edith, who is always called "Bunty," and her mother have motored west.

Colin Campbells Go to New York.

Mr. and Mrs. Colin L. Campbell left yesterday afternoon to spend a week in New York before going to their ranch near Santa Barbara, Cal. The nurse has taken their baby, Alison, to the ranch. The Campbells will spend the winter in California.

Mrs. George A. Poole left Saturday to join her daughter, Miss Elizabeth Poole, in New York for a fortnight's stay. Miss Poole has been visiting in the east for several weeks. She has set no date yet for her marriage to John Howland of Baltimore.

Until Mrs. Malcolm S. Barton and her daughter return from abroad at the Christmas holidays, Mr. Barton will remain with his mother, Mrs. Enos M. Barton, at her home in Hubbard Woods. Another son, Gilbert, is at home this year, but Evans, who is a doctor, is living in town while he is doing research work and lecturing at Rush Medical school, and Wilfrid, the youngest of the four boys, is away at Harvard university.

Mr. and Mrs. Ezra J. Warner Jr. have settled in a house on Verda lane, in Lake Forest. They formerly had an apartment on State parkway.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Kelly [Mildred Wetten] have taken Mrs. Post Nellis' apartment on East Walton place for the winter.

Mrs. Wrigley in Town for Several Weeks.

Mrs. William Wrigley Jr. has closed her house at Lake Geneva and is in town at the Drake hotel for several weeks before going west to her Phoenix, Ariz., home.

The Rev. Frederick L. Gratiot has left for Portland, Ore., to bring home his wife, who has been visiting her mother for several weeks.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Winn Canfield [Betty Poor], who have been with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Poor, in Lake Forest, have taken an apartment at 215 East Chestnut street for the winter.

Mrs. Edward B. Huling of Larchmont Manor, N. Y., and Bennington, Vt., formerly of Chicago, has been spending 10 days in Chicago visiting old friends and attending A Century of Progress.

Chicago Girls in Vassar Play.

Miss Suzette Morton and Miss Mary Young, both juniors at Vassar this year, had leading rôles in Mary C. St. John's and Hallie Flanagan's modern play, "American Plan," which was given Saturday afternoon and evening on the Vassar campus.

Mr. and Mrs. G. William Dulaney III. are being congratulated on the birth of a son last Tuesday evening at the Evanston hospital. The baby has been named David De Witt after his maternal grandfather. Mrs. Dulaney is the former Emily De Witt of California. The baby's proud grandfather is George W. Dulaney Jr. of Lake Shore drive. Mrs. Dulaney Jr. returned from Washington last Friday and was as excited as can be over the arrival of her step-grandson, but she was terribly disappointed that she was not here when he was born.

Members of the literary committee of A Century of Progress social functions committee are to be the guests at luncheon today of Theodore von Ziekursch in the lounge of the Federal building at the Fair. The affair is for the winner of the Pictorial Review [of which Mr. Ziekursch is editor] Dodd-Mead first novel contest for 1933. Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank is chairman of the literary committee. The name of the winner will be announced at the luncheon.

Mrs. George B. Cross will be hostess this afternoon to the members of the board of the Kenwood Social Service club at her home at 4534 Ellis avenue. Plans for the annual benefit the evening of Nov. 6 will be discussed.

There will be a large turnout today and tomorrow for the four showings of the favorite German film, "Be Mine Tonight," in the International House theater at the University of Chicago. The presentations, both afternoon and evening, are offered by the Renaissance society and International House.

Happy Jack a Pleasing Bedtime Pal for Children

HAPPY JACK.

BY NANCY CABOT.

Here's a companion block for the nursery designs published in the past. Happy Jack is a gay little gentleman who will be immensely popular with children of his own age and just as much of a success with quilters. A quilt in this pattern utilizes scraps of both plain and printed fabrics, and when completed, is an effective contribution to a child's room.

For a quilt pattern in this design send 5 cents in coin or stamps to Nancy Cabot, Chicago Tribune, printing your name and address clearly. Or call at the Tribune Public Service Office, One South Dearborn.

BY MARY MEADE.

"Why don't you come up some time?"

Glibly lilt that pleasant West-ism at your friends and acquaintances if you will. But prithee see to it at the same time that you have a variety of refreshments on hand to back up the standing invitation. And don't always assume your friends are on a liquid diet.

For instance: Every well behaved refrigerator should house at least a supply of eggs, milk, and butter. Which at once suggests waffles or muffins. One charming hostess I know has memorized the recipes for these two crisp favorites and can whack up a batch at a moment's notice, with always some new touch added in the way of nuts, fruits, jelly, or what-is-there! She's forever surprising guests who have dropped in with her clever little lunches. It isn't so much a knack as it is preparedness.

You'll never need lack inspiration for evening lunches if pantry shelves are stocked with such items as canned shrimp, tuna fish, crab meat, chicken à la king, sandwich spreads, tomato juice, bottled soft drinks, sardines, potato chips, and salad dressings. Add to these packaged crackers and cookies, soups, meats, fruits, and vegetables. And if this assortment doesn't fi' your spare shelves more suggestions fairly whoop at you from every neighborhood grocery store.

But let's have a tempter for chilly evenings.

CHILI CON CARNE.

1 small can corned beef, chopped
2 tablespoons fat
1 small onion, minced
1 medium sized can baked beans
1 small can tomato soup
Few grains pepper
¼ teaspoon salt
¼ teaspoon chili powder

Cook the chopped corn beef and onion in the melted fat until slightly browned. Combine with this the beans, soup, salt, and chili powder. Simmer for 20 minutes and serve with toast.

A FRIEND IN NEED

Offers Cards to Tint.

"Dear Miss Brown: I have enough stock to supply two persons with Christmas cards to be colored and disposed of before the holiday season. They are folder cards with envelopes and can be beautifully tinted by a talented person. I am sorry that I cannot supply the necessary paints, but have no doubt that any one able to make use of the cards will already have a set of paints.—H. M."

If you have the necessary ability and would like to take advantage of Mr. M.'s kind offer, please write to him in care of this department.

NEW YORK SOCIETY

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Mr. and Mrs. Herbert T. Wade will give a dinner-dance on Wednesday at the St. Regis before the first junior assembly to introduce Mrs. Wade's daughter, Miss Beatrice Jacquelin Stout.

The earl and countess of Berkeley, accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Boardman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Boardman of Riverdale, have gone to Santa Barbara.

Mr. and Mrs. Deforest Grant have returned to 320 Park avenue.

WOMAN'S DRESS.

Well cut and slimming, this dress is flattering to the mature woman. There are several points giving slenderness to the front, then there are skirt panels to suggest length. These are shaped to give ample hem fullness without material bulk. If a black sheer woolen is used, shiny black satin will give chic contrast.

The pattern, No. 2956, comes in sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, and 48 inches bust measure.

Events on the Stage

BY CHARLES COLLINS.

The only novelty of the current week on the Chicago stage will be "Headlines," an intimate revue to be staged by the semi-professional group at the Punch and Judy theater next Wednesday night. This entertainment will contain a one act play, "The Line Is Busy," by Francesca Falk Miller; a program of dances directed by Walter Camryn, formerly with the Chicago Civic opera ballet, and songs by Margery Livingstone.

This show will be kept in performance until Nov. 11. Special matinée performances of "Alice in Wonderland," recently staged at the Punch and Judy, will be given next Saturday at 11 a. m. and 2:30 p. m.

The first bookings of the regular theatrical season in Chicago are scheduled for next week. "Bitter Sweet," an operetta by Noel Coward, with Marion Claire and Allan Jones in the leading rôles, will open at the Grand Opera house next Sunday night. The Theater Guild's subscription program of plays at the Erlanger will begin next Monday night with the comedy "Biography," in which Ina Claire has the leading rôle.

Two long-run theatrical companies of the World's Fair period will leave Chicago at the end of this week. They are "Taking a Chance," with Olsen and Johnson as stars, at the Grand Opera house, and "Her Majesty the Widow," with Pauline Frederick as star, at the Cort theater. Both organizations will go on tour. "Take a Chance" has been here for 17 weeks and "Her Majesty the Widow" for 19.

The Players' club revival of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," with Otis Skinner and Queenie Smith as stars, has been dropped from the list of Chicago's stage prospects. The company ended its tour in Philadelphia last Saturday night.

Eva Le Gallienne, now on tour with her New York Civic Repertory company, has acquired the American rights to Edmond Rostand's drama "L'Aiglon." She plans to stage it next season in a new adaptation by Clemence Dane, the English novelist and dramatist.

Aid Crippled Children.

The Chicago Club for Crippled Children will have a rally at 1:30 today at the Hotel Sherman. Plans will be discussed for the club's benefit dinner dance to be held the evening of Nov. 12 in the College Inn at the Sherman.

Training Keeps the Only Child Well Balanced

Parents, Not Size of the Family, Vital Factor.

BY GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS

The bell rang one Saturday morning and I went to the door.

"You look," I said to my friend as she came in, fresh as the autumn breeze behind her, "like our old friend the cat who's swallowed the canary."

She beamed and sat down by the fire.

"Am I downhearted? Do I feel 'aot up?' and so forth?" She exuded satisfaction.

"For a person," I said, "who is usually hovering on the brink of the Inferiority Chasm, for some one who is modest to the point of deprecation, you seem to be to me actually uplifted. Has some one left you a million dollars?"

"Uh—much better than that," she answered. "I had this morning a compliment as is a compliment."

"You do look extremely well in that hat. Johnny would call it a jazzy hotcha lid," I remarked.

"If you would keep still a minute," she interrupted, "I'd tell you why I'm so pleased."

"I've just been uptown shopping for socks and other odds and ends for young George—and whom should I run into but his new teacher, also out shopping with George's last year's English teacher. She introduced me and in a few minutes we were on the subject of George and I mentioned somehow that he was an only child.

"'Is George an only child?' she asked with a sort of surprised look.

"'Yes,' I said, wondering about the surprise. 'Why do you ask?' said I.

"'Well, only because I'd never have suspected it. He has none of the traits of the only child—and in fact,' and then she hesitated and laughed, 'I wouldn't even have known he had an intelligent mother. He doesn't bear any finger marks.'"

My friend's face grew serious. "It made me very happy," she said.

Just think about that if you are in the same position as this mother. That your boy or girl is an only child doesn't mean that he or she must be spoiled. That you have a large family doesn't mean that your children become by virtue of that fact automatically well adjusted children. Results are determined not by how many there are in your brood, but by how good a job you do.

[Copyright: 1933: By The Chicago Tribune.]

The In-Betweens (children from seven to twelve) are often puzzling to mothers. A written-in-full booklet on this subject will be sent to you on receipt of a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Velvet Is the Favored Fabric for Winter Hats

BY BETTINA BEDWELL.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The girls that make French millinery just can't get together this season and give us one outstanding fashion. They all go off on personal rampages of individual shapes in hats, so there are lots of millinery styles instead of a few. The newest hats to come out in Paris are varied from brimmed hats to toques and berets. They have one thing in common—they're made of velvet mostly. Three of the latest shapes in velvet headlines are shown here.

At the top is a red corduroy hat from Suzanne Farnier with a brim that turns up off a maidenly forehead in front and falls over the head in back. The crown is folded into cartridge plaits at the back and a ball of gold is hung amongst these plaits. Observe that the hat covers the back of the head in this and the other models. Styles are going that way.

WASHINGTON SOCIETY

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—President Roosevelt was joined yesterday at the White House by his daughter, Mrs. Curtis B. Dall, whose children are established there for the winter.

The President has as his guest Harry B. Hooker of New York, a grandson of the late former Senator Stewart of Nevada. Mr. Hooker was an associate of the President in the same law firm some years ago, and they have been fast friends for many years.

Mrs. Harold L. Ickes, wife of the secretary of the interior, who has been in their Washington home for ten days, will leave tomorrow morning by plane for Springfield to attend the special session of the Illinois legislature in which she is a member.

SHADES WHITER

MONDAY
I BRUSH MY TEETH TWICE A DAY... STILL THEY'RE DULL, HALF-CLEAN... UGLY! HOW DO YOU KEEP YOURS SO CLEAN AND WHITE?
TUESDAY
KOLYNOS WORKS—LIKE MAGIC—ALREADY MY TEETH LOOK SHADES WHITER. I CAN HARDLY BELIEVE MY EYES.
TRY KOLYNOS. IT KILLS GERMS AS IT CLEANS TEETH WHITER. I USE IT.
WEDNESDAY
DON'T BE FOOLS, GIRLS, YOUR TEETH ARE NATURALLY WHITE AND ATTRACTIVE—AS KOLYNOS WILL PROVE.

TRY THIS SCIENTIFIC WAY THAT CLEANS TEETH SHADES WHITER THAN IS POSSIBLE ANY OTHER WAY

NRA MEMBER U.S. WE DO OUR PART

DON'T be fooled into believing that your teeth are naturally dull, off-color, or susceptible to decay simply because brushing fails to make them white or keep them sound. Remember this: Any preparation that polishes teeth and fails to kill germs—millions of germs that cause so many tooth and gum troubles — ONLY HALF-CLEANS TEETH.

One dental cream in the world that kills troublesome germs as it cleans the teeth is Kolynos. Try it—a half-inch on a dry brush, morning and night. Soon your teeth will look cleaner than ever before.

This unique, scientific dental cream contains two priceless ingredients that give the teeth a DOUBLE-CLEANSING. As one foams into every crevice, over every tooth surface and washes away food accumulation, stain and tarnish—the other kills millions of germs.

Thus, in a remarkably short time, teeth are cleaned right down to the beautiful, natural white enamel—without injury. They look more attractive than you ever believed possible.

No, you can't get by with dull, HALF-CLEANED TEETH. Don't try to. Start using Kolynos. Overnight your teeth will show great improvement. Your mouth will feel cleaner and fresher. Get a tube of Kolynos from your druggist today.

A Simple and Quick Way to Relieve Acid Stomach
Easy to Tell if You Have It

The Signs of Acid Stomach

Nervousness
Neuralgia
Indigestion
Auto-Intoxication
Nausea
Frequent Headaches
Sleeplessness
Feeling of Weakness
Mouth Acidity
Loss of Appetite
Sour Stomach

WHAT TO DO FOR IT

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed.

OR—Take the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets—one tablet for each teaspoonful as directed above.

Some 80% of the people of today have Acid Stomach, according to many authorities! This because so many foods, comprising the modern diet, are acid forming foods.

Headaches, stomach pains after eating, "gas," "upsets," "biliousness," are the usual indications. So you can easily tell if you have Acid Stomach.

You Can Quickly And Easily Correct It

But if you do have it, don't worry about it. Today it can be corrected in a very simple manner. Just do this. It will alkalize your acid soaked stomach almost immediately. You will feel like another person.

TAKE—2 teaspoonfuls of Phillips' Milk of Magnesia in a glass of water every morning when you get up. Take another teaspoonful thirty minutes after eating. And another before you go to bed. Or—you can take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets; one tablet for each teaspoonful of the liquid.

What This Does

That's all you do. But do it regularly, EVERY DAY.

This acts to neutralize the stomach acids that foster your "upset" stomach, that invite headaches and that feeling of lassitude and lost energy you feel.

Everywhere people are doing this—doctors advocating it. Try it. Results will amaze you. Your head will be clear. You'll forget you have a stomach.

BUT—be careful that you get REAL milk of magnesia when you buy; genuine PHILLIPS' Milk of Magnesia. See that the name "Phillips'" is stamped clearly on the label.

ALSO IN TABLET FORM

MORE ARSENIC THAN EXPECTED FOUND IN OCEAN

9 to 22 Parts in Billion Parts of Water.

Woods Hole, Mass., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Arsenic has been found in the sea by Woods Hole Oceanographic institution chemists in quantities more constant than hitherto supposed. The normal amount is nine to 22 parts in a billion parts of water, under their measurements.

The arsenic discoveries are a part of the study of little known substances in oceans, directed by Dr. Norris W. Rakestraw, associate professor of chemistry, Brown university. The study includes copper and zinc and also helium. This gas has been found in fresh water, but never looked for in oceans.

The arsenic assays were taken from the Gulf of Maine to Bermuda at 20 stations and in 155 determinations of water. At shallow stations there was a tendency for an increase in arsenic a short distance below the surface, with usually a decrease again at ocean depths. This tendency was far from consistent, Dr. Rakestraw stated.

No Increase with Depth.

In deep water the most important observation was that there is no significant or regular increase of arsenic with depth. For years it has been assumed that the deeper waters contained more arsenic. Volcanic influences were thought to be the source.

The uniformity in distribution of arsenic is taken as a possible indication that sea plants make little or no use of this poison. If utilized to any extent there would be areas where the plants would diminish the amount.

Scientists have thought it possible that some marine plants have learned to use arsenic, perhaps as a substitute for phosphorus, which is one of the great fertilizers of the sea as of land plants. Arsenic is chemically similar to phosphorus.

At one of the stations Dr. Rakestraw found a 10 fold increase of phosphorus with depth, which, he says, indicates that the two elements are utilized in a very different manner.

Detected with Generator.

The sea arsenic is detected with a hydrogen generator, in which all the arsenic gassifies along with the hydrogen in a water sample. The two gasses are trapped and passed through a tube. Lining the inside of the tube are strips of paper coated with mercuric bromide.

The bromide absorbs every particle of the arsenic gas. This deposit is visible as a stain, the length of which indicates the proportion of arsenic in the water. The nine to 22 parts per billion make a stain about half an inch long.

U. S. AGENTS DISGUISE SELVES AND CAPTURE EXTORTIONIST GANG

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Detective work in which federal agents were disguised as a tattered Harlem derelict, a street cleaner and a pencil vendor, it was disclosed today, was responsible for the arrest of three youths on a charge of attempting to extort money through kidnaping and death threats.

The youths are accused under the "Lindbergh law" of having demanded $500 in letters to Dr. Williard P. Beach under penalty of death and the kidnaping of his 7 year old grandson.

The prisoners will be arraigned in federal court tomorrow.

For the last week the child was driven to school daily by a federal agent disguised as a chauffeur, while the other disguised agents remained near the school house.

The last letter received by Dr. Beach Friday said:

"This is your last chance. Our gang have new machine guns and are itching to use them."

SON OF RIVERA SOUNDS FASCIST WAR CRY IN SPAIN

MADRID, Oct. 29.—(AP)—In an address to 3,000 persons at a Fascist meeting today Jose Antonio Primo Rivera, son of the former dictator of Spain, asserted that the Fascists are determined to triumph in Spain even though violence is necessary.

A great ovation greeted young Primo Rivera in the Teatro Comedia as he declared that Fascists "have raised their banner in Spain and are willing to defend it with their lives."

"The Fascists do not have a political program," he said, "nor will they have one. They are resolved to bring justice and true liberty to Spain. This will be done by violence if necessary, because the natural reaction of human dignity is to defend itself with violence."

WINNETKA WOMEN TO HEAR DEBATE ON TRUCK ISSUE

The Winnetka League of Women Voters has called a meeting for 10 o'clock this morning in the Winnetka Community house to discuss the efforts of trucking companies before the Illinois commerce commission to open Sheridan road to freight vans.

William B. Moulton, president of the Winnetka village council, and Howard F. Bishop, attorney for the North Shore Property Owners' association, will tell of their fight to keep the heavy vans off the boulevard. Howard Willett, president of the trucking company bearing his name, is to talk from the freighters' viewpoint. Mrs. Carrie B. Prouty will preside at the meeting.

On Stage Since '80s on Two Continents.

pany until 1898 and he handled such difficult rôles as Wildrake, the duke of Guisebury; Lettarblair Lytton in "Lettarblair," and the glamorous Rudolf Rassendyl in "The Prisoner of Zenda." He won fame, too, in "An Enemy of the King." Another famous rôle of his was Raoul d'Artagnan in "The King's Musketeers." His other successes included "One of Our Girls," "A Scrap of Paper," "Met by Chance," "Masks and Faces," "The Great Pink Pearl," "Editha's Burglar," "Lord Chumley," "The Highest Bidder," "Sheridan, or the Maid of Bath," "The Lady of Lyons," and "A Colonial Girl."

On Sept. 17, 1900, he fulfilled a long hope by acting "Hamlet" before a critical audience in New York. He was well received. Then he left Shakespeare's drama and did his famous François Villon, the lovable rogue of "If I Were King."

In 1904 began one of the great romances of the stage when Sothern teamed with Julia Marlowe, under the management of the late Charles Frohman, in "Romeo and Juliet." They opened in Chicago at the Illinois theater.

After "Romeo and Juliet" Sothern and Miss Marlowe played a long list of Shakespeare's dramas, several of them under Shubert management.

These included at various times "The Taming of the Shrew," "Much Ado About Nothing," "The Merchant of Venice," "Anthony and Cleopatra," "Hamlet," "Macbeth," "Twelfth Night," and "Cymbeline." His successes stamped him as the greatest Shakespearean actor since Edwin Booth.

Heads Chicago Company.

Other plays in which Sothern won fame with Miss Marlowe were "Jeanne d'Arc" and "When Knighthood Was in Flower." Then the Sothern Marlowe association was dissolved for awhile. He had his own company at the Garrick theater in Chicago for about a year. At that time he played Lord Dundreary in "Our American Cousin"—the rôle that made his father famous, as well as presenting "Richelieu," by Bulwer-Lytton, and "Don Quixote."

In 1909 he and Miss Marlowe were teamed again, and two years later, in August, 1911, they were married in London. They continued their co-starring tours until 1916.

Then Mrs. Sothern's illness compelled her to retire temporarily. The same year, with war clouds gathering for the United States, Sothern acted "Charlemagne," the story of the Frankish king who founded the holy Roman empire in 800.

During the war Sothern appeared in soldiers' camps in England and France, and in 1919 he and his wife came back to the stage. The strain was too much for Mrs. Sothern and she soon retired. Sothern kept acting until 1925. One of his last shows was "What Never Dies."

At the close of the couple's last co-starring tour, they presented the entire scenery, costumes and stage properties of their Shakespearean plays to the Memorial theater of Stratford-on-Avon.

Miss Marlowe was his second wife. His first was Virginia Harned, married in 1896 and who got a divorce in Reno Oct. 15, 1910. She was a well known actress. Miss Marlowe's first husband was Robert Taber, actor, divorced in 1900.

Boat, Liquor, Eight Men Seized by Coast Guard

New London, Conn., Oct. 29.—(AP)—The Lucia, a two masted fishing schooner out of Gloucester, was seized as a rum runner in Long Island sound by the coast guard today and eight men on board were arrested. Coast guard officers who boarded the schooner three miles off the southwest ledge lighthouse, outside New London, reported that they found 800 to 1,000 cases of assorted liquors concealed under a load of fish.

'SHOE BANDIT' IS CAUGHT AS HE TRIES NEW SHOES

The "shoe bandit," so-called because he had forced a number of robbery victims on the northwest side to give up their shoes to prevent pursuit, was captured yesterday by Sergts. Joseph Ponicki and Edward Kennedy of the Racine avenue police. The robber gave his name as Stanley Stanek, 23 years old, 1337 West Huron street.

Stanek owned his capture to the shiny new pair of shoes of Arthur Olsteb, 1445 West Erie street, whom he held up in an alley near Erie and Noble streets, and to his attempt to try on the new shoes immediately.

Sergts. Ponicki and Kennedy appeared in a squad car just as he had one shoe off and one shoe on. With one shoe on his foot and three in his hands, he took flight, but was overtaken and captured by the policemen after they had fired two shots at him.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Al Letourner, mite French red devil, and Torchy Peden, giant Canadian, arrived in the Chicago Stadium last night 20 minutes before the start of the six day bike race, having on Saturday evening concluded seven nights and six days of cycling in Toronto. They promptly mounted their bikes, won the most points in the first series of sprints, and an hour and 40 minutes after the start were leading the race.

Letourner, paired with Henry La Page, won the Toronto race, which ended at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Peden, who rode with Ewald Wissel, finished third. Al and Torchy came to Chicago by plane, and brought Ewald Wissel with them, when they learned he was wanted to ride in the place of Freddie Spencer, who is ill.

10,000 See Start.

When Letourner and Peden stepped on the track the crowd of more than 10,000 gave them a big hand. Looking amazingly fresh, the pair responded with large grins and immediately went to work, shooting around easily while most of the field was starting the customary task of "riding into shape."

Shortly before 11 o'clock George Dempsey of Brooklyn, American sprint champion, and Eddie Thomas of Kenosha, wrested the lead from the perpetual motion team of Al and Torchy, a matter which caused no great anxiety to the pair.

Wissel, riding with Jimmy Walthour, also was active in the early hours of the race, showing no signs of having ridden all last week in the Toronto grind. When the second series of sprints started at 11 o'clock Wissel and Walthour were in third place, a lap behind Dempsey and Thomas and 13 points behind Letourner-Peden, tied in laps.

At 11:15 Reboli and Manera, the Italian team, jammed into a mileage tie with the leaders and were riding much better than race dopesters had expected.

Begin Race with Sprints.

Director John Chapman, the big boss of the race, was so elated with the opening night turnout, especially when advised that all the trackside seats had been sold a half hour before the start, that he hastily arranged a change in the program which has prevailed in earlier races. The major change was to have the sprints start with the opening of the race at 9 o'clock instead of waiting until 10:30 o'clock as heretofore.

The result was as Mr. Chapman had hoped. The second sprint precipitated a jam, in which Lands-Schaller gained the first lap of the race, at 9:10 o'clock. Action thereafter was continuous, either through jamming or spilling. Thirty-three laps were gained in the first hour and 46 in the second, and there were four spills involving eight riders during the same interval. Three athletes stacked in the first fall of the race—Rodak, Winter, and Seufert. Seufert later fell again with De Baets.

The new schedule of sprints will prevail throughout the race; that is, sprints will be run off at 9 o'clock, 11 o'clock, and 1 o'clock each night. The afternoon sprints will be at 3 o'clock each day.

The results of the 1 o'clock sprints:

1—Dempsey, Reboli, Sheehan, Black.
2—Grimm, Crossley, Letourner, Schaller.
3—Dempsey, Triest, Sheehan, Peden.
4—McNamara, Miller, Walker, Schaller.
5—Winter, Wissel, Hill, Peden.
6—Hill, Peden, Schaller, Crossley.
7—Crossley, Reboli, Walthour, Grimm.
8—McNamara, Walker, Deulberg, Manera.
9—Grimm, Crossley, Ritter, Lands.
10—Wissel, McNamara, Black, Manera.

DODGERS BEAT CHICAGO CARDS ON PASS, 7 TO 0

Friedman Tosses One to Douglas.

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Displaying a marked superiority in every department of the game, the Brooklyn Dodgers turned back the Chicago Cardinals, 7 to 0, at Ebbets field today to gain their second victory in the National Professional Football league before a crowd of 18,000.

Once again it was the arm of Benny Friedman that hurled the Red and White team to victory, the Brooklyn quarter back speeding a pass to Ben Douglas in the second quarter to account for the one touchdown of the game.

Brooklyn's aerial attack proved too much for the visitors, the Dodgers completing half of the 18 passes they attempted for a gain of 100 yards. In contrast to this was the Chicago overhead offense, which saw only 2 out of 17 tries successful for 32 yards.

11-5 on First Downs.

Seven of the eleven first downs made by Brooklyn were the result of passes whereas the yard sticks were moved but five times for the Cardinals, and only once was it a pass which brought about a first down.

The home club displayed a much better running attack than in any of its previous games and advanced the ball 129 yards in this manner while holding Chicago to a total of 81.

The Dodgers started their touchdown drive just before the first quarter ended when Shipwreck Kelly caught Joe Lillard's punt on the Brooklyn 25 yard line and ran it back 16 yards. Cagle drove off tackle twice to reach the Dodger 48 yard line before the whistle sounded for time.

Friedman then was rushed into the game and with Karcis dividing the ball carrying with him on four line plays, advanced to the Chicago 36 yard line.

Right Down the Middle!

A forward pass was incomplete, but Benny crashed through the Chicago line to the 31 yard line. A Cardinal off-side gave Brooklyn a first down and Karcis added a yard on a straight plunge. Friedman fired a pass to Riblett, who was brought down as he snared the ball on the 12 yard line. Friedman pushed ahead to the 9 yard line and then tried a pass, which was incomplete.

Again he called for a pass, and this time it was directly down the center alley. Douglas, leaping high into the air in the end zone, made a brilliant catch for the score. Friedman then place kicked the extra point.

PIRATES, 16; REDSKINS, 14

Boston, Mass., Oct. 29.—[AP]—Jeff Douds, former Washington and Jefferson lineman, led the Pittsburgh Pirates to a 16 to 14 victory over the Boston Redskins at Fenway park today before 7,500, the smallest crowd of the local National Professional Football league season.

The Redskins, out to repeat the victory they scored over the Pirates earlier in the season, were able to cash in on only two of the five scoring chances that came their way during conflict that remained unexciting until the last period, when the visitors turned back two sustained Boston marches.

GREEN BAY WINS, 35-9

Green Bay, Wis., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Green Bay defeated the Philadelphia Eagles, 35 to 9, today before a crowd of 4,000. The Packers scored 14 points in the opening quarter on a series of passes and running plays. In the final quarter they scored three touchdowns and kicked goal a like number of times. Philadelphia scored in the second period on a pass to Hansen and added two points on a safety in the third quarter.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Those incredible Chicago Bears, led by the amazing Bill Hewitt, staged another story book finish for the New York Giants and 28,000 spectators yesterday afternoon at Wrigley field. Twice the Giants went into the lead, but the Merriwell boys turned on their trick attack each time and the final score was Bears, 14; Giants, 10.

The final Chicago touchdown was made on a pass from Hewitt to Bill Karr, and the only change in the scenario, which now has won five of the Bears' six victories in the last quarter, was that six minutes remained to play. But a determined defense checked the Giants, who must have realized that it was impossible to subdue a team which wouldn't admit it was whipped.

Bears Won't Give Up.

The Giants, with Harry Newman, one season removed from the University of Michigan campus, where for two years he collaborated with Hewitt in winning Big Ten championships, made a grand showing. Opposed by mere football players rather than story book heroes, Newman and Ken Strong, who did a lot of fancy running during the afternoon, might have won. But each time the Giants scored, they jabbed the Bears into action. And the Bears, when they die for dear old Rutgers, don't give up until victory is assured.

Figured on paper, the Bears had no right to yesterday's game. They yielded a touchdown in the first three plays in the first quarter. They were backed up into their own territory three times in the third quarter before Strong placekicked a field goal for a 10 to 7 lead.

Thrill Record Crowd.

But the Bears should not have won last Sunday against the Green Bay Packers, or against Boston or the Chicago Cardinals. The Bears have no regard for should-have-lost. They make their breaks and their touchdowns, and yesterday the 28,000 spectators—the largest crowd of the season—sensed that the Bears were only fooling while the Giants made the pace.

Hewitt was all over the field yesterday, just as he has been in all the games this year. But it was Luke Johnsos who blocked a punt by Strong in the final period and set the Bears on the path to their winning touchdown.

The Giants had reached the Bears' 35 yard line after grabbing the ball in midfield when John Sisk fumbled on a plunge. Two line plays were checked and Newman's forward pass was grounded. Strong went back to kick on fourth down. Johnsos and Hewitt raced in and the ball bounded from Johnsos' outstretched arms toward the west side line. Hewitt followed the ball, scooped it up, and sped to New York's 18 yard line, where Newman caught him from behind.

Fans Sense Score.

The thousands in the stands came to their feet. Here was the scoring chance for the Bears, the same opportunity that had been capitalized in other final minute rallies.

Sisk smashed through the Giants' right tackle for 5 yards. Red Grange, who played 60 minutes of the game yesterday without relief, struggled to a first down on the Giants' 3 yard line. Sisk tried again, but he was tossed for a 3 yard loss. Then the Bears gambled on a pass, the same pass that whipped the Packers at Green Bay and the Cardinals at Wrigley field.

The ball came back to Keith Molesworth, who faked it to Sisk, but tossed laterally to Hewitt as he ran behind the line of scrimmage. In the meantime Karr, right end, had gone straight down the end zone. Hewitt took one glance and as he went down under a wave of Giants, threw to Karr. Karr caught the ball one step from the end line for the touchdown.

Manders Does His Stuff.

Jack Manders, who apparently doesn't miss kicks for extra points, came from the bench to replace Bronko Nagurski. And Manders' kick was over the cross bar, just as it had been after the first Bears' touchdown in the second quarter.

The Giants, leading the eastern half

MR. HEWITT STEPS ACROSS TO SEE AN OLD PAL

Harry Newman, former Michigan star now with the New York Giants, gets ready to pass in second quarter of battle with Chicago Bears yesterday at Wrigley field, but it's apparent he is going to get into trouble. The troublemakers are Bill Hewitt (No. 56) and Link Lyman (No. 12) of the Bears, who a moment later threw Newman for a loss of 10 yards. Hewitt, also an ex-Michigan gridiron hero, led the Bears to a 14 to 10 victory, the Bears, as is their habit, overtaking their opponents in the last quarter. [TRIBUNE Photo.]

Illinois Next Hurdle in Michigan's Path to Title

Iowa's defeat Saturday by Minnesota, not at all surprising in view of Minnesota's power, which a week ago whipped Pittsburgh, shoved the Hawkeyes from the list of unbeaten and untied elevens in the western conference race. However, Iowa's partisans, in consideration of two victories—Northwestern and Wisconsin—probably are not feeling downhearted. Two victories after three seasons of lickings must be pleasant notwithstanding Minnesota's victory, 19 to 7.

While Minnesota and Purdue, which licked Wisconsin 14 to 0 Saturday, are not defeated, their records are sullied by ties. Purdue and Indiana have tied Minnesota. Thus, Michigan, seeking a fourth consecutive Big Ten title, and Illinois, idle Saturday, remain at the top of the conference race.

Illini May Trouble Michigan.

Illinois and Michigan will fight it out this week for the leadership and it looks like a battle. Illinois was defeated by Army 6 to 0 a week ago, although a mistake by the officials kept the score from being 9 to 0. However, Army trampled Yale Saturday 21 to 0 and generally misbehaved in a fashion to boost Illinois' stock as a defensive team. And when Illinois' success with forward passes is reviewed, Michigan may be in for a busy afternoon with the Illini.

Coach Robert Zuppke of Illinois, personally scouted the Wolverines at Stagg field when they humiliated Chicago, 28 to 0. If Illinois can't stop Michigan, then that task will be passed to Iowa, Minnesota or Northwestern with the latter two having better opportunities.

Michigan played indifferently at Chicago. After an opening scoring spurt, in which a 31 yard forward pass play figured, Michigan came back with a 58 yard march for a second touchdown. This ended the scoring until the fourth quarter when the Wolverines doubled the count with two more touchdowns. Four plays, gaining 26 yards, netted the first of these and two plays, including a touchdown pass, completed the debacle.

It's Typical Michigan Game.

Michigan played typical Michigan football. There were no long scoring runs from scrimmage and the blocking at times seemed indifferent. But Michigan's defense kept Chicago completely manacled. The Wolverines don't have the dash associated with Purdue's attack, which in two dazzling plays at Madison beat Wisconsin. But Michigan gets to the goal line and that's important.

More than any other team, Michigan calls attention to the necessity for outstanding line men. Its backs aren't especially shifty and one of the best, Jack Heston, didn't play. But Michigan, with a strong forward line, kept Chicago on the run.

Minnesota's style of play resembles Michigan's except that the Wolverines in the last few years have had better kicking and more consistent defense. The Gophers advance by a series of short gains and while Alphonse and Lund form a great pair of ball carriers the spectators cannot forget the ability of the blockers.

Watching Purdue the spectator is apt to think in terms of the back field. Jim Carter's long run against Wisconsin scored the first touchdown and a pass from Fred Hecker to Duane Purvis scored the other. But Purdue's line checked a first period drive by the Badgers and the line was doing something besides watching when Carter got loose.

Maroon Stars Lack Support.

Chicago, to some extent, has been a victim of the error of thinking in terms of star backs. Jay Berwanger and Pete Zimmer are better than average, but without help they have failed to get going. The same might be said of Notre Dame, which Saturday was given a second consecutive defeat by Pittsburgh, 14 to 0. Notre Dame's hopes for a brilliant season were based on Nick Lukats, Andy Pilney, and Don Elser. These ball carriers have done well, but Notre Dame's line hasn't measured to the standard for successful offensive play.

Carnegie Tech's victory over Notre Dame was surprising. The defeat by Pittsburgh was anticipated and it now seems that Army, Purdue, Southern California should also whip the Irish. Northwestern and Navy are no setups, for that matter.

Northwestern dropped completely out of the Big Ten race when it lost its second game of the season to Ohio State, 12 to 0. The Wildcats outgained Ohio State but a fumble by Harry Leeper, after he had misjudged

RUMORS OF DEALS FOR KLEIN, HAFEY DENIED BY CUBS

Revival yesterday of the old rumors that the Cubs have purchased Outfielder Chuck Klein of the Philadelphia National league club and Outfielder Chick Hafey of the Cincinnati Reds brought the customary denials from Cub officials.

The report had it that the Cubs had bought Klein for $65,000 in cash and transferred Mark Koenig, utility infielder, to the Phillies, and that Hafey was acquired in a trade for Hazen [Kiki] Cuyler, regular Cub outfielder, Jim Mosolf, utility outfielder, and Pat Malone, veteran pitcher. In addition it was reported that the Cubs would get Augie Galan, a young infielder from the San Francisco Seals, to take Billy Herman's place at second base, and Roy Joiner, a right handed pitcher, from Oakland to replace Malone on the mound.

Would Like Klein.

The Cubs bosses have repeatedly admitted that they desire to strengthen the club with Klein and have admitted that they are ready to pay a large sum for him if the Phillies are willing to sell. Negotiations were started before the death of President William Veeck, but William Walker and John Seys, Cub officials, denied yesterday that anything definite has been accomplished. Baseball men did not consider it likely that the Phils would let go of their star slugger for as little as $65,000, even with Koenig thrown in.

The supposed deal for Hafey was not considered seriously because of the Cubs' liking for the work of Cuyler. The Reds, it was pointed out, would be getting the better of the deal in an even trade for Cuyler, while the addition of Malone and Mosolf would be considered an outright gift. Hafey has been suffering from poor eyesight for several years and in the last two seasons has been in generally poor health.

Weber Mentioned as Aid.

Other rumors that Philip K. Wrigley would take the presidency of the club with Carl Weber of the Los Angeles club as general business manager also lacked verification. Wrigley has indicated that he did not intend to assume the duties of directing the club. Several others besides

WEIL DENIES TRADE.

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 29.—[AP]—Sidney Weil, president of the Cincinnati Reds, said today no deal has been consummated involving an exchange of Charles [Chick] Hafey, Cincinnati outfielder, for three players of the Chicago Cubs, and that none is being negotiated.

Weil admitted he would trade any player if he could profit thereby, but said "I have no deal on tap with the Chicago club."

NEWS TO PHILLIES.

Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 29.—[AP]—Gerry Nugent, president of the Philadelphia Nationals, said tonight he knew nothing of a reported deal involving the exchange of Charles [Chuck] Klein to the Chicago Cubs. Previously Nugent has denied he had been approached by the Cubs' management concerning player deals.

Red Sox Make Bucky Harris Manager; Promise Good Team

Boston, Mass., Oct. 29.—[AP]—The third step in the rebuilding of the Boston Red Sox baseball team was taken today with the announcement that Stanley [Bucky] Harris had accepted a one year managerial contract.

"I have signed for only one year," Harris said. "If I can't get results in that time, then somebody else deserves the chance."

BUCKY HARRIS.

Harris, who resigned as manager of the Detroit Tigers early in September, said that he did not come to terms with Tom Yawkey, the club president, until last Friday. Rumors that he would succeed Marty McManus, who assumed control of the club when John [Shano] Collins abdicated in the middle of the 1932 season, had been circulating for many weeks.

Hailed as Boy Wonder.

Harris, who quit a Pennsylvania coal mine to enter baseball in 1915, has piloted the Washington Senators, whom he led to two pennants and a world championship, and the Detroit Tigers. He was the youngest manager in major league baseball back in 1924 when, at the age of 27, Clark Griffith named him Donie Bush's successor.

He was hailed as the boy wonder when he led the Senators to a world series victory over the New York Giants, but some of the glamour of this accomplishment faded the next season when the Senators, after winning their second successive American league pennant, dropped the title series, a seven game affair, to the Pittsburgh Pirates, then managed by Bill McKechnie, present leader of the Boston Braves.

Harris' success in Washington set the fashion for playing managers, but after the 1928 season, when Harris quit second base to become a bench manager, Griffith replaced him with Walter Johnson. Bucky moved to Detroit, where he met with fair to middling success from 1929 through the past season.

Promised Additional Strength.

Harris has assumed responsibility for a seventh place club, but both Yawkey and Eddie Collins, Red Sox general manager, have assured him they will provide plenty of additional strength before the Sox gather in their Sarasota, Fla., training camp next spring.

"We intend to do everything possible to strengthen the club," Yawkey said, and Collins seconded this promise. "We have nothing definite on the fire now, but we have every intention of providing Bucky with the best available material."

Yawkey was asked about the recent rumors that linked the Red Sox with several of the Philadelphia Athletics' stars.

"There was nothing in that report," Yawkey answered, and Collins added: "As far as we know, the only athlete on the market is George Earnshaw and we don't want him. Tom and I agree that a player that can't get along with Connie Mack would certainly be useless to our club."

Want Baseball Winner.

Since the present Red Sox owners took over the club from Bob Quinn, now business manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers, and his Columbus, O., associates last February, they have spent the, equivalent of $200,000 for new players and have appropriated as much more to raise the seating capacity of Fenway park from 28,000 to 40,000.

Collins has described these two operations as the first steps in the club's rebuilding plans. The engagement of Harris, he said, was the third and both he and Yawkey intimated that they were prepared to take many more expensive steps to provide Boston with winning baseball.

BY FRENCH LANE.

The Chicago racegoers who are losers on the season will be battling with their backs to the wall at the Sportsmans Park track this afternoon.

They will be there trying to pick the winners on one of the most difficult programs of the year in Chicago and perhaps will be a bit panicky, for if they don't get even today or tomorrow they must wait until next May to do it.

After the last race is run tomorrow afternoon, the season ends in Chicago and in Illinois. The law provides the tracks can keep their gates open in this state only between May 1 and Nov. 1. So there are 15 more chances to win back the lost shekels on the seven races to be run today or the eight events which will make up the program tomorrow.

With Sobieha pretty well established as the best older horse at Sportsman's Park, following three impressive victories, an effort will be made today to determine the best juvenile of the meeting.

This will come in the running of the Stickney handicap, a dash at five furlongs. It brings together Eurydice Luna Bright, and Copain, which have stood out in the earlier juvenile races run over the half-mile course. Others in the field are Fire Star, Gale Way, Parafour, Polas Flag, Thomas H., and Pomparagon.

The latter also has been highly regarded, but turned in a mediocre performance last week which caused him to lose many of his followers. It later was discovered that he was slightly injured at the post, and that these hurts made it impossible for him to get up much speed.

The injuries having responded to treatment, Trainer C. E. Davidson expects him to turn it on at quite a lively clip this afternoon.

Dogs Vie in Field Trial Nov. 18, 19

BY BOB BECKER.

Springer and cocker spaniels from Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan, and possibly from New York and California will demonstrate their game finding and retrieving ability on Nov. 18 and 19 when the annual field trial of the English Springer Spaniel club of the central states is held west of Lake Forest, Ill. Edward Bertram, secretary of the club, states that arrangements for the trial have been completed and entry blanks will be mailed out today.

More than 400 acres of land just a few minuets ride west of Lake Forest has been obtained. The courses over which braces of dogs will be run in order to show the judge how they quarter their ground, find game and behave under fire, will be stocked with pheasants and rabbits. Shooters, known as the "guns" in field trials, will work in pairs so that each gun dog has a shooter behind him to drop the game which is flushed.

Hogan Appointed Judge.

Martin Hogan of Barrington, Ill., well known authority on working breeds of dogs, who has officiated in trials in the British Isles as well as in the middle west, will act as judge. There will be one cocker event in which the "little spaniels" will show what they can do with pheasants and rabbits.

Springer or cocker spaniel fanciers who own trained dogs and wish to enter them in the trial are advised to contact Secretary Bertram, 115 West Austin street, regarding entry blanks, entry fees and other details. According to Mr. Bertram, advance inquiries from spaniel owners indicate that Chicagoland dogs are going to have some stiff competition in the trials from Michigan and Wisconsin springers.

Edgerton, Wis., Dogs Enter.

Edgerton, Wis., will send down three excellent springers. That town has been producing bench and field trials winners for several years. This year James Menhall of Edgerton is expected to run two springers from his kennel and Dean Swift, also of Edgerton, will enter one of his dogs.

Fred Martinie of Benton Harbor, Mich., has at least one springer entrant. Local springer owners may see the well known Boghurst kennels of California represented in the trials.

Several eastern dogs which have competed in the New York trials also are expected.

2 Championship Bouts Head Ring Program for Week

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—After weeks when the fights on the boxing program were just fights, the winter season comes in uproariously this week with two championship battles to head the fans toward the ticket windows of the indoor arenas.

U. S. TEAM NOSES OUT SWEDEN FOR JUMPING TITLE

Fine Rides Give Americans International Trophy.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

The contest was the final of a series of four in which the United States totaled 84⅓ faults; Sweden, 87¾; Ireland, 106¾, and Czechoslovakia, 225¾. The Swedish team went into last night's event in first place, leading the Americans by less than one fault, 75¾ to 76⅓.

Capt. Argo, first rider for the Americans, knocked down two barriers, thereby getting eight demerits, while Count Von Rosen, first of the Swedish riders, committed four faults. Then Lieut. Thomson made a perfect ride for the Americans while Capt. Hallberg of Sweden knocked down one bar, thereby getting four faults marked against him.

Lieut. Raguse Clinches Victory.

That brought the Americans within ¾ of a point of their rivals with only one more rider on each team to make the circuit. Under these circumstances, Lieut. Raguse of Fort Riley cantered into the ring aboard his aged bay gelding, Ugly, and cleared every bar without a fault.

That left the issue up to Lieut. Nyblaeus of Sweden, who brought Marokan into the ring with the responsibility of matching Lieut. Raguse's perfect performance. The first five barriers were cleared safely, but one of Marokan's hind feet caught the top bar of the sixth and knocked it down, giving the victory to the American team.

Mrs. John Hay Whitney's Grey Knight was chosen as the grand champion of the hunters and her Bon Diable was named the reserve champion. The Whitney entries dominated this class, for Two Leggings was the only other horse given final consideration by the judges.

Final Appearance Under Saddle.

A brief ceremony marked the formal retirement of Sweetheart on Parade from saddle competition. This aged gray mare which won the five gaited championship Saturday night is to be used from now on in the fine harness division, according to the plans of her owner, Mrs. William Roth of San Francisco. For four years Sweetheart on Parade has been in the top of her class and is now recognized as America's greatest saddle horse.

Lonnie Hayden, who has piloted her to many of her triumphs, brought her into the ring last night for her final appearance under saddle. She pranced proudly about the enclosure for several minutes. Then the saddle was removed and in its place was draped a wreath of roses.

Wins 27 Ribbons.

LOYOLA SCORES 7 TO 6 VICTORY OVER DE LA SALLE

Mount Carmel Defeats De Paul, 12-6.

Loyola academy, one of the six victors in yesterday's Catholic league high school football games, had the hardest time winning. The north siders were pitted against a strong De La Salle team at Loyola field, and by the margin of a point after touchdown eked out a 7 to 6 victory.

All the scoring came in the second period. After Loyola had advanced from midfield to the De La Salle 10 yard line, McSheehy passed to McCarthy for a touchdown. McSheehy then plunged over for the seventh point. McKenna caught a pass and ran 10 yards for the De La Salle score, after which the try for the extra point was unsuccessful.

Mount Carmel Triumphs.

After De Paul had tied the score at 6 all in the fourth quarter, Mount Carmel pushed over a second touchdown to win a 12 to 6 battle at De Paul field. An intercepted pass gave De Paul its opportunity.

Another close game was that between St. Michael and Weber at Logan Square park, the former winning, 2 to 0, when Sieven tossed Packi behind the Weber goal line for a safety in the closing minutes. With two minutes to play and trailing, 13 to 12, St. Ignatius rallied to beat St. Patrick, 18 to 13, at St. Philip field. Thornton scored all three of the St. Ignatius touchdowns.

St. George Ties St. Rita.

In other games, St. George and St. Rita battled to a 7 to 7 tie at St. Rita field and Fenwick routed St. Philip, 34 to 0, at Mills stadium. Quarter Back Masterson of Fenwick suffered a wrenched shoulder that is likely to incapacitate him for the rest of the season.

De Oro Wins Eastern Three Cushion Title

New York, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Alfred De Oro of New York tonight won the eastern sectional three-cushion billard championship, defeating Arthur Woods of New York in the final match of the tournament, 50 to 43, in 67 innings. Arthur Wood of Buffalo captured third place by defeating Louie Elkan of New York, 50 to 25, in 71 innings.

Youthful Pilot Killed in Race Track Smashup

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 29.—(AP)—A smashup in the last event at the Ascot speedway today killed Babe Stanyer, youthful pilot. Stanyer's car skidded on the south turn, ploughed through a rail guard and hurtled down the embankment, pinning him underneath.

Illinois Blocks Michigan Path to Big 10 Title

a punt and chased it into his end zone, and another fumble, which was recovered in the air for a touchdown run, turned the trick. The Bucks have become accustomed to losing when they have outgained opponents so it must be a relief to win when outgained.

Eases Willaman's Task.

The Bucks' victory may ease the situation involving criticism of Coach Sam Willaman by an assistant coach of a former administration who is a member of the state legislature and proposed to investigate the athletic department.

Chicago meets Wisconsin this week and the loser probably will finish last in the conference. Minnesota plays Northwestern at Evanston and Indiana travels to Ohio State. Purdue meets Carnegie Tech in preparation for Notre Dame a week later. Iowa also has a non-conference game with Iowa State.

While the Big Ten games went according to prediction, the other sections offered the usual quota of upsets and close games.

Army ran up a much higher score against Yale in winning 21 to 0 than was thought possible. Princeton was held to a 6 to 0 victory over Washington and Lee, and Harvard nearly defeated Dartmouth, conqueror of Pennsylvania. Dartmouth rallied in the closing minutes to gain a 7 to 7 tie. Navy whipped Pennsylvania, 13 to 0. Many believed Navy would lose. Holy Cross came back in the second half to lick Brown convincingly, 19 to 7. A blocked kick sent Alabama home from Fordham, defeated 2 to 0.

Duke Moves Along.

Georgia equaled the intersectional score for the south by beating New York university, 25 to 0. Duke continued its victory string against Kentucky, 14 to 7, and Tennessee rallied after two successive defeats to beat Florida, 13 to 6.

Southern California, tied last week, had trouble coming up from behind to nose out California, 6 to 3, in the most thrilling game on the Pacific coast. Stanford bowed to Washington, 6 to 0.

RACER SURVIVES 3 CRASHES; TRAIN JUST MISSES HIM

St. Louis, Mo., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Tommy Booker, Decatur, Ill., motor race driver, survived three major accidents and a threat of being struck by a train today with no worse injury than a broken pelvis.

His racing car plowed through a fence at Ramona speedway, and a timber, piercing the radiator, fractured his pelvis. The ambulance in which he was being taken to a hospital collided with two motor cars, shaking him and inflicting further shock.

The collision occurred on a bridge and the ambulance plunged down a 35 foot embankment to a railroad track below, where a train was momentarily due.

Booker was extricated immediately, however, and taken to a hospital where physicians said he had a good chance to recover.

Football Star Dies of Blood Poisoning in Hip

Cleveland, O., Oct. 29.—(AP)—John Cicuto, 21, football star at John Carroll university, died in a hospital late today from a form of blood poisoning. Dr. J. P. Gavan, team physician, said the poisoning, which settled in his right hip, might have resulted from an old football injury. He had been in the hospital since Oct. 21, and the first intimation of the fatal illness came three days before that when he complained of a pain in his hip.

THINGS YOU MAY NOT KNOW About FOOTBALL STARS

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

DID you know that two members of the Ohio State team are following in their dads' footsteps? They are Dick Heekin and Jack Smith, both of whose fathers once lugged footballs for the Scarlet and Gray. Both are juniors and regular backfield men.

J. Regis Monahan, the big Buckeye guard, is really not that sort of a gent, even though he does sign his name that way, as opposing linemen have discovered to their sorrow. You would never know that J. Regis, who now scales 220 pounds, was once a very delicate lad, playing through high school in the neighborhood of 128 pounds. The improvement is due largely to the fact that he is a skilled iron worker, working at the trade during the summer.

Joe Gailus, guard, and Sid Gillman, end, are the first co-captains in Ohio State football history. Gillman is known by the model T Ford which held together well enough to take him to school from his home town of Minneapolis. He has earned his way through school by playing piano in a dance orchestra. He does not go in for dates much, and when he does, it's not for dances. His idea of a big evening is to attend a dance alone, sit near the piano player, and pick up what new wrinkles he can. He has always played end, and at one time was a prep team mate of Clarence Munn, late of Minnesota.

Work in Steel Mill Gives Gailus Those Big Shoulders.

The big shoulders which make Gailus so easily identified came from working his way through school toiling in the mill of his home town, Vandegrift, Pa. In his early football days Joe worked from 5 to 10 p. m. every night, and even longer hours during the off season. He played full back for three years with Vandegrift High, but was made into a guard when he went to Kiski prep. "I'd rather play guard—that is, be on the line—for there's where you get action," Gailus says. "In the backfield you stand around and watch half the time." Among Joe's more famous prep team mates were Stewart of Carnegie Tech, Montgomery of Columbia, Murdock of Cornell, Hendricks of Duke, and Simms of Pittsburgh.

Buzz Wetzel, Buckeye full back, can't help being an athlete, for his father, also known as Buzz, once played third base for the Pirates along side Honus Wagner, and later managed teams in the Michigan-Ontario and old Central leagues. For the last eight years he has been a scout for the Cleveland Indians. Strangely enough, young Buzz has no baseball aspirations, for his mind runs to football.

Fred Conrad, who made himself famous in football, basketball, and baseball at Wooster, O., High., is one of the tallest parties on the Buckeye squad, standing 6 feet 4 inches and wearing a No. 12 shoe. He starred with Ohio's championship basketball team last year, and has a weakness for pipe organ music and fried chicken.

Oliphant a Relative of Purdue and Army Hero.

Pete Delich, who makes his home in Gary, Ind., is versatile, playing guard, center, or tackle. The 22 year old Serbian keeps himself fit in the steel mills of his home town. Pete has a yen to be a good corporation lawyer and own a black Packard roadster with red wire wheels. Mick Vuchinich, another Serbian, was rated a greater full back than Marty Karow during the two years he held down the job, and now is probably the best man in the Ohio State line, playing center.

Carl Cramer, the Buckeye quarter back, is probably the outstanding member of the squad. He plays football and baseball and is a member of the track team as a javelin thrower. Known to his fraternity brothers as "Bull," his hobby is collecting photographs of girl friends in Dayton and Columbus, the walls of his room being plastered with same to the number of fifty. He is a grand checker player, outstudying his opponent to a point where the latter usually resigns from sheer mental fatigue, but is voted terrible as a chess player. He leans toward a coaching job when he completes school.

Classic League Leaders Lose to Budweisers

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

The up and coming Budweisers last night continued the business of being unkind to the Classic league bowling leaders by taking two out of three games from the Baby Ruths. Last week the Budweisers handed a similar jolt to the Moulding-Brownells, who at that time had a share of the leadership.

Consistent bowling of 1,019, 1,010, and 1,012 was the method by which the Budweisers tripped the pace setters. The first two totals resulted in victories, but the Baby Ruths rallied to dwarf the Budweisers' concluding count of 1,012.

Although they suffered reversals the Baby Ruths retained their two game lead over the second place Moulding Brownells, who dropped two out of three to the A. J. Cermaks. The Budweisers, in third place, now trail the Mouldings by only two games.

Ad Carlson of Lorenz Knitting shot a 705 series that figured prominently in the 3,240 total, which gave his team three games from Arlington Bowlers Aid. Scores:

Wonderbolts Hand Sparta First Defeat

Wieboldt's Wonderbolts handed the Sparta soccer team its first defeat of the season, 3 to 0, yesterday at Sparta stadium in a National league game. Hay, a new player from Detroit, opened the scoring, and Harker, another recruit, netted the second goal.

Julian, Wonderbolt's goalie, saved several good tries near the close of the game and then Lilly deceived the Sparta keeper with a back heel kick into the net for the final score. Lineup:

MATA HARI EARNS $55,364; IS SECOND IN JUVENILE LIST

Louisville, Ky., Oct. 29.—(AP)—By winning the Kentucky Jockey club stakes Saturday at Latonia, Mata Hari, Dixiana stable filly, went into second place in the standing among leading money winning two years olds for 1933.

To the $15,064 she won a week ago in the breeders' futurity at the same track, Mata Hari added $16,230 Saturday to bring her total earnings for the year to $55,364.

Singing Wood, Mrs. J. H. Whitney's juvenile, still tops the list with $88,050, representing victory in the Belmont futurity.

E. R. Bradley's Bazaar is third with $39,650, followed closely by Far Star, another Dixiana farm product, with $37,115.

The three year old standing was unchanged by Saturday's racing. Inlander still topping the list with $57,530, followed by Hurry Off with $50,065 and Brokers Tip with $49,000.

Harvey Boy Injures Spine Playing with Oregon State

Corvallis, Ore., Oct. 29.—(AP)—William Tomscheck of Harvel, Ill., star Oregon State college linesman, suffered fractures of the transverse processes of the first and second lumbar vertebrae in yesterday's clash against the Washington State Cougars, Dr. R. L. Bosworth, team physician, announced after an X-ray examination today. The physician stated no paralysis had developed and that Tomscheck would recover.

Anderson's Status Not Affected by Failure of Irish

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 29.—[Special.]—Notre Dame officials today were noncommittal regarding Coach Hunk Anderson's status in the face of the poor record of the football team, saying that nothing will be done until the end of the season, at which time all the evidence will be weighed.

The Rev. John F. O'Hara, C. S. C., vice president, said that it is traditional of Notre Dame to be conservative in making changes and that certainly no changes will be made in midseason.

"We are getting great enjoyment out of the season," he said. "So why spoil the fun? We don't take football too seriously here, despite the general impression that we do. The students, alumni, and officials are less concerned about the team than our many rabid synthetic alumni. It is unfair to say Coach Anderson is hired or fired for next year, because we really don't know and we will not know until well after the end of the season."

Highland Park Defeats Lake Forest Semi-Pros, 7-0

The Highland Park Young Men's club football team defeated the Lake Forest semi-pro eleven, 7 to 0, at Highland Park yesterday before a crowd of 3,000. A pass, Lutz to Becker, brought the touchdown. Sam Bodman's kick for point was good.

BEARS GO OVER IN LAST PERIOD TO BEAT GIANTS

Blocked Punt Brings 14-10 Victory.

of the National Professional league, opened on the Bears as if they intended to smother them with runs and passes. Carl Brumbaugh prevented Strong from returning the initial kickoff for a touchdown. Strong fumbled on the 5 yard line, recovered, and then split through the Bear defenders until tackled by Brumbaugh on the Giants' 42 yard line.

Three plays from scrimmage and the Giants led, 7 to 0. Newman ran the Bears' right end for 12 yards, Bo Molenda, another of Michigan's ex-footballers, plunged for 5 yards. Then Newman took the ball, faded back, and threw it accurately over Nagurski's head to Strong, and Ken ran untouched for 20 yards down the west side line to the scoring zone. Strong place kicked the extra point.

Doehring Fools 'Em.

The Giants maintained their advantage until the second period when the Bears tied the score with a march of 60 yards. Bull Doehring, the expert left handed passer of the Bears, crossed up the Giants in this drive by lugging the ball for an 18 yard run through tackle when all defenders expected him to pass. With assistance from other backs the Bears reached the Giants' 29 yard line. Here Doehring handed the ball to Molesworth, who fired it to Hewitt uncovered in the end zone. Manders' kick for the point sent the teams to the dressing rooms for the rest period on even terms.

The Giants received to start the second half and again they brought the ball to midfield. Smashes by Jack McBride and Kink Richards, with a 15 yard gain on a forward pass from McBride to Richards, reached the Bears' 32 yard line in six plays. Here McBride attempted a place kick, but the ball bounded low and went into the end zone for a touch back.

The Giants took possession again and once more penetrated the Bears' defense with runs and passes until they reached the Bears' 21 yard line. Tiny Feather, on first down, gained 3 yards, but a forward pass by McBride, intended as a surprise maneuver, landed in the end zone and the Bears took the ball on their own 20 yard line.

The Giants' third drive got under way from their own 32 yard line in the closing minutes of the third period. Newman and Strong were back in the game and runs by Strong and Molenda were largely responsible for the progress. Deep in their own territory in the final period the Bears refused to yield and on the fourth down Strong place kicked from the Bears' 26 yard line.

You've read how this short lived lead served only to spur on the Bears for their final heroics.

Johnsos Sprains Ankle.

The Newman-Hewitt rivalry, highly publicized, met advance predictions. Newman completed only two passes in 14 attempts, but one of these scored a touchdown. Four of Newman's passes were intercepted and eight were incomplete. Newman carried the ball 11 times for a gain of 24 yards, but he lost 33 yards. Two of his losses totaled 20 yards on attempted passes.

In all, the Giants threw 19 passes, completing six for 75 yards. The Bears passed 13 times and completed four for 85 yards and two touchdowns. The Giants accomplished 11 first downs, two on passes and nine by rushing, while the Bears made eight first downs, seven by rushing.

IBANEZ RETURNS FROM EXILE TO HOME IN DEATH

Spain Acclaims Novelist Expelled by Alfonso.

VALENCIA, Spain, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Vicente Blasco Ibanez, great Spanish novelist and republican, returned in death today to his native country.

The nation which exiled him to France where he died five years ago paid him tribute with all the color and dignity of Spain.

100,000 at Docks.

The presidential party came by train from Madrid and went immediately to the docks, escorted by a company of infantry. There the party took its place with a waiting crowd of more than 100,000 persons.

The arrival of the ashes, brought on a Spanish cruiser and accompanied by four French warships, was signaled by a squadron of 100 military airplanes which dipped overhead. One thousand carrier pigeons, bearing messages to all Spanish-American nations that the remains had arrived in their native land, were released to soar in great circles above the multitude, then fly to their distant destinations.

24 Fishermen Carry Ashes.

The heavy casket which contained the ashes was carried over a four-mile route by 24 fishermen with long poles on their shoulders. They walked in relays, changing off every 100 yards.

The casket itself was made in the form of a huge book inscribed with Blasco Ibanez's allegories in letters of gold. It was placed in the Lonja, where it will be displayed for some time to receive popular tribute.

The avenues leading from the docks to the Lonja were crowded with close to a million spectators. As the casket passed they bowed their heads in reverence.

Banished by Alfonso.

Ibanez was banished from Spain by King Alfonso for his republican preachings. The writer quit his native country in self-elected exile and declared he would never return until his nation had become a republic.

He died in Menton, France, in January, 1928. His ashes were preserved in France according to his wish, until the Bourbon throne was overthrown. After that one of the major spiritual aims of the Spanish republic was the return to Spain of the ashes of the man who long had labored in its cause.

LITTLE ORPHAN ANNIE: Her Knight Goes Forth

Scoffed at French Artists; Once a Pugilist.

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—George Benjamin Luks, the painter, whose works are represented in most of this country's more important art galleries, was found dead early today on Sixth avenue. Death, according to a physician, was caused by a heart attack. He was 66 years old.

When, in 1908, the revolutionary group of painters known as "The Eight" was formed George Luks was one of them—and he remained a revolutionary in his views to the end. The others were Robert Henri, Arthur B. Davis, Maurice Prendergast, William Glackens, Everett Shinn, Ernest Lawson, and John Sloan.

Challenges Hecklers to Fight.

Only last winter, at a meeting held at the Artists' Coöperative market, Mr. Luks abandoned the subject upon which he was to lecture and spoke instead on what he called "the foreign art racket." And when he was heckled he peeled off his coat and offered to "lay out" any person who persisted.

"You're not talking to George Luks now," he said. "You're talking to 'Chicago Whitey,' the best amateur boxer and barroom fighter in America. You're talking to Luks, the professional quarter back. Don't make any mistake about that. I've lived and I'm still living. You and the rest of these hypocrites are only waiting to die. Stay here and I'll show you some thing. If you don't like my talk get out, and the sooner and the more of you that go the better.

Rebels at Treatment of Artists.

"This country has been imposed upon by French superior salesmanship. It is the victim of cheap little lawyers who become diplomats, and financiers who let their wives buy pictures from dealers who perfume them with bombast and saddle them with trash. I'm here to tell you that it's time America woke up to the realization that it is the greatest country in the world, with the greatest artists, the most common sense and the least appreciation of its own strength."

Luks was at one time the amateur lightweight champion of New York.

MARION WELLER IS DEAD; WAS FAVORITE OF QUEEN VICTORIA

LONDON, Oct. 29.—(AP)—Lady Marion Weller, for three generations one of the most remarkable figures of English social life, died today at the age of 87. Daughter of the third marquess of Ely, Lady Weller was a member of a family on intimate terms of friendship with Queen Victoria. Her mother, in fact, was a lady of the bedchamber to the queen.

Seventy years ago Lady Weller was one of the most beautiful girls of the period, and the special affection with which Queen Victoria regarded her was demonstrated in later years when she broke the previously inviolable law of the royal court prohibiting divorces.

At the age of 20 Marion married Capt. George Osborn Springfield of the Fifth Dragoons. A few years later Lady Weller eloped with a brother officer of her husband, Maj. Sir James Dyson Bourne. The divorce which followed meant social ostracism, but she lived it down and was happy for eight years. Even Queen Victoria relented in time and received her at court.

When Sir James died Lady Weller again married "into the regiment," although h. third husband, Lieut. Col. Buchanan, was on the retired list. So popular was she with the regiment that it became known as "Lady Weller's Own." Col. Buchanan died in 1892 and a year later Lady Weller married her fourth and last husband, the Rev. James Weller of Amershaw. Their married life continued for 34 years.

IRAQ'S NEW KING IN FIRST CRISIS, CABINET RESIGNS

BAGDAD, Iraq, Oct. 29.—(AP)—The first government crisis since the youthful King Ghazi was enthroned last month arose today with the resignation of the cabinet.

Headed by Rashid Ali Beg El Allani, the members presented their resignations. They were immediately accepted.

MILBANK GROUP ADVISES SINGLE U. S. HEALTH BODY

New York, Oct. 29.—[Special.]—The coördination of all federal health activities under a single head in one department, the formulation of a national public health plan, and the appropriation of federal funds to supplement state and local funds are advocated in a report made public today by the Milbank Memorial Fund.

The report, which was prepared by John A. Kingsbury, secretary of the fund, will be published tomorrow in the current issue of the fund's quarterly bulletin.

"The time has come," Mr. Kingsbury states, "when the failure to establish any well considered plan of health conservation on a nation-wide scale should be faced frankly and honestly by leaders in medicine and public health to whom the government looks for constructive advice."

FRANCE TO GIVE PAUL PAINLEVE A NATIONAL BURIAL

PARIS, Oct. 29. — (AP) — Paul Painleve, French statesman who twice was premier, died early today. He would have been 70 years old on Dec. 5.

A sudden heart attack, a recurrence of the affliction which had troubled him for several years and which caused him to abandon political life, caused his death.

The body will lie in state in the new "Painleve Amphitheater," the conservatory of arts and trades which President Lebrun dedicated only yesterday. From there it will be transported to the Pantheon for national funeral services on Nov. 4.

The son of a baker, Painleve became not only a famous statesman, but one of the world's most distinguished scientists. He was an enthusiastic promoter of aviation and was minister of air in the last Herriot cabinet when his last illness began.

Throughout his life, Painleve was engaged in public affairs. He was premier in 1917 and in 1924 missed by a narrow margin the election to the presidency of France. In 1925 he again was made premier. He was an advocate of payment of the war debt to the United States.

4 MEN SEIZED AND IDENTIFIED AS ROBBER GANG

Four men were captured yesterday and identified as the robbers who held up seven persons on Saturday. After the robbery several of the victims pointed out the photograph in police files of Steven Kucoch, 20 years old, 3615 South Wells street, as one of the bandits. A squad led by Sergt. Michael McFadden yesterday raided a tavern at 3650 Wentworth avenue and found Kucoch and three other men. The other prisoners said they were Tony Filippo, 20 years old, 3556 Wentworth avenue, John Le Brandt, 22 years old, 3142 Shields avenue, and James Cozzi, 20 years old, 3531 Princeton avenue. They disclosed the hiding place of their weapons, the ashpit of an old stove in the yard behind the tavern.

RUFFIANS KIDNAP AND RAPE WOMAN AT LOS ANGELES

Los Angeles, Cal., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Kidnaped and raped by several Mexican ruffians, who abducted her from her husband and brother after slugging the escorts, Mrs. Corrine Houser, pretty 23 year old housewife, was held captive for two hours today before police found her and took her to a receiving hospital.

The woman was beaten severely about the head, but was able to return to her home after emergency treatment. She told officers that at least three of the men raped her, and said she fainted twice during the ordeal.

Her husband, Glenn Houser, and her brother, George Delahunty, were found unconscious where their assailants had left them, and after being revived related the story of the attack and assisted police in the search for Mrs. Houser, who

GRAIN TRADERS SEE U. S. ATTACK BLOW TO PRICES

Believe Public Will Desert Markets.

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

The apparent launching of a campaign by Washington officials against the grain and commodity exchanges, due to the failure of prices to advance sensationally on the theories propounded by the so-called "brain trust," is likely to have a far greater effect than the administration expected, according to trade leaders in Chicago.

Failure of the public to enthuse on the buying side of the grain and other markets lately was regarded early last week as due to skepticism as to the efficiency of government measures to advance prices. The move against the exchanges is expected to increase this feeling.

Many professional grain speculators who have been talking higher prices for some time expressed the belief that much more energetic measures by the administration or outright grain buying would be necessary to offset decreased speculative buying and advance prices.

Trade Less Confident.

While there is a strong belief the government could, by the use of the many influences that can be brought to bear, advance grain prices to any level desired, the trade had assumed heretofore that this would be brought about in connection with the proposed rise in all other commodities.

The intimations that the exchanges were responsible for the failure of prices to advance was taken as indicating that government officials might be somewhat skeptical as to whether the theories were sound and were seeking to justify the theory by charging that speculators were responsible for the failure of the expected upturns to develop.

Those who have studied the probable effect of the recent government buying of wheat futures, as well as cash grain, see in this movement the possibility of untoward developments in the market in an effort to advance prices.

Small Supply of Grain.

It is pointed out there is a short crop of wheat this season, and that after eliminating the holdings of cash grain at terminals by mills and other processors the amount available for delivery purposes might not be as large as generally anticipated. The government is said to be "long" more wheat futures in Chicago at the present time than there is cash wheat available for delivery, and there is little prospect at present of attracting grain here from other terminals.

How much of the 109,000,000 bushels of cash wheat held at the leading terminal markets out of the visible supply of 146,000,000 bushels is owned by mills cannot be determined, but is believed to be very substantial. If the government's relief operations assume the proportions expected it is estimated 50,000,000 bushels of wheat would be required.

Theory Not Always Right.

In theory the holding of such an amount of futures would result in congestion in the market and a higher level of prices. However, the farm board found there were very large supplies of wheat available for delivery in case it was demanded. At one time its ownership of cash wheat and futures was estimated at over 200,000,000 bushels, yet the holding failed to prevent prices from declining.

As near as the trade can estimate, the government is now the owner of around 10,000,000 bushels of cash wheat and futures due to its recent operations.

Wheat prices fluctuated erratically last week within a range of 5 cents and closed 2 to 2⅜ cents higher compared with the previous week. December finished Saturday at 88¼ to 88½ cents; May, 91⅝ to 92¾ cents, and July, 88¼ to 88⅝ cents.

Corn Higher for Week.

Announcement of the government's plan to loan 50 cents on cash corn, Chicago basis, had comparatively little effect on the market. Strength came largely from sympathy with wheat. The various developments at Washington served to further becloud the strong underlying situation owing to the exceedingly small crop. For the week futures gained ⅝ to 1⅛ cents and closed Saturday with December at 46⅞ to 47 cents; May, 52¾ to 52⅞ cents, and July at 54¾ cents.

ASSERT FEAR OF TRADERS HALTS RISE IN GRAINS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—In a telegram to Henry Morgenthau Jr., assistant secretary of agriculture, today, the committee for the nation declared that fears on the part of grain traders that the administration will take action against them is preventing the rise in grain prices which would otherwise develop.

"B. W. Snow informs us that the statistical position of grains is the most favorable to price rise, independent of dollar depreciation," the committee told Morgenthau. "However, publicity discouraging grain trading and the impression of market leaders that their activities will be frowned upon or penalized is preventing the development of normal activity which would carry the farmers' grain between his marketing period and the time of consumption. At the time when producers must sell, this anticipation of future needs and willingness to carry are necessary factors in the movement of grain from producers to consumers."

"Paralysis of this function is interfering with the price rise so necessary before this year's crops are sold," the committee added. Such a rise is necessary to allay farm unrest, it was asserted.

London Stock Exchange Free of Regulation

BY JOHN STEELE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 29.—Restrictions on new foreign issues imposed during the national crisis two years ago remain today one of the most stringent brakes ever applied by the government on the London securities market.

It is not restriction by statute and brokers are doubtful whether infringement could result in prosecution. The point is that legal penalties are unnecessary, for violation is virtually impossible. Merely by suppressing transactions in foreign exchange through the Bank of England—which as a private company is the fiscal agent for the British government—the cabinet can forestall the sale of foreign issues in the London market.

It can even prevent the naturalization of big British concerns owned by holding companies abroad by forbidding large purchases of foreign currencies as was shown when the plans were first announced for the sale of the Boots drug combine by the Liggett interests, the American owners, to a British syndicate.

Keeps Capital at Home.

The government imposed restraint in order to protect the pound sterling at a time when a rapid flight from the pound was actually materializing. It was done to keep capital at home. The order in effect forbids the flotation of all bond issues in London the proceeds of which will be sent overseas. Only in the case of a few minor loans launched by dominion companies has the ukase been allowed to lapse. Otherwise the order remains in full effect.

In other ways, however, the government has nothing to do with the stock exchange, which is a company governed by its own committee. The exchange draws up its own rules and enforces them on members by fines or expulsions as the individual cases seem to dictate. Incidentally a number of new amendments to the rules, chiefly of a minor technical character, will be voted on tomorrow.

Marginal Trading.

As a rule all speculations on the London exchange except in the gilt edged sections are marked "for account." This means that the speculator will wind up his account on the next settlement day. These occur fortnightly—usually every other Thursday—with the exception of four annual twenty-one day periods taking place quarterly.

If stock is bought or sold on margin the broker goes on to the exchange floor where he makes the purchase or sale through a jobber in the particular stock in which his client is interested. The speculator receives the original quotation and toward the approach of the settlement day another, upon which he decides whether he will close his account or remain in.

If he is going to sell or buy, depending on whether he is a bull or a bear, he notifies his broker. The price at which the account is closed is fixed at 11:30 a. m. Monday morning, which is called "continuation day." On Tuesday the brokers and jobbers balance their books and on the following Thursday the speculator makes up the margin which his stock has lost or receives his broker's check on what it has gained if he is a bull, or vice verse if a bear. He can immediately reënter the same stock if he likes.

The jobber's original quotation includes all fees, including stamp taxes, but the speculator only pays half of the broker's fees if he settles within the account period.

Bulls and Bears.

If the speculator wants to hold his stock for a rise, if a bull, or buy later on a drop, if a bear, he has to pay a fee on settlement day. For bulls this is called "contango" and for bears "backwardation." How much "contango" or "backwardation" is needed for each issue depends on the stock's strength and whether it is active or sluggish.

The jobbers carry reserve supplies of issues in which they deal and if their capital promises to become sterile in a stock which is enjoying little trade then the contago or backwardation is higher than in the more active shares.

Since the war facilities for carrying marginal speculations from account to account have been narrowed so that gamblers have been forced to obtain money at their banks. This has served to reduce market gambling and has encouraged account to account speculation. The result explains why the London market usually steadies toward settlement day, the bulls taking their profits and the bears buying to cover.

COLLECTIONS UP IN FIRST RISE FOR 3½ YEARS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—For the first time in three and one-half years a definite upturn in collections on charge accounts throughout the country has been reported by the department of commerce.

During the months of May and June, according to the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, collection percentages for both open accounts, or regular charge accounts, and deferred payment, or installment accounts, showed an increase over the corresponding months of last year as well as over the preceding months of this year.

"This improvement in collections accompanied a similar situation with respect to sales," it was said. "Retail sales continued to decline but the decrease for May and June were much less than for any similar period during the last three and one-half years."

The department's findings were based on a semi-annual survey of 418 retail establishments in 28 cities with a total net sales of $66½ million dollars.

Chicago Will Be Host to 47 More Conventions in 1933

Chicago will be host to 47 more conventions before the close of 1933, a survey of hotels yesterday revealed. That number is scheduled to meet in the next nine weeks, although the busy convention season, which coincided with A Century of Progress, is over.

RFC OFFERS TO QUALIFY BANKS FOR GUARANTY

Aim to Bring in State Nonmember Units.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—The creation of special machinery in a nationwide campaign to aid state banks not members of the federal reserve system to expand their loaning facilities and become eligible for membership in the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation was announced today by Harvey Couch, a director of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, who has been placed in charge of the task.

Supervisors named for each of the 12 federal reserve districts expect to be at their posts tomorrow to cooperate with state supervisors at the state capitals and committees which are to be set up in every state. By such a course it is hoped quickly to reach all of the 9,000 nonmember banks in the country and urge them to strengthen their capital structures by sale of preferred stock or capital notes to the RFC. Representatives of the Federal Deposit Insurance organization and examiners of the RFC will also participate in the campaign.

To Assist All Banks.

Mr. Couch said that at least two leading nonmember bankers were being invited to serve on state committees and that in larger states at least two committees would be named.

"District and state supervisers have been instructed to do everything in their power to acquaint nonmember banks with the possibility and desirability of the sale of preferred stock to the Reconstruction Finance corporation in order that state banks which wish to do so may avail themselves of the federal deposit insurance by Jan. 1, 1934."

The RFC made public a letter of instructions which has been sent to all state supervisors, which says in part:

Counting on Banks.

"The various district supervisors are leaving the Washington office at once for the purpose of visiting your office and instructing you in the additional duties which are being imposed.

"Having in mind that there are in excess of 9,000 nonmember state banks in the United States, of which a goodly number will desire to further strengthen their position through the aid of the Reconstruction Finance corporation, and that this task must be accomplished prior to Jan. 1, 1934, in order to assist such banks in qualifying for deposit insurance, I am requesting that you bend every effort in joining with me in bringing to a sucessful conclusion this stupendous effort.

"Realizing that conscientious effort, intelligently directed, is all that will be required to 'put across the job,' I am satisfied that your office will more than keep pace with the stride that must be maintained during the next two months. I am going to count on you."

Continental Oil Co. Earns 61c a Share in 3d Quarter

The Continental Oil company reports for the three months ended Sept. 30 a consolidated net income of $2,898,990 after all charges, equal to 61 cents a share. This compares with a deficit of $2,135,722 after similar charges in the preceding quarter and a net profit of $358,451, or 8 cents a share, in the September quarter last year. For the nine months ended on Sept. 30 the net loss was $2,061,979, compared with a net profit of $101,949 for the first nine months of 1932.

Chicago Corp. Buys Stock of Mortgage Firm

BY THOMAS FURLONG.

The Chicago corporation, investment trust organized in 1929 by Marshall Field, Charles F. Glore and their associates, has purchased the entire capital stock of the Fort Dearborn Mortgage company, it was announced last night.

The deal, involving a consideration of $375,000, has been under negotiation for some time. The company was organized and jointly owned by the Continental Illinois National Bank and Trust company, the First National bank, and the Chicago Title and Trust company.

Is was formed 18 months ago by the banks in an attempt to provide refinancing facilities for Chicago real estate enterprises, many of which were in the throes of receivership and reorganization.

Had Planned to Seek RFC Aid.

Some of these properties were unable to obtain moderate loans necessary to carry out reorganizations.

The firm was capitalized at $750,000, of which $375,000 was in debenture notes and $375,000 in stock. Loans now outstanding approximate one and a half million dollars. The organizers planned to ask funds to carry out their program from the Reconstruction Finance corporation. Various developments hindered the carrying out of the program on the anticipated scale.

It is understood that the new owners will follow the same general program. Aaron Colnon, Chicago real estate man and formerly with John E. Colnon & Co., will become president of the company, succeeding George H. Dovenmuehle, who will continue as a director. The firm will continue to operate as a separate company.

Banking Law Causes Sale.

The Continental and First National banks were not able to carry the plan forward, because of the provision of the Glass-Steagall banking law which requires that they divest themselves of interests in investment affiliates.

The company may play an important rôle in "unfreezing" some of Chicago's real estate properties. All indications are that the new owners will pursue a more aggressive policy than has been followed heretofore.

NRA STIMULATES PURCHASES OF CANADIAN GOODS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

OTTAWA, Ont., Oct. 29.—Under President Roosevelt's NRA policies there has been an acceleration in shipments of Canadian raw materials and semi-finished products to America. Canadian trade experts take the lately noticeable trade trend to mean that American industrial heads anticipate higher American tariffs.

They are taking deliveries as rapidly as they can get them. Another trade trend detected by the Canadian department of commerce is that American manufacturing concerns doing an export business have been placing large orders with their branch plants in Canada, where wages presumably are lower.

Dealers Put Old Gold Up; Jewelry Next

The action of President Roosevelt in raising the price of gold mined in the United States has resulted in a sympathetic increase in the price of old gold—that is, gold in the form of jewelry, watch cases, gold teeth, toothpicks, etc. Furthermore, it has resulted in sharply quickened activity in the old gold business, according to Chicago dealers.

One effect of the increase in the price of commercial gold will be to raise the prices of jewelry, gold teeth, and other products of the gold arts, it was pointed out.

While the Reconstruction Finance corporation will pay a price for mined gold determined daily by a triumvirate of government officials, the treasury department has not increased its price for old gold smelted into bullion. The old rate of $20.67 an ounce still stands, dealers said yesterday.

Dealers Now Paying More.

Notwithstanding the fact that the treasury will pay no more for the smelted old gold, dealers have increased the price they will pay for it by 37½ per cent over the rates prevailing around Sept. 1. The old rates were based on the quality of gold offered for sale.

Sam L. Adelsdorf, secretary of Goldsmith Bros. Smelting and Refining company, explained that the increased prices paid for commercial gold was due simply to the workings of economic laws, since commercial and mined gold are not tied to each other.

Prior to the premium paid by gold dealers for old gold, it was stated yesterday that a great deal of this commodity was being smuggled out of the country, particularly to Canada, where prices of the world market could be obtained. One dealer said old gold was being hidden in pies and cakes and a case was reported where it was smelted and molded in the form of a hammer. A coating gave the effect of a hammer.

U. S. Controls Gold Trade.

In the meanwhile Uncle Sam has taken steps to control the manufactured gold in the country now in the hands of the public as he has done in the case of monetary gold. Dealers must be licensed to deal in commercial gold and must report monthly on their business.

CANDID FINANCE POLICY IS URGED AS BANKERS' CUE

Frankness Needed, Convention Told.

BY HOWARD WOOD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Hot Springs, Va., Oct 29. The nation's leading investment bankers, anxiously groping for a way to restore confidence in bankers, today indorsed a proposal to break with traditions and follow a policy of utmost frankness in dealing with the public.

The occasion was an open forum on "News and advertising as educational essentials in business recovery," led by P. Erskine Wood of G. McP. Murphy & Co., New York. The forum was part of the Investment Bankers' Association of America convention program.

The proposal for a goldfish bowl publicity policy came from Arthur Dean, of Cromwell & Sullivan, New York, an attorney and expert on the new federal securities act. Dean has represented members of the bankers' association in matters pertaining to the new securities act and is recognized as an authority by the bond men.

Exit Back Patting.

"We won't get anywhere patting ourselves on the back," Dean said. "We've got to correct those situations that need correcting."

"The public must be convinced that we are making a sincere and determined effort to clean up the securities business. It's no good merely yelping that the securities act has set up a barrier against the financing of industry in the recovery program," the New Yorker asserted.

"We might just as well make up our minds that there is and will be a federal securities act. Why not, indeed?

"You and I see that the securities

What Ails the Utilities?

Increased Taxes, Expenses, Reduced Rates Endanger Public Utility Investments

TAXES on utilities are increasing ominously, and expenses for labor and materials are shooting upward. In the face of these increased expenses, the utilities are forced to reduce their incomes by making "emergency" rate reductions. These factors are beyond the control of public utility managements. They are the principal factors which make it increasingly difficult for many utility companies to earn enough to meet their fixed interest requirements.

In the case of the Associated System, it is estimated these uncontrollable increases in expenses and reductions in income during the present year will amount to more than $5,000,000:

$1,500,000 . . . More for Taxes
2,000,000 . . . N. R. A. Costs
1,750,000 . . . Reductions in Rates

$5,250,000 . . . LESS for INTEREST

$1,500,000 More Taxes

Two new taxes imposed this year, the 3% tax on electricity and the capital stock tax, add approximately $1,500,000 to the tax burden of the Associated System. Associated taxes in 1932 were $8,300,000, an increase of 33% over 1930.

Price and Wage Increases Add $2,000,000

Direct costs for wages and salaries under the N.R.A. are estimated at $1,000,000, and indirect costs in higher prices for materials, supplies, and equipment at another $1,000,000. The Associated System is glad to cooperate in the Administration's effort to stimulate business recovery, but severe rate reductions and destructive taxation make it increasingly difficult to do so.

$1,125,000 Rate Reductions in New York Alone

Associated operating companies in New York State alone have had their rates reduced by $1,125,000 this year. Reduced rates mean reduced income. Demand for emergency rate reductions is widespread.

Deficit—Interest Not Earned

Largely as a result of these conditions, the Associated Gas and Electric Company showed a deficit after interest charges of nearly $650,000 for the second quarter of 1933. In spite of increasing electric output, no month in 1933 has produced total revenues higher than those of the same month in 1932, previously the worst year in the entire history of the public utility industry. The most recent figures are equally discouraging.

Maturities Being Refunded from Earnings

Restrictions on security markets caused by the National Securities Act make it necessary to refund maturities out of current earnings. This results in less earnings available to pay interest charges.

30,000 Investors Protect Themselves by Depositing Under Plan

More than 30,000 holders of Associated Gas and Electric Company Fixed Interest Debentures have realized the danger of this situation, and have deposited their securities under the Plan of Rearrangement of Debt Capitalization. Ninety-eight per cent of the exchanges made have been for debentures of the Associated Gas and Electric Corporation, which are in a much more secure position.

Option 1 of the Plan, the most conservative, is most popular with debenture holders.

Debentures should be mailed to Transfer and Coupon Paying Agency, Room 2308, 61 Broadway, New York, N. Y., or The Public National Bank and Trust Company of New York, Trust Department, 76 William Street, New York, N. Y. The new debentures issued in exchange are being mailed promptly. Full details of the Plan, which obviously cannot be set forth in this advertisement, have been mailed to all known debenture holders and will be furnished upon request.

TELLS HOW $192 ACREAGE SOARED TO $2,885,000

Land Gains 15,000 Times Original Cost.

BY AL CHASE.

How one tract of land on the north shore has increased 15,000 times its original cost, or from $192.70 for 57.71 acres to $2,885,000, was told by Frank A. Windes, city engineer of Winnetka and Glencoe, yesterday to Homer Hoyt, author of "One Hundred Years of Land Values in Chicago," a series of studies sponsored by the Chicago Title and Trust company.

HOMER HOYT.

Mr. Windes came to Winnetka in 1879, when the area north of Elm street, west of Linden street and south of Willow road, was a wilderness and there were only 300 people in the village. The Skokie valley to the west was a great marsh that was alive with wild geese and ducks—a paradise for hunters.

"I feel like a modern Rip Van Winkle when I look at the marvelous changes that have occurred in the last fifty years," said Mr. Windes, who pointed out that the growth of the north shore has been reflected in the rise of its land values.

15,000 Times Its Original Cost.

Mr. Windes drove Mr. Hoyt around the boundaries of the 57.71 acres bought by the Patterson family in 1837 for $192.70. It's a triangular tract with its base on Pine street, its hypotenuse on the lake and its western side running due south from the waterworks.

"Today this tract is conservatively worth $2,885,000, or 15,000 times its original cost," said Mr. Windes. "Lake shore property advanced from $25 a front foot in 1890 to $500 or more a front foot. Business property on Elm street that sold for $15 a foot in 1890 in recent years brought over $1,000 a front foot. Lots on Linden street between Oak and Elm that sold for $40 a foot in the nineties reached the $2,000 a front foot level a few years ago.

From $10 to $50,000 an Acre.

"Even more sensational was the advance of values in the Indian Hills section. Land where the soil was too poor for farming, that had thickets and clay holes and couldn't be sold for $10 to $20 an acre, later became the resort of millionaires and worth from $25,000 to $50,000 an acre.

"The Skokie valley, covered with a vast expanse of water in wet seasons and with its great Indian council tree that measured thirty-nine feet in circumference and was 129 feet high, saw its waterway wastes spanned by rapid transit lines that raised its land values from $10 to $5,000 and more an acre."

The same story can be repeated about other suburbs, Mr. Hoyt pointed out, where the growth of beautiful homes, coincident with the development of transportation facilities to Chicago, has been measured by a startling increase in land values.

PACIFIC LIGHTING NET $3.09 A SHARE FOR 12 MONTHS

Pacific Lighting corporation and subsidiaries reported for the twelve months ended Sept. 30 consolidated net revenue of $6,027,370 after deducting preferred stock dividends of subsidiaries and minority interest common stock dividends.

There was a balance of $4,967,739, or $2.09 a share, available for dividends on the corporation's common stock after dividends on its preferred stock. After cash dividends on common stock remainder of $141,846 went to surplus.

In the preceding year net income amounted to $7,202,554 and $3.92 was earned per common share. The surplus for the period was $1,473,368.

CANADIAN RAILWAYS DROP CLASS FREIGHT RATES TO BEAT TRUCKS

BY H. A. LAIRD.

[Traffic Manager, Chicago Tribune.]

An interesting experiment is being attmpted by the Canadian National railways in the so-called Ontario peninsula in an effort to meet truck transportation. Unable to keep up with the trucks in the matter of reduced rates, they finally made a thorough study of the operating costs of their competitors, which they were able to do through their affiliations with large cartage companies operating in metropolitan centers, and which have for years performed pickup and delivery service for the railway.

Having arrived at a figure that represented track roadway costs, they published it as an all-commodity freight rate to include pickup and delivery service. The classification was entirely suspended with regard to both its diversity of ratings and packing requirements. They go to a shipper and tell him that they will handle his traffic at a certain flat rate, irrespective of whether it consists of books, blankets, or shaving mugs.

On this side of the line the Pennsylvania has made definite announcement that it will institute pickup and delivery, but that an extra charge is to be made for the service, and no disturbance of the classification will be made. The results of the two experiments will be watched with interest.

In the case of the Canadian National the railways have doubtless sacrificed considerable revenue by needlessly reducing the rates on light and bulky articles not generally solicited by the trucks, and on which trucking costs would be higher than the normal rail rates. At the same time they will doubtless secure a more substantial increase in tonnage than the Pennsylvania, which merely offers to equalize truck service.

An interesting sidelight on the Canadian National's experiment is that in the case of short haul and branch line traffic their trucks will perform the entire service if a way freight can be eliminated.

NATIONAL LIFE COLLAPSE BLOW TO EVANGELISTS

Expected to Cut Johnson's Religious Gifts.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Religious leaders as well as policy holders will suffer as a result of the receivership of the National Life Insurance Company of the U. S. A., 29 South La Salle street. Moreover, it seems assured that special religious interests of the fundamentalist sort will be permanent losers, because the reorganization plans of Receiver Patrick J. Lucey look to the interests of policy holders to the entire neglect of former recipients of the religious gifts of Albert M. Johnson, chairman of the board of the company.

For many years the names of the Rev. William A. [Billy] Sunday, Dr. Paul Rader, and the Moody institutions have been nearly as closely linked with Johnson as that of "Death Valley Scotty," who recently vacated the million dollar palace Johnson built for him in the California desert.

Friends of Long Standing.

The friendship between the former mystery man of the desert and the Chicago insurance man dates from the days when Scotty's companionship and the desert air saved Johnson's health, which had been jeopardized by injuries suffered in a railroad accident.

A similar friendship between Johnson and Evangelist Paul Rader arose 16 years ago as the former found spiritual salvation at a meeting in the Moody Memorial church, now located at Clark street and North avenue, when Rader was the pastor. The rumor that Johnson presented Dr. Rader with a $200,000 residence next to his own at 6361 Sheridan road was denied by Mr. Johnson last night.

"I still own the house occupied by Dr. Rader," said Johnson. "The arrangement under which he occupies the house is strictly a private matter.

Tells of Conversion.

"I was converted by Dr. Rader in the Moody church 16 years ago, and since that time I have had a deep interest in the work of saving men's souls. To that end I gave considerably to Dr. Rader's work. When he was broadcasting his services on the radio I gave him a great deal of financial support."

Quoting scripture in support of his reluctance in telling of his gifts for religious work, Johnson said that he had followed the injunction not to "let thy left hand know what thy right hand doeth." He said he was averse to "trumpeting" his gifts before men.

"Mrs. Johnson and I will never lose interest in saving men's souls," he added. "We speak of it nearly all the time."

Backed "Death Valley Scotty."

Scott was first introduced to Johnson by a promoter seeking capital for one of Scott's desert projects. Johnson supplied $2,500 for its promotion. The famous desert show place and mansion "where Scotty won't have to pay any rent" was projected and recently brought to virtual completion. Walter Scott Jr., Scott's only son, was adopted by Johnson in 1929.

Johnson began his career as an Arkansas railway station agent in 1889. As chairman of the board he is said to have received a salary of $84,000 until a readjustment of officials' salaries reduced that figure to $12,000.

'ALASKA HAS HIGH HOPES AS PRICE OF GOLD JUMPS

ANCHORAGE, Alaska, Oct. 29.—(AP)—A shining flood of gold was headed to the markets of the United States today from Uncle Sam's last rich diggings, where miners expect the new yellow metal to restore prosperity in Alaska.

Dr. Charles E. Bunnell, president of Alaska College and School of Mines, said he had "a banner enrollment," with prospectors rushing to take winter short courses before the gold rush next season.

Gold worth $1,000,000, the late summer-fall production, and much of it flown from the interior by airplane, began to flow through Anchorage from such isolated spots as Kiskokwin, Ruby, Circle, Iditarod, and Koyukuk when news of the advance in the price of gold reached the north.

If present prices continue, Alaskans hope for a $15,000,000 gold production next year, with consequent increase in their purchasing power. This was a bad season, because dry weather reduced the flow of streams used to wash out the gold. Extensive platinum operations have been started in the flat district.

U. S. MATURITIES DUE NEXT YEAR NEAR 3 BILLIONS

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Obligations of the United States government that will mature within the next twelve months amount to $2,903,321,200. They consist of treasury certificates of indebtedness, notes, and noninterest bearing discount bills.

Of the $6,268,095,250 of fourth Liberty 4¼ per cent bonds outstanding, approximately $1,900,000,000 has been called for redemption on April 15, 1934, with the offer of exchange of new 3¾ per cent bonds, due in twelve years, callable in ten. The new bonds will bear 4¼ per cent until Oct. 15, 1934.

The first Liberty 4¼s are not callable until June 15, 1934, and then only notice is given by March 15. This issue is outstanding in the amount of $535,932,600.

CANDID FINANCE POLICY IS URGED AS BANKERS' CUE

Investment Group Hears New York Attorney.

act was hastily and imperfectly drafted and that some of its provisions are such that corporations are prevented from issuing bonds. We think that the act can be amended in a way that would remove none of the protection for the investor and yet make financing possible.

Offer Own Program.

"We won't get anywhere with our ideas, however, until we convince the public that we mean business and offer a constructive and effective program for ridding the business of those evils which for years this association has recognized and sought too timidly to eradicate."

Along with this cleanup drive, he said, should go a frank and complete presentation of the bankers' case.

"We must tell our story honestly and simply. The business of financing industry is complicated and technical and the public doesn't fully understand its difficulties.

"We must show the need for long term capital and how the employment of money will put men back to work, make it possible for companies with maturing bond issues to keep out of receivership and provide that credit which is today the principal need of business in the recovery drive.

Urges Adult Outlook.

"But there must be no flimflamming. The banker won't get anywhere posing as the misunderstood problem child."

As for the securities act, Mr. Dean said he didn't wonder that the public failed to understand its many ramifications. Lawyers, he added, have studied it for six months and still don't understand it.

"There must be a federal securities act," he continued, "but there's no reason why it must require a prospectus the size of a city telephone directory.

"The securities act, it must be remembered, was passed during a period of hysteria. In Washington I was agreeably surprised at the intelligent attitude of various members of congressional committees in charge of the bill.

"Granted that some committee members never understood the bill. Unfortunately that's the way bills have to be drafted.

Blaming the Bankers.

"We must remember that the investment bankers are unpopular with the public and with the press. Investors throughout the country have suffered a lot of losses and there has been a tendency to blame the investment banker for all of them. Naturally, when it comes to drafting securities legislation the public says 'Why let the banker help draw it? Why not get somebody who doesn't know so much about it?'"

P. Erskine Wood, chairman of the session, endorsed Dean's remarks and added that the Investment Bankers association itself had been demanding reforms in the bond business for years but too meekly.

Dean was given enthusiastic applause. Later officers of the association said that although no formal resolution had been passed the proposed new policy of pitiless publicity for bond deals would be taken up next month when the bond men draw up their code of fair practices under the NRA.

As an opener in this new program of candid financing immediately after Dean's speech, the forum was turned into a "truth session" at which financial editors attending the convention were urged to make suggestions. The latter criticized chiefly those financing and reorganization deals in which information is withheld.

The principal event of the convention tomorrow will be an address by the retiring president of the association, Frank M. Gordon, vice president of the First National bank of Chicago.

STRENGTHEN LAW ON AFFILIATES, FLETCHER ASKS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 29.—(AP)—Even stricter legislation than is contained in the new bank law to divorce banks and investment affiliates was demanded today by Chairman Fletcher, of the senate banking committee, as a result of disclosures in the Chase National bank investigation.

Expressing amazement at the magnitude of the pool operations in Chase National bank stock by its security affiliate, the Chase Securities corporation, Fletcher, in an interview, said the new Glass bank law should be strengthened in this regard.

The banking committee chairman expressed fear the bankers could find ways to circumvent the present law which requires separation of the affiliates within a year from its enactment date of last June.

He advocated bulwarking the law with stringent provisions to prevent officers of banks from being connected in any way with companies doing an investment banking business.

The testimony before the committee showed Albert H. Wiggin, chairman of the Chase National bank, made profits of more than $10,000,000 from dealings in the bank stock through personal corporations.

Wiggin will be called by the committee when it resumes the investigation Tuesday to explain further how his personal companies made such a profit when the bank's ajliate, which he headed, made only $150,000 on its gigantic operations in the stock.

Order Interest Paid on Manhattan Railway 4s

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 29.—Van S. Merle-Smith, of Roosevelt and Son, chairman of the protective committee for Manhattan Railway company consolidated mortgage 4 per cent bonds due 1990, announced today that the court has entered an order for the payment of the Oct. 1 interest on the bonds, reserving for future determination what funds or property such payment should eventually be charged against.
